MANY IMPORTANT CHANGES IN THE ARMISTICE; TO AVERT FAMINE, SOLF AGAIN BEGS FOR HASTE; EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA FINALLY ABDICATES; GERMAN CROWN PRINCE NOW REPORTED DEAD

CUT RESTRICTIONS ON INDUSTRIES IN NON-WAR CLASS

War Board and Fuel Administrtation Act Promptly as Result of Armistice.

PRE-WAR CONDITIONS SOON

But Transition Will Be Gradual to Safeguard Labor and Transportation Facilities.

SOME BUILDING ALLOWED

But Much Construction Work Involving Millions Must Wait —Fuel Released.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The first important step of an official nature was taken today by the War Industries Board and the Fuel Administration, as a result of the signing of the armistice terms by Germany, toward the rehabilitation of many of the so-called less essential industries, the output of which had been temporarily curtailed to assure material, fuel, and labor for the war plants.

Orders issued will have the effect of removing many of the restrictions on the more important public improvements, as well as on many public and private building activities, and will cut by 50 per cent. the curtailment which had been placed on forty-two classes of industries, including the manufacture of passenger automobiles.

Building activities on a large scale, such as the erection of schoolhouses, apartments, office buildings, and other large structures which involve millions of dollars, however, will not be permitted for the present. It is probably that further rulings on this question soon will be made. It is considered significant in this connection that the limitations on the production of all building materials is lifted and their delivery for other than war purposes permitted.

It is the expectation to lead up gradually to a return to something like prewar conditions, but officials feel that too sudden a change would not only result in a severe shortage of materials in certain directions, but would disturb labor and transportation facilities to a dangerous degree.

Surplus War Supplies Available.

It is felt that there is sufficient steel and most of the other supplies on hand, partly as a result of the large surplus supplies built up at many of the war plants—supplies which probably never will be turned into munitions and other war commodities—to serve the situation confronting the country, if a program for a gradual redevelopment of the less essential manufactures is adhered to by the Government. As soon as the conditions resulting from today's rulings are studied further orders will be issued.

The plan to permit most of the less essential industries to increase their production only under certain limitations, with a promise that further development will be granted as soon as practical, it is believed will also pave the way for a gradual return of labor to these plants, and avoid any condition which might result in a rush of labor from the war plants to peace time activities, with a consequent harmful economic disturbance.

The plans announced today were formulated after consultation with the regional experts of the War Industries Board and the Council of National Defense. This comment was made:

"The War Industries Board began today a modification of the restrictions whereby it has controlled American industry in the interest of the nation's war program. As laid down by Chairman Baruch in a published announcement Nov. 8, it will be the policy of the board gradually to lift various restrictions and curtailments, with the view of bringing about as promptly as possible a return to normal conditions.

"In the modification of the curtailments imposed on the manufacture of certain commodities, the board has adopted the method of reversing the processes of the Priorities Committee, and there is announced today a list of commodities in respect to which the curtailment is modified.

"Hearty approval has been given by the Council of National Defense to modifications of the regulations governing non-war construction, and the council requests that immediate and widespread publicity be given them so that, to the extent now permitted, building

Lloyd George Pays Tribute to America's Aid in War

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Colonel Edward M. House, the special representative of the United States Government, sent the following message yesterday from Paris to David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, on the cessation of hostilities:

"Sincere congratulations. No one has done more to bring about this splendid victory than you."

To this the Prime Minister replied: "Many thanks for your generous telegram. Nothing contributed more to the victory than the prompt response of the President to the appeal I made to him for American help in those critical days."

Ability of Employers to Take On Workers Will Largely Govern the Demobilization.

OFFICIALS WORKING ON PLAN

Labor, War, Navy Departments and Special Agencies Are Already Co-operating.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Demobilization of men in the military and naval service of the United States after their return from France will be carried out largely on a basis of the ability of trades and occupations to absorb them, under a plan being worked out by the Labor, War, and Navy Departments and the War Industries Board. It was said today that the plan would be submitted to President Wilson in a few days.

The War Industries Board has sent questionnaires to employers in all industries asking the needs of each for men, and the answers will show where, when, and how rapidly jobs will be ready for discharged soldiers and sailors and what trades are most in need of them. Supplementing this information will be that received from draft boards and community labor boards, which are to cooperate in the work.

The War Labor Policies Board and the United States Employment Service will be combined to handle the Labor Department's end. The War Department is expected to establish a new bureau, or to convert the activities of Provost Marshal General Crowder's office to this end. General Crowder was suggested by some officials as the man best qualified to deal with the task of preserving the balance of power of the labor supply without delaying demobilization operations.

With the conversion of industry from a war to a peace basis many workers also will be released from emergency jobs created by the war, but this problem has been taken into consideration by the officials who are working out plans for a general stabilizing of labor conditions when the soldiers are returned to civil life.

Demand for Skilled Labor.

In this connection officials explained today that with the ending of hostilities there would be a great resumption of private construction and manufacturing, held up and restricted because of war work, and that thousands of skilled laborers would be needed in all parts of the country for this work.

Secretary Baker said today that every phase of demobilization of the army was being carefully studied by War Department agencies, but that no plans had been finally formulated. The only orders so far issued curtailing war work dealt with projects upon which work had not actually started, he said.

The question of the number of American troops to be retained in France or elsewhere in Europe was being studied there, Mr. Baker said, while the General Staff was preparing recommendations as to the number to be kept under arms in this country. The problem in Europe remains one of joint operations with the allied nations in after-the-war guarding and other work to be done by the military forces, and no conclusions on this point can yet be made.

Mr. Baker said several factors would govern the order in which men would be released from the army. It was obvious, he said, that as a matter of justice, men who had been longest in the service should be released first, but the industrial situation and the special need for men of a certain calling probably would modify the principle of making length of service a guide to order of muster out.

Labor Department officials are confident that the demobilization of the 4,000,000 men now under arms at home

CROWDS CRY "ASSASSIN"

Former Ruler of Germany Not Put on Parole, but Held Under a "Moral Obligation."

COPENHAGEN, Wednesday, Nov. 13, (3:50 A. M.)—The abdication of Emperor Charles of Austria is officially announced at Vienna.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Various reports dealing with the serious situation in Austria reach here.

A dispatch from Paris says that Emperor Charles of Austria issued a manifesto declaring that he was forsaking participation in the public affairs of German Austria.

It is reported that a general strike will be declared in Vienna tomorrow.

Victor Adler, leader of the Austrian Socialists, and Foreign Secretary in the German-Austrian Cabinet formed at Vienna on Oct. 31, is reported to have died.

An Amsterdam dispatch states that a meeting of 6,000 Jewish soldiers formed a Soldiers' and Workmen's Council and occupied Leopoldstadt, an eastern quarter of Vienna, according to a Vienna dispatch which quotes the Jewish Correspondence Bureau. The administration of the Jewish community is in the hands of a Jewish National Council.

Jewish Soldiers' and Workmen's Councils have been established at Prague, Theresienstadt, Olmutz, and other places and have been welcomed by the Czechs. The Jewish communities of Moldavia have accepted the Jewish national program.

Is Taken in Train Under Guard of Netherlands Troops After Crossing the Border.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—William Hohenzollern, the former German Emperor, arrived Sunday at Count Bentinck's château of Middachten, at Velp, near Arnheim, according to a dispatch to The Daily Expresse dated Sunday at Velp.

The dispatch from Velp says that an automobile containing two members of the German Court arrived first and notified Count Bentinck of the approach of the former Emperor. A second car brought baggage, while a third, with its blinds down, arrived in the evening. From it the former Emperor and two equerries, all in civilian clothes, alighted.

No one in the village of Velp, which adjoins the château, was aware of his arrival. The former German ruler

Heinrich XXVII. of Reuss Renounces Princely Power

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 12.—A dispatch received from Berlin says that Prince Heinrich XXVII. of Reuss, of the younger line, has abdicated.

Prince Heinrich was the reigning Prince of the house of Fürstenthum-Reuss of the younger branch. He was born in 1858.

Reuss is a principality that has a Constitution. Under it restricted legislative rights are granted to a Diet of twenty-one members, of whom three are elected by those paying the highest income tax, and the others by the inhabitants in general. The Prince had the sole executive and part of the legislative power.

CHEERING AFTER LAST SHOT

Germans Surprised to Hear Their Language Spoken by Many Americans.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—When dawn came this morning there was no hint of the cessation of hostilities. East of the Meuse, regardless of the situation, the American Second Army attacked in force at 8 o'clock. The onslaught was preceded by a tremendous barrage, which was returned in kind by the enemy. For three hours the Americans swept forward, hurling themselves against the wire entanglements.

The German gunfire was devastating. Then, at exactly one minute of eleven, like a final thunder crash at the clearing of a storm, the guns on both sides abruptly ceased.

The silence was more startling than the deafening roar of the barrage. For a brief minute intermittent rifle fire followed. Then came a pause, punctuated by cheers from the trenches on both sides of the line.

What followed on one sector was perhaps one of the most singular events of the war. Against the skyline figures were suddenly silhouetted. They appeared cautiously at first, but soon, growing bolder all along the line, they stood upright. These were Germans.

Sudden Roar of Cheering.

The Americans were not so cautious. As the barrage died, ending in a final husky rumble in the distance from the big guns, runners went springing along the firing line. Instantly comprehending, the whole line of doughboys leaped from trenches, fox holes and shell craters, splitting the unaccustomed silence with a shrill cheer. The roar of voices was like an outburst at some great college contest in America when a contestant scores a noteworthy play.

Strange to relate, the defeated enemy joined vociferously in the cheering. The world war was finished.

At one minute before eleven it would have meant death to show one's self above shelter. Not more than a minute after the hour, the rolling plain was alive with cheering, shouting men, friend and enemy alike. Not many minutes later, Germans and Americans were coming along the narrow stretch of ground so fiercely fought over, some shyly and awkwardly, like embarrassed schoolboys.

The first advances were followed by offers from the Americans of cigarettes, chocolate and chewing gum. The Germans in some places reciprocated with offers of hot coffee, bread and sausage.

The orders forbidding fraternizing were strict, but the novelty of the situation at times overcame prudence, and doughboys surreptitiously visited nearby enemy dugouts. Along the barbed wire at a road crossing some doughboys and Germans began a brisk barter for souvenirs. The Germans were bewildered by the numbers of Americans speaking German.

Americans Spoke German.

"Sure, my old man was born in Germany," laughingly remarked one stalwart private.

"That's nothing," said another. "My mother and father were both born there."

A middle-aged Landsturmer exclaimed: "Yes, the war is finished, thank the good God. My only wish is to get back to Germany."

A slender, pink-cheeked machine gunner said: "Yes, I know the Kaiser has abdicated."

Instantly a young aristocrat raised his voice: "There will be no revolution in

NEW TEXT OF ARMISTICE

Germany Surrenders All Her Submarines and 150,000 Railway Cars.

ALLIED TROOPS TO RULE

Armies of Occupation Instead of Local Officials to Govern —Neutral Zone Narrowed.

ALTER TERMS AS TO RUSSIA

Allied Governments to "Give Consideration" to the Provisioning of Germany.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Announcement was made tonight by Secretary Lansing that before the armistice agreement was signed at Marshal Foch's headquarters a number of changes were made from the original text that had been cabled to the United States Government prior to the German acceptance of the conditions. It was the original text that President Wilson read to Congress yesterday in announcing that hostilities had come to an end. Some of the changes are important.

No statement is obtainable as to the reasons for making the changes or as to when they were made. One of the most important relates to the provision for German evacuation of Russia. In the original text submitted to the German emissaries by Marshal Foch it was provided in Article 12 that "all German troops at present in any territory which before the war belonged to Russia, Rumania, or Turkey shall withdraw within the frontiers of Germany as they existed on Aug. 1, 1914."

In the amended text this article is left unchanged with respect to Rumania and Turkey, but it is provided in addition that German troops shall be withdrawn from Austria-Hungary. The important change is that the new form provides that German troops in the territory which belonged to Russia before the war shall withdraw within the frontiers of Germany "as soon as the Allies, taking into account the internal situation of those territories, shall decide that the time for this has come."

This notable modification, which permits German troops to remain in Russian territory, apparently means that the Allies are fearful that if German troops are taken away from Russia excesses will occur which may lead to anarchy.

Another important change makes more severe the conditions with reference to the surrender of material by the Germans. In Article 7, original text, it was provided that among transport stock to be surrendered should be included 50,000 wagons, (railway cars.) This condition as agreed to by the German emissaries provides that 150,000 wagons (railway cars) shall be surrendered. The Allies, however, modified the provision in this article for the surrender of 10,000 motor lorries so as to reduce the number to 5,000.

Article 7 as amended also extends to thirty-one days the period within which railroads and railroad rolling stocks and lorries shall be delivered.

Article 5 of the original text as read to the Congress by President Wilson yesterday was changed before the armistice terms were signed by the German emissaries in a material way.

As originally drawn this article provided that the German territories on the left or west bank of the Rhine, which are to be occupied by the allied forces, "shall be administered by the local authorities under the control of the allied and United States Armies of occupation." As this article is changed it provides that "the occupation of these territories will be carried out by allied and United States garrisons," thus taking from the local German authorities the right to administer these territories under allied supervision.

Another very important change in Article 5 reduces in width the neutral zone established on the right or east bank of the Rhine. In the armistice agreement, as read to the Congress yesterday by President Wilson, it was provided that this neutral zone should extend forty kilometers to the east of the Rhine southward from the frontier of Holland to the parallel of Gernsheim, and thence southward to the Swiss border, the neutral zone to be thirty kilometers wide, measured eastward from the Rhine. This article was changed before it was signed by the German emissaries so it provided

Former Crown Prince Is Now Dead, Say German Reports to Paris Matin

PARIS, Nov. 12, (Havas.)—The death of the Crown Prince is confirmed by The Hague correspondent of the German News Agency at Munich, according to advices to Le Matin.

A dispatch from the correspondent of The New York Times at The Hague, received at 3:30 this morning, indeterminate date, but probably Monday last, indicates that the Crown Prince was with his father when the latter arrived in Holland. The dispatch says:

"I learn from a reliable military source which I am not permitted to name that the Crown Prince is still at Vise, where he is a prisoner of the Soldiers' and Workmen's Party."

There have been a multitude of conflicting reports about the Crown Prince ever since the flight of his father became known.

Some reports said that he went into exile with the former Emperor and was with him at Eysden on the Dutch frontier.

Still another stated that after the formal renunciation of his rights to the throne at General Headquarters when he "cried like a baby," the Prince left for his own headquarters to take leave of his troops.

Even later than these was a report reaching London in an Amsterdam dispatch to the Central News, that the Crown Prince had been shot. No details were given of the alleged tragedy.

War on Germany Declared by New Rumanian Regime

PARIS, Nov. 12.—A dispatch to the Frankfurter Zeitung from Budapest says that the new Rumanian Government has declared war on Germany.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Germany's new all-Red Provisional Government is tightening its grip on the situation in Berlin and on the fleet and army. Dispatches from the Continent received here show that one of its latest steps has been the confiscation of the Junker press in Berlin. Fighting has been renewed in that city, but it appears to have been isolated and without effect on the supremacy of the Socialists.

A republic was proclaimed at Berlin on Saturday, according to advices received in Zurich from Munich and transmitted by The Associated Press.

The demands of the Independent Socialists, which have been accepted by the Majority Socialists, include the provision that political power shall be in the hands of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council, which shall be summoned in plenary assembly to represent the whole country as soon as possible. It is asserted that questions concerning a Constituent Assembly will not arise until after consolidation of the institutions formed by the revolution has been secured.

The fortress of Posen is in the hands of the workmen and soldiers, and the military authorities there have placed themselves at the disposal of the council.

The revolutionary movement is continually spreading. Königsberg, Frankfort-on-the-Main, and Strassburg are now controlled by the Soviets.

WILSON AT PEACE TABLE, RUMOR SAYS

Revival Attributed to Pittman's Assertion That President Would Attend.

SENATOR BACKS STATEMENT

Was "Carefully Prepared," but He Denies He Is Confidant of the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—A persistent report is in circulation that President Wilson will attend the peace conference as the representative of the United States. This report has been circulated before. It obtained wide currency in Europe, and was the subject of many inquiries in Great Britain and France of American officials and visitors. Its revival now is attributed primarily to this statement made yesterday in a brief interview, published in today's NEW YORK TIMES, by Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, a strong supporter of the Administration and close friend of some of the President's best friends and confidants: "The President would sit at the peace table in person, because there is no man who is qualified to represent him, and from that conference will come the establishment of the principles that he has advocated and which will mean an enduring peace.

"He will not again be charged with the disposition to surrender to Germany. His diplomacy will never again be characterized as mischievous and treacherous. The American people will not again be deceived, and they will back him as a man in his fight for the principles that he will maintain at the peace conference."

When asked today about the statement Mr. Pittman said:

"I won't elaborate that. But my statement was carefully prepared. However, I deny expressly that I am the confidant of the President."

No information could be obtained in Washington from sources that might be informed as to the President's intentions. Cabinet officers and others are reticent about discussing views expressed by the President.

Dispatches from Europe say that the Prime Ministers of the allied nations will attend the peace conference. It has been said of President Wilson that he is his own Prime Minister.

So far there has been no definite information as to the personnel of the American representatives at the peace table, except that it has been taken for granted that Colonel E. M. House, the President's personal friend and advisor, who has been attending the sessions of the Supreme War Council at Versailles as the President's representative, will be one of this Government's peace dele-

WANT PEACE ACCELERATED

Germany Appeals to Wilson to Start Negotiations at Once.

IN FEAR OF STARVATION

Foreign Secretary Proposes a Preliminary Peace and Asks Quick Promise.

FEAR CALLED UNNECESSARY

Armistice Provides for Provisioning, Washington Points Out—London Suspicious.

LONDON, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Germany has requested the President of the United States, according to a German wireless message from Berlin, to arrange immediately for the opening of peace negotiations, there being a pressing danger of famine. The message was sent by Foreign Secretary Solf to Secretary of State Lansing. It said:

"The armistice being concluded, the German Government requests the President of the United States to arrange for the opening of peace negotiations. For the purpose of their acceleration, the German Government proposes, first of all, to take in view the conclusion of a preliminary peace and asks for a communication as to what place and at what time the negotiations might begin. As there is a pressing danger of famine, the German Government is particularly anxious for the negotiations to begin immediately."

A dispatch from the Wolff Bureau, the German semi-official news agency, according to Copenhagen advices, says the German Socialists have telegraphed Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Socialist leader, laying emphasis on the statement that the continuation of the blockade is causing suffering in Germany, involving women and children.

"The proletariat of all enemy countries protest against a hunger war," says the dispatch, which requests Branting to communicate the appeal of the Socialists to the international organization.

Full Text of Previous Message.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The full text of the German wireless dispatch giving the message from Foreign Secretary Solf to Secretary of State Lansing follows:

[Brief portions of the message received and sent out Monday night did not make clear whether Dr. Solf referred to the armistice conditions or conditions in Germany.]

"Convinced of the common aims and ideals of democracy, the German Government has addressed itself to the President of the United States with the request to re-establish peace. This peace was meant to correspond with the principles the President always has maintained. The aim was to be a just solution of all questions in dispute, followed by a permanent reconciliation of all nations.

"Furthermore, the President declared he did not wish to make war on the German people and did not wish to impede its peaceful development. The German Government has received the conditions of the armistice.

"After the blockade, those conditions, especially the surrender of means of transport and the sustenance of the troops of occupation, would make it impossible to provide Germany with food, and would cause the starvation of millions of men, women and children, all the more as the blockade is to continue.

"We had to accept the conditions, but feel it is our duty to draw the President's attention most solemnly and in all earnestness to the fact that enforcement of the conditions must produce among the German people feelings contrary to those upon which alone the reconstruction of the community of nations can rest, guaranteeing a just and durable peace.

"The German people, therefore, in this fateful hour, address themselves again to the President, with the request that he use his influence with the Allied Powers in order to mitigate these fearful conditions."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The new note addressed to President Wilson by Dr. Solf, German Foreign Secretary, asking that the President arrange immediately for a "preliminary peace," had not reached Washington tonight in official form. When it does come it will be considered in connection with the communication received today from Dr. Solf through the Swiss Minister asking the President to intervene to mitigate the "fearful conditions" of the armistice, which threaten to bring starvation to the Fatherland.

Dr. Solf's object in again addressing the President, it is assumed here, is to obtain an immediate peace conference to discuss the terms.

Dr. Solf's request for the hastening of a "preliminary peace" may mean that the German Government wishes to leave to a later time and possibly to a second peace conference the permanent settlement of the great issues involved in President Wilson's fourteen terms and the principles he has enunciated. Such a suggestion, it is said, would be without precedent.

It was pointed out today that there would be difficulties in convening a peace conference which would include representatives of all the nations which had formally declared war on Germany. A conference limited to envoys of the allied Governments and the United States might be held at a reasonably early date, perhaps within a month, if limited in scope to a few urgent issues.

One consideration in the minds of American officials relates to the status of the German Government itself. The President already has referred to this as fluid, and the course of the Russian revolution has emphasized, it was said, the need of caution in securing assurance of the stability of any Government with which permanent peace treaties are negotiated.

Held to be Needlessly Alarmed.

The appeal of Dr. Solfr for intervention by President Wilson for mitigation of the armistice terms, to save Germany from starvation, was delivered to Secretary Lansing today by Minister Sulzer of Switzerland. It was sent immediately to the President.

Before the usual Cabinet meeting, Secretary Lansing conferred with the President, and it is understood the German appeal was discussed by the President with the Cabinet.

Officials say Dr. Solf is needlessly alarmed. They point out that, in spite of Germany's treatment of conquered peoples in her hour of victory, it has been made very plain that the United States and the Allies have no intention of permitting the German people to starve. While every stipulation of the armistice terms must be kept in force, to prevent the possibility of treachery by the beaten enemy, it is declared such rolling stock and ships as may be necessary to provide food and other essentials will be put into use in Germany and on the seas.

In view of the situation in Germany, where outside aid may be necessary to prevent anarchy, it is possible that the President may see fit to take up with the allied Governments the question of giving some kind of reassurance as to the humane purposes of the associated powers.

Among other things, it is understood, the plan is to put the German merchant marine into service as soon as possible after the problem created by the naval revolt is cleared up, and such vessels as are necessary will be employed for sending supplies through German ports. Due precautions will be taken, of course, to see that these supplies are devoted to the purposes for which they are intended. President Wilson has already instructed Food Administrator Hoover to proceed to Europe and represent the United States in dealing with the situation, which will include the care of the German populace as well as the victims of the war in France and Belgium.

It is suggested in some quarters that Dr. Solf's plea may be designed to lay the foundation for an attempt on the part of Germany to secure general modification of the armistice terms before the peace conference.

While the blockade against Germany and Austria-Hungary will not be raised until after the armistice period, there is reason to believe that it will be very materially modified in order to permit of the transportation of foodstuffs to those countries.

The markets of South America are expected to be called upon immediately, for grains particularly, and also for many other supplies, supplementing the products that the United States can spare, and, inasmuch as the seas are no longer menaced by submarines and many millions of tons of merchant shipping are relieved from war uses by the armistice, it was said to be possible to send ships to Australia for wheat, wool, and other commodities which are desperately needed in Germany and Austria-Hungary, and which are also needed in the allied and neutral countries. Neutral tonnage is expected to supply neutral needs, the first call upon allied and American shipping being for their own needs and then those of the enemies.

Direct reports of conditions in Germany have been suspended, but the Washington Government is convinced that great distress prevails there and that danger of anarchy, with all its attendant horrors, exists in the revolution-torn country. The new German Government apparently has ceased sending out statements to the world by means of the wireless station at Nauen, which may carry a deep significance.

Austria and Hungary are believed to be suffering keenly from lack of food, and Turkey may be in a similar state. Serbia and other Balkan countries need help, and the humanitarian task that confronts the victorious Allies is assuming tremendous proportions.

The German envoys who went to Marshal Foch's headquarters to arrange the armistice terms were frank, it is understood, in telling of the distressing conditions that prevailed in their country. Something of what occurred in this connection is told in a statement made by Premier Clemenceau and cabled to Washington today. The French Premier is quoted as saying:

"The Germans themselves acknowledged in what a great conciliatory spirit we carried on the discussion respecting the armistice, and they purpose to issue a manifesto which is to be a homage to France and her allies.

"The German plenipotentiaries particularly discussed the food question. We maintain the blockade, of course, for the duration of the armistice, but, as the situation of Germany and Austria is hopeless, we will do our best to revictual them as much as we can afford, without any inconvenience to ourselves.

"The transport question dominates all these problems. Germany is to restore all the engines (locomotives) and 150,000 carriages taken from us. This will not facilitate her own revictualling means. Germany waited until the last minute, when, exhausted, she was compelled to capitulate. She is not in the normal condition which would have enabled her to revictual. From the first hour we must come to her assistance. We do not make war on humanity, but on behalf of humanity."

IMPATIENT WITH SOLF.

His Appeal to Wilson Is Mischief-making Says London Times.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The London Times says, editorially:

"Pleas like that which Solf addressed to President Wilson leave us quite unmoved, and we doubt not will leave Americans quite unmoved. It is not three months since this man, as Colonial Secretary in the Imperial Government, was declaring that the Brest-Litovsk treaties came by agreement, denouncing the Czechoslovaks as landless robbers and demanding the return of the German colonies, with a redivision of Africa to suit German interests. Now he cries out that the 'fearful conditions' of the armistice will lead to starvation in Germany, especialy as the blockade is to continue, and he appeals most 'solemnyl and in earnestness' to the President to avert the creation in Germany of 'feelings contrary to those upon which alone the reconstruction of a community of nations can rest.'

"This is a contemptible attempt at mischief-making. Solf has but to look at the armistice in order to see that 'the Allies and the United States contemplate such provisioning of Germany during the armistice as shall be found necessary.' That is both right and wise. It is our plain interest to do all that in us lies to preserve a stable government in Germany, if only in order to have some responsible authority with whom to deal."

LONDON, Nov. 12. (British Wireless Service.)—The Daily Chronicle says that Germany, "which never showed mercy, now has to implore it." It adds that the Allies no doubt will take such steps as humanity dictates, so far as they can consistently do so and feed their own populations.

"But that is no trivial proviso," The Chronicle concludes, "and the food cargoes that Germany has criminally sent to the bottom of the sea cannot be fished up even to feed Germany."

EBERT SAYS GERMANY WILL WORK FOR PEACE

Declares Revolution Is Completed and Republic Will Be Permanently Established.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 11.—The Berlin correspondent of the Holland News Bureau, who is in close touch with the new German Government, has obtained the following interview with the new Socialist Chancellor Ebert. The Chancellor said:

"The question of freedom in Germany has reached its most victorious day today. The German people are victorious and the old, cankered rule of the Hohenzollerns, Wittelsbachs, Welfens, &c., is overthrown. Germany has completed her revolution. Prince Max, who formally resigned when the Kaiser abdicated, handed the Government over to me. As a matter of fact, the people had already elected me as Chancellor by their elementary will. Then we relinquished our position in the Government because the Kaiser question was not solved according to our wishes. The Berlin soldiers and workmen almost unanimously supported us, and stopped the old Government machinery. In reality, we had full power in our hands before the representative of the old power gave it over.

"Those conditions had been gradually developing in Germany since the beginning of the war, and would have been completed after the conclusion of peace. But now the most skeptical must recognize that monarchism and imperialism are finished forever in Germany. Those who, only from fear of this power or from hate of it, have fought against us must be abolished.

"The German Republic will not know any greater honor than that of working for peace. A constitutional National Assembly of the German People's Republic will institute a Government which will represent the people's will as far as it is humanly possible."

To the question as to whether the new republic regime will have a still greater battle to fight before it is finally instituted, the Chancellor answered:

"Our victory is almost bloodless, I could even say easy and complete. That the old forces will once again strive for power appears impossible to me. Germany's future State form is a republic, and the free German people's State will be happy in feeling that it is a free nation, with equal rights as a member of the League of Nations."

The Holland News Bureau correspondent adds:

"At a late hour of the night, while excited, trembling masses of people still filled the streets and the public squares, I approached the Chancellor's palace. Soldiers with loaded rifles inspected my papers and allowed me to pass. There was the same splendid reception halls, the same carpeted staircase which I passed last time when Hertling still held the fate of the empire in his hands. But the people who now come and go are different, and they are visibly from the labor class. They all appeared to have important missions and to be weighed down with great secrets.

"I saw numerous individuals going in and out informally, while I was waiting in the Chancellor's anteroom; and two young persons arrived breathless with important news to deliver personally to the Chancellor. Then Scheidemann left the Chancellor's room.

"News of great importance had apparently arrived. Remarkable excitement was in the air, and I believed the Chancellor was now too preoccupied to receive me; but the Chancellor, who must steer the empire through difficult, fateful hours, suddenly confronted me and gave me the above interview."

KAISER TRIED TO HALT ARMISTICE DELEGATES

Lost His Last Fight, It Is Said, When Hindenburg Forced Them to Proceed.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—I learn on excellent authority that the Kaiser and his supporters at Headquarters made a determined effort to prevent the German armistice delegation from reaching the French lines.

It will be recalled that there was a considerable delay during the journey of the delegates to the front. That was occasioned by the Kaiser's orders, which resulted in the armistice mission being held up at a point on its journey through Belgium. There was a lengthy struggle between the Kaiser and high officers supporting him and those at Headquarters who are on the side of the new order of things.

In the end, Hindenburg took upon himself to order the mission to proceed, threatening with serious consequences any one who countermanded his instruction. The mission immediately went on, and the Kaiser thus lost his last battle.

SAS VAN GHENT, Holland, Nov. 8.—A large number of German troops have already begun to retire from the Ghent Canal and the adjoining region. These troops are being sent back to reinforce the Scheldt line, which is not yet ready, and Antwerp. They will retire via Moerbeke, Lokeren, Dendermonde, and thence behind the Scheldt, as the polders on the west side of the Scheldt are already flooded.

On the west side of the Ghent Canal there are only a few hundred Germans left, who are defending themselves with machine guns against the Belgian patrols.

On the east side of the canal, however, near Helsaete, there were yesterday 2,500 men, among others the Second and Third Marine Artillery Regiments with guns of 10.5, 12.5, 15, and 17 centimeter calibre. These batteries are about one mile from the Dutch frontier. The companies which in normal times number 250 men have been reduced to 190 men.

The Germans will endeavor to hold their positions on the Ghent Canal another ten days. Some troops left Salzaese yesterday for Antwerp in order to prepare the positions there.

Among the German troops the idea is prevalent that Antwerp will be defended, and they hope the English will force the Scheldt, thus obliging Holland to give up her neutrality in favor of Germany.

The morale of the German troops was bad during their retreat, but now that they are on a line where they have time to requisition and steal from civilians it has greatly improved.

Clock mines have already been laid in Salzaete.

REDS TOOK BERLIN IN SUDDEN FUROR

Only Seven Hours Occupied in Putting the Capital Under the New Regime.

SOLDIERS EASILY WON OVER

Popular Enthusiasm Was at High Pitch as Ex-Kaiser's Palace Was Seized.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—The German Socialist revolution may be said to be complete. In a few hours on Saturday the movement captured Berlin completely, and events in the capital were of such an extraordinary nature that the news of the abdication of the Kaiser was relegated to a secondary place.

In seven hours, to be exact, the capital of Germany capitulated to the revolutionaries. Certainly the most astounding feature of the revolution was the fact that this event took place almost without bloodshed, the casualties being reported as four killed and two wounded.

The taking possession of Berlin began at 9 o'clock in the morning. At that hour a general strike started, and shortly afterward thousands of soldiers, carrying red flags and accompanied by armed motor cars, began to pour into the centre of the city from the outskirts. With them came workers from outlying factories.

A little later trains began to arrive bringing 3,000 sailors from Kiel. They were received in the streets with the utmost enthusiasm; and, acting under the orders of the newly formed Council of Workmen and Soldiers, they broke up into detachments and occupied many important parts of the city, such as bridges, public buildings, street corners, &c.

On the streets a special edition of Vorwärts was being distributed with the following appeal:

"The Workers' and Soldiers' Council of Berlin has decided on a general strike. All workers are idle. The food supply organization remains intact. The greater part of the garrison, together with machine-gun sections and artillery, have placed themselves under the orders of the Workers' and Soldiers' Council. The movement is directed by the German Social Democratic Party and the Independent Social Democratic Party. The Workers' and Soldiers' Council will preserve order and tranquillity. Long live the Socialist Republic of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council!"

Iron Crosses Thrown Away.

The streets meantime presented an extraordinary appearance. Almost as by magic red flags appeared everywhere, and officers in the streets and barracks stripped off their cockades and epaulettes—in very few cases was compulsion necessary—and threw them away. Hundreds of Iron Crosses could be picked up in the streets.

Socialist Deputies went to the various barracks and addressed the soldiers, and in every case the regiments signified their adhesion to the revolution. Enthusiastic scenes of fraternization among soldiers, sailors, and workers followed, and people everywhere gave vent to their joy by loud shouts of "Long live the German Republic!"

Toward midday a strong mixed force of soldiers and sailors marched along the Wilhelmstrasse and took possession, one after another, of the Government buildings in that world-famous thoroughfare.

In front of the Reichstag building a great demonstration was held. It was addressed by Scheidemann, who had a tremendous reception.

"The Kaiser has abdicated!" he shouted; "the dynasty has fallen! It is a great and honorable victory for the German people. Herr Ebert has received the task of forming a new Government, in which both sections of the Socialist Party will take part. Orders by the Government are only valid when signed by Herr Ebert, and those issued by the Ministry of War must be countersigned by a Socialist delegate."

Three events created enormous interest among the crowds.

First was the hoisting of the red flag over the Kaiser's palace. Thunderous cheers came from the people as it was run up.

The cheers were renewed when the happy idea was carried out of displaying the red flag at the window of the balcony of the palace through which the Kaiser came to address the crowd on the historic occasion at the beginning of the war in August, 1914.

A little later a force of soldiers proceeded down the Friedrichstrasse, turned into the Zimmerstrasse, and stopped before the office of the Wolff Agency. A number of the force entered the building and took possession of it. The Wolff Bureau was put in red clothing; two Socialists, Herr Carle of Frankfort and Herr Hossman, were put in charge. There was no interruption in the service of information.

Vorwaerts Office En Fete.

While this was happening the Vorwärts office was being decked with a mass of red flags. The building was guarded by a detachment of the Naumburg Jäger Regiment, the first to go over to the revolutionary movement. In the Vorwärts office the first report of the success of the revolution was drawn up and sent to the Wolff Bureau for transmission abroad. It declared:

"The revolution has gained a glorious and almost bloodless victory."

Socialist leaders were not much in evidence during the day in public, though Liebknecht and Ledebour, who went through the city in a motor car, had a tremendously enthusiastic reception.

While Berlin was being thoroughly occupied by the revolutionaries, important political events had happened. Herr Ebert set about the formation of the new Government, and his first act was to issue two proclamations. The first has already been transmitted by the German wireless. This proclamation was followed by another reading:

"The new Government has taken over the conduct of affairs in order to preserve the German people from civil war and famine, and to realize its just claims to self-determination. It can only fulfill this task if all authorities and officials in town and country lend a helping hand. I know it will be hard for many to work with the new men who have undertaken to direct the empire. But I appeal to your love for our people. Failure of organization in these fateful hours would deliver up Germany to anarchy and terrible misery. Help me to help the Fatherland by fearless and tireless labor, every man at his post till the hour of relief arrives."

Chancellor Ebert Trusted.

That Ebert has been appointed Chancellor is an excellent sign. He is one of the finest characters in the ranks of German Socialism, and is generally admired and trusted. A man of particularly fine mind, he is entirely self-educated and self-made. In the Reichstag he represents the constituency of Elberfeld-Barmen.

He was born in the famous university city of Heidelberg, where his father was a working tailor. He was for a considerable time editor of the Bremen Bürger Zeitung. In stature he is small, and he wears a black beard.

News from the provinces continues to show that the revolution is successful everywhere. There is scarcely a town of any size where a Soldiers' and Workers' Council has not been formed. In Frankfort that body calls itself the Committee of Public Welfare. Of the newspapers there, only the Frankfurter Zeitung and the Socialist Volksstimme are allowed to appear.

Essen is completely in the hands of a local committee, and the manufacture of munitions has been stopped.

From Bremen a curious state of affairs is reported. British and Russian prisoners of war have taken part in the rejoicings. It is reported that bands of them are making their way to the Dutch frontier. On the frontier at numerous places guards have disappeared, while at others they have been disarmed by revolutionaries who have arrived.

Troops Rejoice at Abdication.

Advices from the frontier regions state that the news of the abdication of the Kaiser was received by the German troops with enthusiasm. In Belgian border villages, it is said, children are demonstrating with Belgian flags. German soldiers join in the rejoicing and present their Iron Crosses to the children, now that the Kaiser has gone. Soldiers shout across to the Dutch guards: "We shall have peace!"

The German garrison at Visé is reported to have laid down its arms. At many posts on the frontier yesterday morning Dutch guards could only see stacks of weapons and equipment on the other side of the barbed wire. The German soldiers had disappeared in the night.

At Aix-la-Chapelle the red flag is flying on the main station, and the English, French, and Russian prisoners there are without guards. Practically everywhere in the country railway service is at a standstill, but an early resumption of traffic is expected.

POINDEXTER MOVES FOR FULL ALLIANCE

Offers Senate Resolution to Bind the United States to Peace Terms of Entente.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Senator Poindexter of Washington offered a resolution today in which he indicated his belief that Germany seeks to bring about a disagreement between the United States and the Entente when the conquerors gather about the peace table. He insists that the United States shall "enter into full alliance" with her fellow-belligerents. Furthermore, he wishes the United States to sign the Pact of London.

The resolution, which was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee, follows:

Whereas, the German Government States in the present war against the German and Austro-Hungarian Empires is identical with that of our allies, all having as a common object complete and permanent victory over the enemy and a peace on such terms as will prevent a recurrence of the catastrophe; and,

Whereas, the United States and her allies have established unity of military command in the prosecution of the war, and it is desirable that there should likewise and for the same reason be unity of diplomatic action between the United States and her allies with reference to their common enemy; and,

Whereas, the German Government addressed peace proposals to the United States Government, separate and apart from the allies of the United States, and has attempted to bring about a separate agreement with the Government of the United States upon the terms of peace, and has requested the Government of the United States to act as an intermediary or mediator between the Government of Germany and the Governments of the allies of the United States in securing for Germany an armistice of arms and a discussion of terms of peace; and,

Whereas, the purpose of the German Government in such representations to the United States is to bring about a diversion of interests between the United States and her allies and a disagreement between them as to the settlement of the war; therefore,

Be it resolved, by the Senate, that it is the sense of the Senate that for the purposes of the existing war the United States should enter into full alliance with the other belligerent nations at war with Germany, and should conduct no separate peace negotiations, lay down no separate terms of peace, nor carry on any separate discussion with the German or Austro-Hungarian Governments as to a treaty of peace, nor make any separate agreement with the German or Austro-Hungarian Governments as to peace or the terms of the same.

Resolved, further, that for the reasons and purposes stated above, the United States Government should, through its proper representatives, become a signatory to the agreement already made between our co-belligerents having for its object complete unity between them in the matter aforesaid, known as the Pact of London.

Denounced by Refugees.

MAASTRICHT, Holland, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—Amid execrations from 2,000 Belgian refugees, the former German Emperor's special train left here at 10 o'clock this morning, northward bound. A tremendous crowd of sightseers had gathered, but the platform was strongly cordoned and William Hohenzollern did not show himself.

His destination is said to be Amerongen, about twenty miles from Utrecht, where Count Bentinck has a country seat. It is not possible to say where he will finally remain, for in order to avoid the curious he may have to keep to the train for a couple of days.

Ex-Empress in the Party.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 12.—The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council at Berlin announces that the former Emperor, the former Empress, and their eldest son, Frederick William, have arrived in Holland.

The former Emperor made an inglorious entry into Holland, according to report from Eysden. At 7:30 o'clock Sunday morning ten travel-stained automobiles, driven by Prussian officers, were seen coming slowly through the fog along the Vise-Maastricht highroad. The last Belgian village, Mouland, which is almost on the border line, was still asleep. The noise of the motors brought out a crowd of curious villagers.

The former ruler of Germany was dressed in the uniform of a General, with an officer's cap, and carried a sword. The erstwhile martial figure was huddled and bent on a walking stick, while his eyes stared straight ahead.

The Dutch frontier guards stopped the cortège. After some brief formalities, the automobiles were conducted to the railway station at Eysden. Dutch cavalry and military cyclists formed a cordon about the station.

Crowds of Belgian refugees swarmed around the station, crying:

"A bas Guillaume l'Assassin!"

An imperial train arrived at the station an hour later. It consisted of fourteen cars, and William Hohenzollern, who had walked up and down the railway platform, entered the train and changed to civilian clothes.

Arrangements for the reception of the Germans were made by General van Heutz, ald de camp to Queen Wilhelmina, who went to German headquarters last week.

Velp is east of Arnhem and about fifty miles southeast of Amsterdam. It is eighty miles northeast of Eysden, where the former Emperor crossed the frontier Sunday morning. Velp is about 10 miles north of the Dutch-German border, north of the German town of Wesel.

Archduke Renounces Rights—Revolution in Liechtenstein.

BERNE, Nov. 12.—Budapest newspapers received here contain details of a remarkable ceremony in which Archduke Joseph of Austria and his son, Joseph Francis, took oath to the Hungarian Constitution as simple Hungarian citizens named Hapsburg. The newspapers say this was the first instance in 400 years when such a renouncement was made. All privileges were given up by the Archduke and his son.

The newspapers also say that the little principality of Liechtenstein of 10,000 inhabitants, situated on the Swiss eastern frontier, also has had a revolution. principality of Liechtenstein, of 10,000 to leave the country. He was superseded by Dr. Ritter, a lawyer of Innsbruck.

EX-KAISER HELD LONG AT DUTCH FRONTIER

Scenes at Border in Striking Contrast to His Former Imperial State.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 11.—At 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning, when the mists were still hanging low over the valley, Dutch sentries at the frontier station of Eysden, near Maestricht, were awakened from their morning torpor by the horn of the ex-Kaiser's automobile.

"Tatoo-taa!" or, as Berliners used to say, "Here comes papa!" rang out in the morning air, and ten automobiles with royal insignia demanded passage. The party included the former Kaiser, his eldest son, Hindenburg, Admirals, and several gentlemen of the royal suite.

The sentries refused to allow the cars to pass, and the customs officials were not due to arrive until 7. The travelers must wait. There was also the question as to whether the party would be allowed to pass the frontier.

It was later decided that the former Kaiser, the former Crown Prince, Hindenburg, the Admirals, Generals, and officers would be treated like ordinary deserters or soldiers. Their swords were taken from them, and they are to be interned in Holland. Thus ex-Kaiser Wilhelm, who never in his life had waited before, and who had never undergone the exigencies of ordinary travel, let alone wartime travel, was obliged to wait half an hour on the other side of the barbed wire.

The former ruler left his automobile and paced up and down. He wore his General's uniform and a big overcoat. German sentries no longer guarded the precious Fatherland frontier, having disappeared, leaving the frontier open; and the ex-Kaiser's last glimpse of German soil must have been a depressing one.

It was a long, tedious wait in the early dawn for the Hohenzollerns. Finally the customs officials sauntered up, amazed to find ten automobiles. It had been a long time since motor cars had crossed the frontier, and there were many formalities to be gone through with. The question of benzine was to be settled, and there was a thorough examination under the seats for possible smuggling. The ex-Kaiser's fellow-travelers and suite were subjected to the ordinary customs examination, all this taking considerable time.

Even then the automobiles were not free, and the officials were scratching their heads over the various forms to be filled in. Finally the ex-Kaiser and his suite impatiently set out on foot for the Eysden station, which was about a twenty minutes' walk distant. There they expected to find a royal train in waiting; but through some mishap, the train did not arrive until an hour and a half later, and the ex-Kaiser, who looked well, spent his time striding up and down outside the station, getting very impatient. When the train arrived the members of the party entered a car, where they had breakfast, and after that they were insecure.

The railway authorities, however, received no instructions as to where the train was to be sent, and were obliged to communicate with the Government at The Hague. In Holland things are not done quickly, and this meant another long wait. A train consisting of two carriages arrived at 9:30 o'clock bringing the former Empress, more Generals and Admirals, and ladies of the court. A further train of ten carriages arrived half an hour later.

The train did not leave Eysden till 9:30 o'clock Monday morning, when the whole party of fifty-one persons proceeded to the castle of Count Bentinck at Amerongen, between Arnhem and Utrecht. They spent the night on the train, which was strongly guarded by Dutch troops.

According to Eysden advices, the German officers with the former Emperor will be interned at Arnhem. The ex-Emperor will not be asked to give his parole. It will be silently assumed that he is under a moral obligation. Some measure of freedom will be permitted him.

The Tijd learns that the former Emperor's flight was decided upon after receipt of the armistice terms at headquarters and the German Government's communication on this subject. Although the Emperor, despite pressure, refused for a time to sign the abdication proclamation on behalf of himself and family, he realized that the end had come.

On hearing the armistice terms, the Emperor bitterly reproached the supreme army command, declaring that he had been misled. One General advised against the Emperor's flight as unworthy. Field Marshal von Hindenburg designated General von Falkenhayn, the former Chief of Staff, to accompany the Emperor, with whom was his youngest son.

Three weeks ago forty large cases arrived at Count Bentinck's castle at Middachten, containing various treasures, including crown jewels.

A very large house, about which there appears to be considerable mystery, has been run up very rapidly this Summer near Arnhem. It is supposed to belong to a rich man named Kroner, but members of the German Legation at The Hague have often run down to see how it was progressing. The house is on a hill surrounded by large grounds, quite shut off, and it is very difficult to get near it. Many people thought that this was built for the Kaiser to retire to.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent learns from high official quarters at The Hague that the question of the ex-Kaiser's internment is under discussion. It is possible that he will be interned in Count Bentinck's castle. A special Cabinet meeting was held to decide whether the royal party and Hindenburg, the incarnation of German militarism, were to be treated as ordinary civilians or as military. The German Minister at The Hague arrived at Eysden yesterday, as also did various Dutch authorities from the Foreign Office.

The ex-Kaiser changed his uniform to civilian clothes. A tremendous crowd assembled during the day, hoping to catch a glimpse of the tragic figures.

The question whether the former Crown Prince actually arrived is still disputed. Rumor says he was detained by German soldiers.

REDS NOW TIGHTEN GRIP ON GERMANY

It is officially reported that there are "no disorders."

The Workmen's and Soldiers' Council, in a dispatch received in Copenhagen telling of the confiscation of the Lokal-Anzeiger and the North German Gazette, says:

"Each of the Socialist factions in Berlin now has a daily newspaper."

This remark carries deep significance, as it is the first recognition of the "Spartacus group," or Bolsheviki, as a distinct Socialist faction. The Spartacus adherents had heretofore represented a small branch of the

The Lokal-Anzeiger, formerly the Independent Socialists. That they are now reckoned as a party for themselves appears to indicate a growth in the Bolshevist strength of such proportions that it must be reckoned with. Emperor's favorite newspaper, is now rechristened the Red Flag, and the former semi-official organ, the North German Gazette, has taken the new title of the International. Vorwärts is the third Berlin paper representing the Socialists.

The Socialists, after a conference with representatives of the former majority party in the Reichstag, definitely refused to permit the bourgeoisie to enter the new Government. The plan is to give the Independent Socialists the Vice Chancellorship and two other Secretarial posts. There are indications that the Independents will demand more, but their demands have not as yet taken definite form.

It is significant that the majority of the multitude of proclamations issued daily are addressed to "Comrades" rather than "Citizens," and that references are no longer made to "the People's Republic," but to "the Socialist Republic."

A Wolff Bureau announcement says that the new Cabinet will consist of Philipp Scheidemann, Vice President of the Reichstag; Herr Landsburg, member of the Reichstag, and Herr Getiert, Socialists, and Hugo Haase, Richard Barth, editor of Vorwärts, and Wilhelm Dittmann, member of the Reichstag, Independents. Each departmental Minister is to be supported by two Socialists, one from each party.

Friedrich Ebert and Hugo Haase will be the Chairmen of the political Cabinet.

A statement issued by the Berlin Workmen's and Soldiers' Council says that all public services have been placed under the control of the Council and that all the leading offices are being filled by "comrades." The administration, it adds, is retained, "but its leaders are inspired with the new spirit of liberty."

The foundation of the new German Republic was proclaimed by Philipp Scheidemann from the steps of the Reichstag Building.

The population of Berlin is willingly obeying orders. Almost all the shops are open.

There were exchanges of shots in Berlin Sunday between soldiers and the few officers remaining loyal to the Hohenzollerns. These exchanges occurred around the Central Hotel and the railway station in the Friedrichstrasse, the Victoria and Astoria Cafés, and the Royal Library, from which the officers fired at the soldiers, some of whom were wounded. Some officers were arrested, while others escaped through underground passages.

The Council decreed that all work should be resumed on Tuesday. The Boerse is closed at present.

Ten thousand railway men have decided to maintain railway traffic in Germany.

In Saxony the Cabinet Ministers have announced that elections will be held in which both men and women will vote.

The Bavarian War Minister has gone to Wedenmark Castle, to which the royal family has retired, to induce the King to release officers and soldiers from their military oath.

The Provisional Government, composed of all parties, formed at Karlsruhe, has issued a proclamation announcing that Baden will remain a part of the German Empire.

GERMAN SOLDIERS RACING FOR BORDER

Some Allied Troops Disconsolate Because They Cannot Chase Enemy Further.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE AND BELGIUM, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—All day long the rearguard troops of the shattered and defeated German armies opposite the British front have been racing for their own border as if their lives depended on reaching the Fatherland by nightfall.

Behind them the victorious allied troops rested on their arms after the cessation of hostilities at 11 o'clock. Some of them were disconsolate because they were unable to pursue the enemy further, but all were glad for a chance to catch their breath after the wearying chase of recent days.

Tonight the cloud-laden skies along the whole front were flaring and blinking with varied lights sent up by Tommy Atkins as a peace greeting to his distant comrades and a message of triumph to the broken graycoats to the east.

BRITISH PRESS GIVES THANKS.

Absence of Vindictiveness Characterizes Editorial Comment.

LONDON, Nov. 12, (British Wireless Service.)—The English newspapers today are filled with thanksgiving at the great victory achieved by the Allies, and pay glowing tributes to the forces which have "brought peace and justice to the world." In the editorials there is no sign of vindictiveness toward the German people, although the question is frequently discussed as to the "merciless peace" that Germany would have imposed if she had succeeded in forcing her will against the moral forces of the world. The newspapers assert that the principles of the armistice terms are of a far different character from the terms Germany hoped to dictate.

The writers generally express the desire that Germany will soon obtain a stable and settled Government for the reorganisation of her new and free life.

The Times says: "The 'cease fire' of yesterday must be final and universal."

The Daily Mail says the armistice marks the end of the war and the complete and overwhelming triumph of the cause of right.

"The Allies have triumphed, not because of their strength, though that was immense, but because they fought for a great and noble cause," The Daily Mail asserts.

"The terms of the armistice may be humiliating," says The Daily Express, "but the offense against Europe has cried to heaven for vengeance. The humiliation must be tempered by the knowledge that without a German defeat German liberty would never have come into being."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"The terms of the armistice make it impossible for Germany to resume fighting and brand ineffaceably upon the mind of her people the defeat of her war makers."

CHAMBER SENDS GREETINGS

A. E. Marling Cables Congratulations to London, Paris, and Rome.

Alfred E. Marling, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, sent the following cable message to the Presidents of the Chambers of Commerce at London, Paris, and Rome:

"New York Chamber of Commerce extends congratulations at victorious ending of the war for justice and right. We look forward with high hopes and full confidence to our future personal and business relations with our brave allies. Our joint suffering and our joint victory have made enduring bonds of friendship never to be broken."

REDS SEIZE HELIGOLAND AND NORTHERN FLEET

Soldiers' Council Formed at the Front to Submit Demands —Trouble at Antwerp.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 11.—The entire German northern fleet and the island base of Heligoland are in the hands of Soldiers' Councils, a telegram from Bremen states.

A Soldiers' Council has been formed at the front, and will submit its demands to Field Marshal von Hindenburg tomorrow. This information is conveyed in a Wolff Bureau dispatch from German General Headquarters received here today.

Hindenburg, according to a telegram from the same semi-official bureau, remains at Main Headquarters and adheres to the new Government. The telegram adds that Crown Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, commander of the German northern army group, has not fled, as some reports have declared.

Serious trouble has broken out in the garrison at Antwerp, according to the Telegraaf.

German troops at the Beverloo camp, in Belgium, have mutinied, and are marching with their guns toward Holland.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Control of the German fleet by revolutionists, factions of whom are reported to have urged resistance to the Allies and the United States, may interfere with the carrying out of the amended armistice provision that vessels designated to be interned shall be ready to leave German ports seven days after the cessation of hostilities.

"That Is A Clever Ad"

After Douglas and Lincoln debated people said—"What a wonderful orator Douglas is—but Lincoln was right."

Most people think the cleverest advertising is the best advertising.

It may be, but the chances are always against unsupported cleverness.

A cocktail, a cigar, a patent thumb tack or some bawble of inconsequence, a quip, the turn of an adroit phrase or a striking illustration may effect the sale. For goods or service of any moment, the advertising must be honest, must be sincere if it is to be lastingly effective.

The greater the importance of the investment, the less opportunity for charming by-play.

Never since the Civil War have our people been as responsive to the unvarnished appeal of sincerity.

In these times when we are weighing all values anew, lies the opportunity for goods or services that are worthy.

MAIMED FIGHTERS PARADED

A Faceless Soldier Waving a Flag Furnished One of the Notes of Tragedy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—It was to the accompaniment of great guns firing a salute to Victory along the banks of the Seine that Premier Clemenceau, speaking from the tribune of the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon, told France the extent of the great triumph of the Allies. At that moment those other guns in the bitter action of four long years, from the North Sea to the Swiss frontier, had been silent for five hours, or since 11 o'clock this morning.

Paris had known definitely from that hour that the armistice had been signed and that the fighting had ceased, but the great moment of the great day had been reserved for the time when Clemenceau should make the declaration in Parliament and read the conditions of the armistice.

He had hardly begun when the crowd in the Chamber heard the muffled booming of guns outside and knew that all France was rejoicing. There were no formal preliminaries. No attempt at ceremony was needed or undertaken to add anything to one of the most impressive sessions in the history of all Parliament. The Premier mounted the tribune almost immediately after entering the Chamber. He waited for the end of the tumult of applause, and then, without a word of introduction, began reading those conditions which were being made simultaneously in all allied capitals.

In the terms themselves was the best in the terms themselves was the best possible oratory—victory as read by this wonderful old man of nearly 80. This Clemenceau, this "Tiger of France," who has known so well how to save his people. It was the Clemenceau who as a member of this same Chamber nearly fifty years ago voted against surrender to the triumphant Germany.

Often he was stopped by applause which even blotted out the sound of the guns—when, for example, he read that Alsace-Lorraine was coming back, that the submarines were to be given up, that the victorious troops were to go to the Rhine.

Only once, and then for only an instant, did this master of sarcasm allow any sarcasm to creep into his voice. It was when he had occasion to refer to the Imperial Government of Germany. Laughter swept across the Chamber, shared in even by that sparse group of the Extreme Right, known as Royalists. There was for the moment, at least, no Right, Left, or Centre. France as represented in that Chamber was united in her hour of triumph.

As he came down the tribune the venerable Premier had to stop on his way to the Ministers' bench and shake hands with his enemies, the Socialists, who crowded about him. Yesterday they had called him a dictator and probably will again tomorrow, but not today.

Applause and cheering were not enough for this session of the Chamber. The Deputies as they rose to adjourn spontaneously began singing the Marseillaise. The hymn was taken up by the galleries and by the crowds in the corridors. It spread to the vast throng standing in the twilight outside on the river banks and bridges, and soon all Paris was singing its song of victory.

Not the least wonderful thing about this wonderful day has been the restraint of the Parisians till the moment they were sure of the news. Before then no flags were shown, but the transformation was magical. Paris became all color in a moment—all color, song and rejoicing. There was not a parade; there were a thousand parades in all the great boulevards and all the little streets—nothing formal, organized in advance; just a spontaneous rushing together of joyous people.

One-legged men had the flags of the Allies tied to their crutches by thoughtful young shopwomen, who poured out of the stores to join the parades. Men and women wept as well as laughed, not with hysterical excitement, but honest emotion. The familiar phrase, heard everywhere—"The war is won"—might begin with a laugh, but ended with a sob, and nobody could feel sure what tricks the lump in his throat might play in a moment.

To me the tragedy of this boulevard picture was a soldier who had lost his face in battle and had been discharged from a hospital—one of those which "rebuild" faces. God only knows whether he was laughing or crying—nobody will ever know—but he was waving a flag, and for a moment at least had forgotten the hideousness to which he was doomed.

All day and everywhere the rejoicing went on, and it will continue all night. From the Bastile to the Madeleine, down the Rue Royale to the great corral of captured German guns in the moonlit Place de la Concorde, up the Champs Elysées across the many bridges, singing, weeping, laughing.

Deputies Cheer and Weep.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—The Chamber of Deputies has seldom display such unanimity as it did today in cheering each article of the German armistice terms as it was read by Premier Clemenceau. As soon as the Premier had read a clause, the entire Chamber jumped to its feet and cheered. Generally the tumult was so great that the voice of "the Tiger" was lost in the uproar. Only once or twice were there purposeful interruptions by the Socialists.

After reading the conditions, the Premier excused himself from making a lengthy address, but said:

"In the name of the people of France and in the name of the Government of France, let us salute Alsace-Lorraine!"

There was prolonged cheering, after which the Premier added feelingly:

"Let us honor the great army who died!"

Revised Text of the Armistice, Showing Many Important Changes

The Altered Clauses Are Printed in Dark-face Type.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The corrected text of the armistice between Germany and the Allies and the United States, containing many important changes made by cable, follows:

I.—Military Clauses on Western Front

One—Cessation of operations by land and in the air six hours after the signature of the armistice.

Two—Immediate evacuation of invaded countries: Belgium, France, Alsace-Lorraine, Luxemburg, so ordered as to be completed within fourteen days from the signature of the armistice. German troops which have not left the above-mentioned territories within the period fixed will become prisoners of war. Occupation by the allied and United States forces jointly will keep pace with evacuation in these areas. All movements of evacuation and occupation will be regulated in accordance with a note annexed to the stated terms.

Three—Repatriation beginning at once to be completed within fifteen days of all the inhabitants of the countries above enumerated, (including hostages, persons under trial or convicted.)

Four—Surrender in good condition by the German Armies of the following war material: Five thousand guns, (2,500 heavy, and 2,500 field.) 25,000 machine guns, 3,000 minenwerfer, 1,700 airplanes (fighters, bombers—firstly, all of the D 7's and all the night bombing machines). The above to be delivered in situ to the allied and United States troops in accordance with the detailed conditions laid down in the note (annexure No. 1) drawn up at the moment of the signing of the armistice.

Five—Evacuation by the German armies of the countries on the left bank of the Rhine. The countries on the left bank of the Rhine shall be administered by the local troops of occupation. The occupation of these territories will be carried out by allied and United States garrisons holding the principal crossings of the Rhine, (Mayence, Coblentz, Cologne,) together with the bridgeheads at these points of a thirty-kilometer radius on the right bank and by garrisons similarly holding the strategic points of the regions. A neutral zone shall be reserved on the right bank of the Rhine between the stream and a line drawn parallel to the bridgeheads and to the stream and at a distance of ten kilometers from the frontier of Holland up to the frontier of Switzerland. The evacuation by the enemy of the Rhinelands (left and right bank) shall be so ordered as to be completed within a further period of sixteen days, in all, thirty-one days after the signing of the armistice. All the movements of evacuation or occupation are regulated by the note (annexure No. 1) drawn up at the moment of the signing of the armistice.

Six—In all territories evacuated by the enemy there shall be no evacuation of inhabitants; no damage or harm shall be done to the persons or property of the inhabitants. No person shall be prosecuted for offenses of participation in war measures prior to the signing of the armistice. No destruction of any kind shall be committed. Military establishments of all kinds shall be delivered intact, as well as military stores of food, munitions, and equipment, not removed during the time fixed for evacuation. Stores of food of all kinds for the civil population, cattle, &c., shall be left in situ. Industrial establishments shall not be impaired in any way and their personnel shall not be removed.

Seven—Roads and means of communication of every kind, railroads, waterways, main roads, bridges, telegraphs, telephones, shall be in no manner impaired. All civil and military personnel at present employed on them shall remain. Five thousand locomotives and 150,000 wagons in good working order, with all necessary spare parts and fittings, shall be delivered to the associated powers within the period fixed in annexure No. 2, and total of which shall not exceed thirty-one days. There shall likewise be delivered 5,000 motor lorries (camione automobiles) in good order, within the period of thirty-six days. The railways of Alsace-Lorraine shall be handed over within the period of thirty-one days, together with pre-war personnel and material. Further, the material necessary for the working of railways in the countries on the left bank of the Rhine shall be left in situ. All stores of coal and material for the upkeep of permanent ways, signals, and repair shops shall be left in situ. These stores shall be maintained by Germany insofar as concerns the working of the railroads in the countries on the left bank of the Rhine. All barges taken from the Allies shall be restored to them. The note, annexure No. 2, regulates the details of these measures.

Eight—The German command shall be responsible for revealing within the period of forty-eight hours after the signing of the armistice all mines or delayed action fuses on territory evacuated by the German troops and shall assist in their discovery and destruction. It also shall reveal all destructive measures that may have been taken (such as poisoning or polluting of springs and wells, &c.) All under penalty of reprisals.

Nine—The right of requisition shall be exercised by the allied and United States armies in all occupied territories, subject to regulation of accounts with those whom it may concern. The upkeep of the troops of occupation in the Rhineland (excluding Alsace-Lorraine) shall be charged to the German Government.

Ten—The immediate repatriation without reciprocity, according to detailed conditions which shall be fixed, of all Allied and United States prisoners of war, including persons under trial or convicted. The Allied Powers and the United States shall be able to dispose of them as they wish. This condition annuls the previous conventions on the subject of the exchange of prisoners of war, including the one of July, 1918, in course of ratification. However, the repatriation of German prisoners of war interned in Holland and in Switzerland shall continue as before. The repatriation of German prisoners of war shall be regulated at the conclusion of the preliminaries of peace.

Eleven—Sick and wounded who cannot be removed from evacuated territory will be cared for by German personnel, who will be left on the spot with the medical material required.

II.—Disposition Relative to the Eastern Frontiers of Germany.

Twelve—All German troops at present in the territories which before belonged to Austria-Hungary, Rumania, Turkey, shall withdraw immediately within the frontiers of Germany as they existed on August First, Nineteen Fourteen. All German troops at present in the territories which before the war belonged to Russia shall likewise withdraw within the frontiers of Germany, defined as above, as soon as the Allies, taking into account the internal situation of these territories, shall decide that the time for this has come.

Thirteen—Evacuation by German troops to begin at once, and all German instructors, prisoners, and civilians as well as military agents now on the territory of Russia (as defined before 1914) to be recalled.

Fourteen—German troops to cease at once all requisitions and seizures and any other undertaking with a view to obtaining supplies intended for Germany in Rumania and Russia, (as defined on Aug. 1, 1914.)

Fifteen—Renunciation of the treaties of Bucharest and Brest-Litovsk and of the supplementary treaties.

Sixteen—The Allies shall have free access to the territories evacuated by the Germans on their eastern frontier, either through Danzig, or by the Vistula, in order to convey supplies to the populations of those territories and for the purpose of maintaining order.

III.—Clause Concerning East Africa.

Seventeen—Evacuation by all German forces operating in East Africa within a period to be fixed by the Allies.

IV.—General Clauses.

Eighteen—Repatriation, without reciprocity, within a maximum period of one month in accordance with detailed conditions hereafter to be fixed of all interned civilians, including hostages, (persons?) under trial or convicted, belonging to the allied or associated powers other than those enumerated in Article Three.

Nineteen—The following financial conditions are required: Reparation for damage done. While such armistice lasts no public securities shall be removed by the enemy which can serve as a pledge to the Allies for the recovery or reparation for war losses. Immediate restitution of the cash deposit in the national bank of Belgium, and in general immediate return of all documents, specie, stocks, shares, paper money, together with plant for the issue thereof, touching public or private interests in the invaded countries. Restitution of the Russian and Rumanian gold yielded to Germany or taken by that power. This gold to be delivered in trust to the Allies until the signature of peace.

V.—Naval Conditions.

Twenty—Immediate cessation of all hostilities at sea and definite information to be given as to the location and movements of all German ships. Notification to be given to neutrals that freedom of navigation in all territorial waters is given to the naval and mercantile marines of the allied and associated powers, all questions of neutrality being waved.

Twenty-one—All naval and mercantile marine prisoners of the allied and associated powers in German hands to be returned without reciprocity.

Twenty-two—Surrender to the Allies and United States of all submarines, (including submarine cruisers and all mine-laying submarines,) now existing, with their complete armament and equipment, in ports which shall be specified by the Allies and United States. Those which cannot take the sea shall be disarmed of the personnel and material and shall remain under the supervision of the Allies and the United States. The submarines which are ready for the sea shall be prepared to leave the German ports as soon as orders shall be received by wireless for their voyage to the port designated for their delivery, and the remainder at the earliest possible moment. The conditions of this article shall be carried into effect within the period of fourteen days after the signing of the armistice.

Twenty-three—German surface warships which shall be designated by the Allies and the United States shall be immediately disarmed and thereafter interned in neutral ports or in default of them in allied ports to be designated by the Allies and the United States. They will there remain under the supervision of the Allies and of the United States, only caretakers being left on board. The following warships are designated by the Allies: Six battle cruisers, ten battleships, eight light cruisers, (including two mine layers,) fifty destroyers of the most modern types. All other surface warships (including river craft) are to be concentrated in German naval bases to be designated by the Allies and the United States and are to be completely disarmed and classed under the supervision of the Allies and the United States. The military armament of all ships of the auxiliary fleet shall be put on shore. All vessels designated to be interned shall be ready to leave the German ports seven days after the signing of the armistice. Directions for the voyage will be given by wireless.

Twenty-four—The Allies and the United States of America shall have the right to sweep up all mine fields and obstructions laid by Germany outside German territorial waters, and the positions of these are to be indicated.

Twenty-five—Freedom of access to and from the Baltic to be given to the naval and mercantile marines of the allied and associated powers. To secure this the Allies and the United States of America shall be empowered to occupy all German forts, fortifications, batteries, and defense works of all kinds in all the entrances from the Cattegat into the Baltic, and to sweep up all mines and obstructions within and without German territorial waters, without any question of neutrality being raised, and the positions of all such mines and obstructions are to be indicated.

Twenty-six—The existing blockade conditions set up by the allied and associated powers are to remain unchanged, and all German merchant ships found at sea are to remain liable to capture. The Allies and the United States should give consideration to the provisioning of Germany during the armistice to the extent recognized as necessary.

Twenty-seven—All naval aircraft are to be concentrated and immobilized in German bases to be specified by the Allies and the United States of America.

Twenty-eight—In evacuating the Belgian coast and ports Germany shall abandon in situ and in fact all port and river navigation material, all merchant ships, tugs, lighters, all naval aeronautic apparatus, material and supplies, and all arms, apparatus and supplies of every kind.

Twenty-nine—All Black Sea ports are to be evacuated by Germany; all Russian war vessels of all descriptions seized by Germany in the Black Sea are to be handed over to the Allies and the United States of America; all neutral merchant vessels seized are to be released; all warlike and other materials of all kinds seized in those ports are to be returned and German materials as specified in Clause Twenty-eight are to be abandoned.

Thirty—All merchant vessels in German hands belonging to the allied and associated powers are to be restored in ports to be specified by the Allies and the United States of America without reciprocity.

Thirty-one—No destruction of ships or of materials to be permitted before evacuation, surrender, or restoration.

Thirty-two—The German Government will notify the neutral Governments of the world, and particularly the Governments of Norway, Sweden, Denmark, and Holland, that all restrictions placed on the trading of their vessels with the allied and associated countries, whether by the German Government or by private German interests, and whether in return for specific concessions, such as the export of shipbuilding materials, or not, are immediately canceled.

Thirty-three—No transfers of German merchant shipping of any description to any neutral flag are to take place after signature of the armistice.

VI.—Duration of Armistice.

Thirty-four—The duration of the armistice is to be thirty days, with option to extend. During this period if its clauses are not carried into execution the armistice may be denounced by one of the contracting parties, which must give warning forty-eight hours in advance. It is understood that the execution of Articles 3 and 18 shall not warrant the denunciation of the armistice on the ground of insufficient execution within a period fixed, except in the case of bad faith in carrying them into execution. In order to assure the execution of this convention under the best conditions, the principle of a permanent international armistice commission is admitted. This commission will act under the authority of the allied military and naval Commanders in Chief.

VII.—The Limit for Reply.

Thirty-five—This armistice to be accepted or refused by Germany within seventy-two hours of notification.

This armistice has been signed the Eleventh of November, Nineteen Eighteen, at 5 o'clock French time.

that the neutral zone on the right bank of the Rhine should be ten kilometers wide from the frontier of Holland to the frontier of Switzerland.

Article 5, however, retained the provision that the Allies should be permitted to occupy the territory within a thirty-kilometer radius around the Rhine cities of Mayence, Coblentz, and Cologne. While is is not exactly clear, the modified Article 5 apparently gives the Allies control of territory beyond the eastern limits of the neutral zone to a distance of twenty kilometers eastward from the Rhine cities named.

In Article 4 the original provision that Germany should surrender 30,000 machine guns and 2,000 airplanes is modified so as to require the surrender of 25,000 machine guns and 1,700 airplanes.

Article 16, which, as originally prepared, provided for free access by the Allies to the territories evacuated by the Germans on their eastern or Russian frontier, has been modified in the terms as accepted by Germany so as to provide that instead of permitting this free access for the purpose of conveying supplies to the populations of these territories, "or for any other purpose," it shall be limited to conveying supplies to the populations, "and for the purpose of maintaining order."

This modification was probably made so as to give assurance to the Russians that the Allies would have no selfish purpose in entering Russian territory should the occasion arise.

Article 17 provided for the unconditional capitulation of all German forces operating in East Africa within one month. As modified it provides for the "evacuation" of all these forces "within a period to be fixed by the Allies."

One of the most interesting and important changes made affects the surrender of U-boats. It was provided in the original draft—the draft read to Congress yesterday by President Wilson—that the Germans should surrender to the Allies 160 submarines. This article was so changed as to compel Germany to surrender all her submarines. It is provided also, as a new condition, that the entire German submarine fleet shall be surrendered within fourteen days after the signing of the armistice, that is, by Nov. 25.

With reference to the six battle cruisers, ten battleships, eight light cruisers, and fifty destroyers to be turned over by Germany to the Allies for internment in neutral or allied ports, the original armistice draft was changed so as to provide, in addition, that the military armament of all ships of Germany's auxiliary fleet should be put on shore, (the original form having provided that they should be "disarmed,") and that all vessels to be interned shall be ready to leave German ports seven days after the signing of the armistice, that is, on Nov. 18.

Evidently the allied Governments were impressed by the appeal of the German parliamentaires that if all their merchant ships were taken from them they would be unable to bring in supplies to feed the starving populations.

An appeal of similar purport has come to Secretary Lansing from Dr. Solf, the German Minister for Foreign Affairs. While declining to change the existing blockade conditions and permit German ships to ply the sea, the allied armistice representatives added to the appropriate article a provision that "the Allies and the United States would give consideration to the provisioning of Germany during the armistice to the extent recognized as necessary."

Article 28 was changed so as to be more drastic. It provided originally for the abandonment by Germany of all her ships, harbor materials, aircraft, arms, armament, &c., on the Belgian coasts. As changed it extends this provision so as to include everything in the way of German material and supplies on the Belgian coasts.

Article 34, which provided originally that the armistice was to be for thirty days, with option to extend, was amended so as to recognize the application of the principle of a permanent international armistice commission, although the fixed duration of the armistice is left at thirty days. As amended, the appropriate article apparently provides that a permanent international armistice commission shall be appointed.

With reference to prisoners of war, covered in Article 10, while the amended document retains the provision that all allied prisoners of war held by Germany shall be surrendered without reciprocity, it is set forth that persons under trial or convicted now in German hands shall be surrendered and that the repatriation of German prisoners of war interned in Holland and in Switzerland shall continue as before.

AMERICAN CONSUL SEIZED BY BOLSHEVIKI

Treadwell Arrested at Tashkent on Moscow Order Against All Allied Representatives.

By CARL W. ACKERMAN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

OMSK, Siberia, Nov. 11. — Roger Treadwell, the American Consul at Tashkent, was arrested on Oct. 27, according to wireless messages intercepted here. Treadwell is held under Bolshevist orders sent from Moscow.

The order contained in the Moscow radio to Tashkent instructed the officials there to compel all aliens to register, to imprison all subjects of enemy powers except women and children, to arrest all official representatives of foreign powers and to undertake decisive measures against Britishers, and especially the Indian Colonel Biel.

The following day Tashkent by wireless informed Moscow that Consul Treadwell had been arrested, but that the British Army officer had disappeared with his secretary and that the German mission had been set free.

The day American Consul Gretty here received this information from the Russian Government a courier arrived from Tashkent bearing Treadwell's reports to the State Department dated to Oct. 30. This is the last official word from Treadwell.

11 More Survivors of the Dumaru.

ROME, Nov. 12.—A solemn requiem Nolan, six Americans, and two Filipinos, survivors of the United States Shipping Board steamer Dumaru, arrived today at Legaspi in an open boat. The Dumaru was struck by lightning and set afire on Oct. 10 last and abandoned when about twenty-two miles off the Island of Guam. A cable dispatch from Honolulu on Nov. 8 reported the arrival of four survivors at that port.

gates. Many people have assumed that Colonel House would be the chairman of the American delegation.

In allied diplomatic circles here today it was said that should President Wilson represent the United States at the peace conference he undoubtedly would be selected to preside. It was suggested in these quarters that the allied Governments might extend a formal invitation to President Wilson to attend and become presiding officer.

An official dispatch received in Washington from Paris today said:

"The Premiers of the Allied Powers will shortly assemble in Versailles to examine the different problems relating to peace. It is quite probable that the future international conference will take place in Versailles."

Nothing has yet been settled with regard to the time the conference will meet.

It is understood to be the desire of the Allies and the United States that there shall be no undue delay.

The Armistice Renewable.

The armistice expires in thirty days, but it can be renewed, and it was believed today that it would be renewed, and that the peace conference would not be able to meet before January, possibly the latter part of that month.

According to one well-informed French observer here, there are two places from which the choice of the seat of the peace conference will be made, these being Versailles and Basle. Switzerland, he declared, is the only neutral country which might possibly be considered. Versailles was declared to be the only likely meeting place if the peace congress should be held in an allied country.

LONDON JUBILATION LIKE OUR NEW YEAR'S

King's Visit to Lord Mayor Is Signal for Demonstration by Noisy Crowds.

GIRLS DANCE IN THE STREET

Parties in Well-Known Restaurants Find Food Rules a Curb on Their Jubilation.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—King George has just driven along Fleet Street on his way to the Mansion House amid cheers. The crowds are struggling to approach the royal carriages and shake hands with the head of Imperial Democracy. The church bells are pealing merry chimes. The clockmakers are hard at work on "Big Ben" at Westminster, whose tones have not been heard since early in the war, but, with the din in the streets, few Cockneys will hear the sound of the Bow Bells tonight.

The King, who was accompanied by the Queen and Princess Mary, was in uniform. He drove to the Mansion House in an open carriage, escorted by half a dozen mounted policemen, whose chief task was to clear the way. The royal visit to congratulate the Lord Mayor and citizens of London was quite unexpected by the crowds, but it was a truly royal progress.

The drizzle, which started as the King paid his visit to the Lord Mayor, increased later, and by the time the lights went up—not all of them, but enough to make the streets brilliant by comparison with other nights—the rain had saved the police much tribulation by driving the crowds home.

Many thousands were still out, careless of the weather, but the dangers of crushes were averted in the London celebration. While it lasted it was remarkable for its impromptu character, its wholehearted merriment and infectious joyousness. It was a people's fête, but all sorts of staid, sober persons were caught in it, and rollicked with the rest.

Soldiers in the Limelight.

Everywhere the soldier reigned, and the American boys in khaki were having the time of their lives. Beneath the gray arches of the Horse Guards barracks stood a solitary, splendid sentinel in the rich and scarlet trappings of the guards. There came a maiden softly, slyly by, and caressed gently his face with a flag she carried. Passers-by, as well as the object of these attentions, laughed a happy laugh. It was the real spirit of the day.

"Well, boys," said a barrister to two Australian soldiers, "you've brought it off all right."

"Well, the old country is hard to beat," was the reply.

As evening drew on, the rain ceased and the streets in the centre of London became more crowded than ever. But for lack of horns and rattles it was for all the world like a Times Square New Year's celebration. Spread over three miles from St. Padl's to Oxford Circus and down Whitehall to Victoria the streets were full from curb to curb with laughing, jostling, happy people, and traffic difficulties were solved in the simplest fashion by turning back nearly all buses.

The police eliminated themselves by seeking dark corners and smiling on a scene, which was very convenient. If any little group of munition girls felt inclined to dance, they danced, whether it was in the middle of the Strand or the corner of Haymarket. When a military band appeared—whence nobody knew or cared—it stopped in the centre of St. James's Street and gave a concert

Since smartly dressed folk were celebrating at restaurants, ordinary people celebrated also by standing outside and cheering each automobile as it drew up. It was all absolutely good-tempered and orderly, and no one could object to a knot of New Zealanders letting off a Maori yell, remarkably like the American college variety; and if workmen cleaning off the paint from the street arc lights were embarrassed by the way they were cheered, it all added to the brightness of the scene.

Firecrackers and Cheers.

In Trafalgar Square the crowd seized on the base of the Nelson statue, swarmed on the lions, and threw lighted firecrackers into the throng below. The people dodged them and cheered back; and so through all the street was fun, good temper, and light-heartedness.

Only in some of the best known restaurants was there disappointment. Hundreds of young officers and war workers hurried there, determined for once to have a really good time. There were lights, music, and a well-dressed crowd. But where was food? Even a first-class hotel in these war times cannot manufacture food because the armistice is declared; and supplies ran short and the wine bins were emptied long before the last of the dinner guests arrived. Still, they could sing "God Save the King" and "The Star-Spangled Banner," and they did.

REPORT WOMAN LEADER COMING FROM RUSSIA

Mme. Breshkovskaya, "Grandmother of the Revolution," Now Said to Have Escaped Execution.

Mme. Catherine Breshkovskaya, known as the "grandmother of the Russian revolution," who, it was reported, was executed by the Bolsheviki on Oct. 27, is alive and on her way to the United States, according to a statement made last night by A. J. Sack, Director of the Russian Information Bureau in this country.

Mr. Sack said that this information was contained in a cable message received by the Russian Embassy at Washington from the All-Russian Provisional Government, sitting at Omsk. It is said that she is making the journey on the invitation of American friends, many of whom live in Boston.

Mme. Breshkovskaya, who is 73 years old, has spent forty-four years in Russian and Siberian prisons as a political offender. Freed at Irkutsk by the revolution of March, 1917, her journey westward was like a triumphal progress from city to city, reaching its climax at Petrograd. Virtually her first words were an appeal to the people to remain loyal to the Allies. This appeal she repeated again and again as the Bolsheviki rose to power.

MONTENEGRO IN REVOLT.

Insurrection May Be Against Party of the King, Who Is in France.

PARIS, Nov. 8.—A general insurrection has broken out in Montenegro, the Temps says.

The Austrian forces of occupation have withdrawn from Montenegro, and it is probable that the reported insurrection may be a conflict between elements of the Montenegrin population to gain control pending the return of the Montenegrin Government, which has been in France since early in 1916. Much hostility to King Nicholas has been reported at various times.

Philippine Mission Is Coming.

MANILA, Nov. 12.—The Philippine Congress today named a commission to make a study of the future permanent status of the Philippine Government. In accordance with this action, a commission is to be sent immediately to America to confer with officials of the United States and to plan for maintenance of close commercial relations.

ALBERT BALLIN DIED OF APOPLECTIC STROKE

Death Scarcely Noticed in German Press — Long in the Kaiser's Disfavor.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 12.—Albert Ballin died of an apoplectic stroke at Hamburg on Saturday after a short illness. There is no little tragedy in the fact that his death passes practically unnoticed in the German press. The Wolff Bureau did not telegraph abroad the news of the death of one who once occupied such an eminent position in the world's commerce.

Ballin was undoubtedly a victim of the great war. When it broke out, he had his doubts about the rightness of Germany's action, but, believing the war would be of short duration, he sided with the Pan Germans and went far as an advocate that the peace terms should include German naval stations down the Channel as far as Brest.

As the struggle dragged on, however, and as ruin stared his great enterprise more and more directly in the face, Ballin's views changed. Time and again he sought out the Kaiser and his advisers, in order to use what influence he had toward bringing the war to a conclusion. He met with no success.

When the unrestricted U-boat war began, he made his last effort to drive reason into William II. and prominent members of the Government, but again without success. So outspoken was he on that occasion that he quarreled with the Kaiser, and the last time his Majesty visited Hamburg a hint was conveyed to Ballin that it would be well for him not to appear at the ceremonies connected with the visit.

Gradually the strain told on him, and for months his health had been indifferent. For some weeks before his death he was confined to his bed.

KING GIVES THANKS TO BRITISH FIGHTERS

Sends Messages of Congratulation to Soldiers, Sailors, and the Empire.

VICTORY IN GREAT CRUSADE

He Declares the End Now Achieved for Which Britain Drew the Sword.

LONDON, Nov. 12, (British Wireless Service.)—King George has sent messages of congratulation to the empire and the fighting forces. To the empire he says:

"At the moment when the armistice was signed, bringing, I trust, a final end to the hostilities which have convulsed the whole world for more than four years, I desire to send a message of greeting and heartfelt gratitude to my overseas peoples, whose wonderful efforts and sacrifices have contributed so greatly to secure victory, which is now won.

"Together we have borne the strenuous burdens in the fight for justice and liberty. Together we can now rejoice at the revelation of those great aims for which we entered the struggle. The whole empire pledged its word not to sheathe the sword until our end was achieved. That pledge is now redeemed.

"The outbreak of the war found the whole empire one. I rejoice to think that the end of the struggle finds the empire still more closely united by common resolve, held firm through all vicissitudes, by suffering and sacrifice, by dangers and triumphs shared together.

"The hour is one of solemn thanksgiving and of gratitude to God, whose divine providence has preserved us through all perils and crowned our arms with victory. Let us bear our triumph in the same spirit of fortitude and self-control with which we have borne our dangers.

"To the army the King expresses his pride at the brilliant success which has crowned more than four years of effort and endurance.

"Germany, our most formidable enemy, who planned the war to gain supremacy of the world, full of pride in her armed strength and of contempt for the small British army of that day, has now been forced to acknowledge defeat," he says. "I rejoice that in this achievement the British forces, now grown from a small beginning to the finest army in our history, have borne so gallant and distinguished a part. Soldiers of the British Empire, in France and Belgium the prowess of your arms, as great in retreat as in victory, has won the admiration of all—friends and foes—and has now by a happy historic fate enabled you to conclude the campaign by capturing Mons, where your predecessors of 1914 shed the first British blood. Between that date and this you have traversed a long and weary road. Defeat has more than once stared you in the face. Your ranks have been thinned again and again by wounds, sickness, and death. But your faith has never faltered; your courage has never failed; your hearts have never known defeat. With your allied comrades you have won the day.

"Others of you have fought in more distant fields, in the mountains and plains of Italy, in rugged Balkan ranges, under the burning sun of Palestine, Mesopotamia, and Africa, amid the snows of Russia and Siberia, and by the shores of the Dardanelles.

"I pray that God, who has been pleased to grant a victorious end to this great crusade for justice and right, will prosper and bless our efforts in the immediate future to secure for the generations to come the hard-won blessings of freedom and peace."

This was the message to the air forces:

"Our far-flung squadrons have flown over home waters and foreign seas, the western and Italian battlelines, the Rhineland, the mountains of Macedonia, Gallipoli, and Palestine, the plains of Mesopotamia, the forests and swamps of East Africa, the northwest frontier of India, and the deserts of Arabia, Sinai, and Darfur. The work of the Royal Air Force, with its wonderful expansion and development, will ever remain one of the most remarkable achievements of the great war."

In his message on the work of the naval forces the King says:

"Never in its history has the Royal Navy done greater things or better sustained its old glories and the chivalry of the sea. With full and grateful hearts the peoples of the British Empire salute the white, red, and blue ensigns and those who have given their lives for the flag. I am proud to have served in the navy; I am prouder still to be its head on this memorable occasion."

LODGE WARNS AGAINST NEW PRO-GERMAN MOVE

Urges Nation to Show No Sentimentality to German People, Who Are to Blame for War.

BOSTON, Nov. 12. — Discussing the problems immediately confronting the Government at a victory celebration at the City Club tonight, United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge warned against a new pacifist and pro-German campaign both in this country and in England, which, he said, was sure to follow the signing of the armistice.

"American opinion," he said, "demanded an armistice that constituted unconditional surrender. The American people may now have the kind of peace they wish, if it is demanded by them and the press. The peace they want is a peace enforced by physical guarantees."

Senator Lodge enumerated the physical guarantees which he has repeatedly described in the Senate and elsewhere, but added his opinion that the German colonies ought not to be returned to Germany, and that enough territory should be taken to restore ancient Poland in the great State of German, Russian, and Austrian Poles, and form a barrier between Germany and Russia extending to the shores of the Baltic. Then, he said, it would matter little what kind of a Government was finally set up in Germany. It would be powerless to repeat the crimes of the Hohenzollerns.

The German people, Senator Lodge said, could not escape responsibility by shifting the blame to the Emperor whom they threw over two days ago.

"There never was a time," he said, "when the armies and the people could not have put an end to the war. They regarded war as an industry. In their school books they taught that Germany was an empire of Central Europe surrounded by enemies. The German people wanted to win the war just as much as the Emperor did. They brought it on deliberately. They backed the war.

"The German people adhered to the Imperial Government until their armies were beaten in the field. For forty years they boasted 'The Day,' they toasted 'The Day,' and now 'The Day' has come. They must pay indemnities and I advocate taking and holding towns and territory until the indemnities are paid. I stand for sentiment, but not for sentimentality—sentiment which is sentiment degenerated. Sentiment is that which makes a man defend his honor and his home. Sentimentality sends flowers to convicted murderers."

OUR MEN MINGLED WITH FOE AT END

Germany. A new Emperor will succeed."

An uproar immediately arose. The speaker was drowned out by protesting voices. Then the Germans began offering the Americans such news and gossip as they knew. The approach of an officer broke up the conversations.

Tonight the Germans are celebrating peace along the lines by firing flares, rockets, and signal lights. The night is uproarious with their cheering. The victorious Americans are taking it more calmly. Along the front the majority of them are getting a good night's restful sleep.

Behind the lines, in towns brilliantly lighted for the first time in four years, French and Americans are parading the streets arm in arm, singing the "Marseillaise," "The Star-Spangled Banner," and French and American war songs.

Strict Orders to Troops.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES IN FRANCE, Nov. 11, (Associated Press.)—Orders announcing that the armistice between the allied powers and Germany had been signed, and giving directions for the future conduct of allied soldiers along the line, were sent to every corps this morning. They were transmitted to the units in the front ranks. The orders follow:

1. You are informed that hostilities will cease along the whole front at 11 o'clock A. M., Nov. 11, 1918, Paris time.
2. No allied troops will pass the line reached by them at that hour in date until further orders.
3. Division commanders will immediately sketch the location of their front line. This sketch will be returned to headquarters by the courier bearing these orders.
4. All communication with the enemy, both before and after the termination of hostilities, is absolutely forbidden. In case of violation of this order severest disciplinary measures will be immediately taken. Any officer offending will be sent to headquarters under guard.
5. Every emphasis will be laid on the fact that the arrangement is an armistice only, and not a peace.
6. There must not be the slightest relaxation of vigilance. Troops must be prepared at any moment for further operations.
7. Special steps will be taken by all commanders to insure strictest discipline and that all troops be held in readiness fully prepared for any eventuality.
8. Division and brigade commanders will personally communicate these orders to all organizations.

Signal Corps wires, telephones and runners were used in carrying the orders, and so well did the big machine work that even patrol commanders had received the orders well in advance of the hour. Apparently the Germans also had been equally diligent in getting the orders to their front line. Notwithstanding the hard fighting they did Sunday to hold back the Americans, the Germans were able to bring the firing to an abrupt end at the scheduled hour.

Hostilities along the American front ended with a crash of cannon. From their positions north of Stenay to southeast of the town the Americans began to bombard fixed targets. The firing reached a volume at times almost equivalent to a barrage. Two minutes before 11 o'clock the firing dwindled, the last shells shrieking over No Man's Land precisely on time.

When the news of the ending of hostilities arrived at a certain aviation camp, the commander, who had instructed his men the night before to make a reconnoissance, cancelled his orders and informed his fliers that they would not be allowed to cross the German lines. The chief of artillery had given preliminary instructions that the guns should stop firing, but he cancelled the orders in the morning when indignant divisional and brigade commanders said the Germans should be punished for gas attacks on Mouzay and other places.

Another sharp offensive had been planned for today east of the Meuse, where the enemy was to be pushed as far back as possible before the armistice could be signed. Until the receipt of the official orders the army commanders went ahead with their plans as though they had never heard of any armistice talk.

In contrast to the soberness of the Americans was the emotion displayed by their French allies. Many of the French soldiers went about singing and shouting. The Americans, except in rare instances, accepted the situation with the same grimness that has characterized their fighting.

"Well, I don't know," drawled a Lieutenant from Texas, while the artillery was sending its last challenge to the Germans, "but somehow I can't help wondering if we have licked them enough."

Although there was no reason for it, German ruthlessness was still rampant Sunday, stirring the American artillery in the region of Dun-sur-Meuse and Meuzay to greater activity. Six hundred aged men and women and children were in Mouzay when the Germans attacked it with gas. There was only a small detachment of American troops there, and the town no longer was of strategical value. However, it was made the direct target of shells filled with phosgene. The enemy hurled them into the town until every street reeked with gas.

Not contented with this, the Germans again drenched the place with gas last night. Prompt work by the Americans saved most of the civilians from serious consequences.

Poorly clad and showing plainly evidences of malnutrition, the inhabitants crowded about the Americans, kissing their hands and hailing them as deliverers.

The little children between 6 and 10 years spoke German alternately with French. It was the first time they had seen Americans and they showed plainly their amazement.

The last French town to fall into American hands before the armistice went into effect was Stenay. Patrols reported they had found it empty not more than a quarter of an hour before 11 o'clock. American troops rushed through the town and in a few minutes allied flags were beginning to appear from the windows. As the church bell tolled the hour of 11 troops from the 90th Division were pouring into the town.

Stenay's Civilians Grateful.

The greater part of the 800-odd persons still remaining in Stenay were still in their cellars, fearfully awaiting the bombardment which they believed would surely come as the Americans entered the town. Many had yielded to German persuasion or force and had retreated with the enemy. Those few who dared first to venture hesitatingly into the streets greeted the Americans with tears in their eyes and fairly deluged them with questions. The majority seemed too much dazed to be able to understand that fighting had stopped. With tremeling hands they offered coffee and bread to their deliverers.

Perhaps the most important building in Stenay is the boys' school, which was commandeered by the former German Crown Prince as military headquarters. The German military authorities when they moved out stripped the building clean of incriminating papers or documents, leaving only posters, announcements, time tables of trains to Berlin, and other uninteresting papers.

One of the documents, however, was significant in view of the occupation of Stenay and the armistice. It was a long pronouncement from General von Hindenburg issued on Sept. 2 in which he told the Germans that they were not beaten, "never can be beaten, will win gloriously and will have all their desires fulfilled if they resist not only allied bullets and military strength, but allied, especially American, propaganda, dropped daily by aviators and introduced surreptitiously into the fatherland."

AMERICANS' FIRING TERRIFIC.

8,700 Tons of Shells Hurled Into German Lines in Nine Hours.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES NORTHWEST OF VERDUN, Nov. 5. (Associated Press)—Approximately 8,700 tons of shells were fired into the German lines in nine hours by the American artillery when Gen. Pershing's troops resumed their offensive on Nov. 1.

According to artillery experts, the bombardment by the American guns consumed twenty-nine train loads of ammunition in the nine-hour period. It is estimated that each train consisted of thirty cars.

MAURICE SEES NO FLAW IN ARMISTICE TERMS

Says That It Would Have Been Unwise to Insist on a Formal Surrender by Foe.

By Major Gen. SIR FREDERICK B. MAURICE.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The terms of the armistice are so clear as to require little explanation. They obviously are based upon precedent, and in particular upon the precedent of 1871. They are severe and fulfill the essential conditions of any satisfactory armistice in that they make it impossible for the enemy to renew hostilities except by some such mad and desperate freak as a communist rising.

It is obvious that, seeing what the internal conditions of Germany are today and what they may be in the near future, we can relax no precautions. The Allies have now at their disposal a weapon, to enforce the fulfillment of the engagements which the enemy has been called upon to take, such as no victor ever before possessed. With our troops in occupation of the Rhineland, there will be no part of Germany which cannot be reached by our aircraft, which should serve as an adequate warning should any German be mad enough to try to raise the country against the Allies.

Occupation of the Rhineland and Lorraine gives the Allies control of the most important industrial districts of Germany, of her principal coal and iron mines and steel works, including the famous Krupp works at Essen. This is a further, very substantial guarantee, while the stipulations regarding the transfer to the Allies of the large quantities of rolling stock in good order add yet another of no small importance.

From the military point of view, then, there can be no reasonable cavill at the work of the Versailles conference. There may be, and probably are, those who would have wished to see the German Armies lay down the whole of their arms, and Hindenburg compelled to surrender his sword to Marshall Foch, but the outward and visible signs of her defeat are sufficient to impress Germany for all time, and to destroy forever the illusion which she formed in 1870 that war is a profitable business. To go further than this and humiliate the enemy unnecessarily is to sow the seed of future trouble.

It will be noticed that the duration of the armistice is to be thirty-six days, and that the Germans are given thirty-one days to evacuate the Rhineland. As our troops and the Belgians on the Allied left flank have the longest distance to go, it will take some time before they reach Germany, and it also is likely to be some time before they leave it. For it is not very probable that the peace conference will be brief and it may be assumed that we will retain all, or most of, our guarantees until Germany should have fulfilled whatever peace terms may be imposed upon her. In 1871 she retained in occupation French territory until France had paid the last shilling of war indemnity.

It seems probable from the relative position of our armies on the Allied front that it will fall to us to occupy Düsseldorf, Cologne, and Bonn, and possibly also Essen.

THOUGHT AMERICANS VIOLATED ARMISTICE

Germans Protested Blasting by Road Repairers and Received Prompt Reassuring Message.

WITH THE AMERICAN FORCES ON THE MEUSE, Nov. 12, (Associated Press.)—Blasting by American engineers in a road repairing detachment caused the German high command to send a message to the allied high command Monday afternoon contending that the Americans had not ceased hostilities on Nov. 11.

The message sent by wireless to the allied high command was timed 2 P. M. and read:

"On the front of Stenay-Beaumont, along the Meuse, Americans continue [hostilities?] despite conclusion of armistice. Please order the stopping of hostilities."

The American answer to the German message read as follows:

"Received your radio. Orders have been given for the American activities signaled on the Stenay-Beaumont front to cease immediately."

So the engineers did not blast during the remainder of Monday afternoon. Early this morning, however, they resumed their blasting.

The engineers are repairing a roadway in the region of Stenay. They rushed to a quarry immediately after the armistice conditions became effective, not thinking their blasting would attract attention. The explosions today did not bring any message from the Germans, so the engineers blasted with much energy, endeavoring to make up for the time lost.

(U. S. OFFICIAL WAR FILMS)

When our boys "went over" at Cantigny—

U. S. Signal Corps photographers were right on hand with their cameras.

The film secured on this occasion is part of the magnificent Government War Picture, "America's Answer."

When you see the Yankee lads go over the top, with the French tanks and flame-throwers for support, the tears come to your eyes and the cheers to your lips!

Perhaps you have a boy in the service yourself! Those precious letters that come to you from the far-off fighting front—"America's Answer" translates them to you in vivid pictures that speak eloquently of noble service rendered loyally in a worth-while cause.

President Wilson has described "America's Answer" as "One of the most remarkable and one of the most satisfactory portrayals" of the war that he has seen.

You see exactly the same tremendously impressive film the President saw. You see, among other things, a group of German prisoners, including two Boche officers who resolutely turned their backs when the camera man started clicking off his film.

"America's Answer" is the Government's own film—accurate and authentic in every detail. You learn more about the war in two hours than you have learned in four years! You can't afford to miss this marvelous war feature.

MONS VICTORS HAIL END OF FIGHTING

British Troops March Singing, Their Bands Celebrating the Armistice.

EMBRACED BY INHABITANTS

Philip Gibbs Voices the Army's Sentimentts in "Thank God," It Is Ended.

By PHILIP GIBBS.

Copyright, 1918, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE, Nov. 11.—The British troops knew early this morning that the armistice had been signed. I stopped on my way to Mons. Outside brigade headquarters an officer said: "Hostilities will cease at 11 o'clock." Then he added, as all men add in their hearts: "Thank God for that!"

All the way to Mons there were columns of troops on the march, and their bands played ahead of them, and almost every man had a flag on his rifle, the red, blue, and white of France, the red, yellow, and black of Belgium. They wore flowers in their caps and in their tunics, red and white chrysanthemums given them by crowds of people who cheered them on their way—people who in many of these villages have been only one day liberated from the German yoke.

The men marched, singing, with a smiling light in their eyes. They had done their job, and it was finished with the greatest victory in the world.

The war ended for the British at Mons, as it had begun there. When I went into this town this morning it seemed to me a most miraculous coincidence, and a joyful one. Last night there was a fight outside the town before the British forced their way in at 10 o'clock. The Germans left many of their guns in the gardens before they ran.

This morning Mons was full of English cavalry and Canadian troops, about whom there were crowds of townspeople, cheering them and embracing them. One old man told me of all they had suffered in Mons, but he wept only when he told me of the suffering of the British prisoners.

"What a shame for Germany," he said, "what a shame, when these things are known about your poor men starving to death! Our women tried to give them food, but were beaten for it, and fifteen days ago, down there by the canal, one of your English was killed because a woman gave him a bit of bread."

Little children came up to me and described the fighting the night before, and many people narrated the first fighting in Mons in August of 1914, when the "Old Contemptibles" were there, and fought their battle through the town, and then on their way of retreat outside.

All that is now a memory. The war belongs to the past. There will be no flash of gunfire in the sky tonight. The fires of hell have been put out, and I have written my last message as war correspondent, thank God!

PLEA FOR CALM IN VICTORY.

Morgenthau Urges Sobriety in Settling Grave World Problems.

Special to The New York Times.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 12.—Henry Morgenthau, ex-Ambassador to Turkey, who has been visiting this city, has given out a statement detailing his conception of America's lofty and serious mission in restoring the world on the coming of peace.

"These are solemn days," he said. "Let us not treat our victory lightly, but recognize its full responsibility and thank God that it was won on that high spiritual plane on which it was put by Woodrow Wilson and maintained there by Lloyd George, Clemenceau, King Albert, King Victor Emanuel, Venizelos, and all the truly democratic votaries of the world; and let us thank God from the depths of our souls that these men will now unquestionably continue to guide the destinies of the world until the fruits of victory have been gathered. Peace has been made and the world completely democratized and fairly progressed in its complex process of reconstruction.

"What an unfortunate miscarriage of those lofty plans of striving humanity might have resulted if this fierce struggle had been prolonged until some of these truly inspired, genuine world democrats had been displaced by reactionaries or mere swashbucklers!

"Now justice will be re-enthroned and its mandates administered alike to all nations and all peoples that have surrendered their former adherence and are shaping themselves into new nations.

"We have gone through the worst human cataclysm that has ever visited this planet. The State, corporate, and individual economic wrecks are amazing and almost irreparable. It is not an ordinary panic which can be weathered by the appointment of some receivers to act under court jurisdiction.

"The greatest, broadest, and most fertile, resourceful and altruistic minds of all countries must be constituted into an international committee of reorganization to undertake this herculean task.

"It can be performed successfully only if they strike the same high note and put it on the same high spiritual plane on which Woodrow Wilson put our military activities and diplomatic aspirations.

"The right of all and the duty we owe to one another and to our children and children's children must be constantly kept in mind and never disregarded. Victory should not intoxicate us. It should sober us for the grave responsibility of producing a new tablet of rules of action, one that will combine the wisdom of all the ages and the hopes and aspirations of the peoples of the present day."

Mr. Morgenthau is here in the interest of the War Work Fund drive. He spoke four times—at a luncheon, at Camp Greenleaf, where 4,000 men and officers heard him, at a dinner by the Jewish Welfare Board, and at a great mass meeting tonight.

RED FLAG STIRS SOLDIERS.

Mooney Demonstrators Hold Meeting After Lively March Uptown.

Socialists, on their way to a meeting in Carnegie Hall last night to raise funds to continue the defense of James Mooney, who is under sentence of death in San Francisco, started uptown from the lower east side, marching in a parade and carrying red flags. When they reached Forty-second Street, some soldiers and sailors saw the red flags and took several away from those who carried them. Then the fighters proceeded to "skylark" the parade. Their noise attracted more soldiers and sailors, so that when the parade passed Forty-third Street and Seventh Avenue, it looked like a hang-over peace celebration of the night before.

Many girls in line had jackies or soldiers marching by their sides, and it looked as if everybody was having a fine party. At Forty-seventh Street and Broadway, however, some one in line, taking the intruders more seriously than his companions did, called upon the police to clear the soldiers and sailors from the parade.

Captain Kinney of the West Forty-seventh Street Station was standing on the corner and he did two things. He urged the men in uniform to "be nice," and he told the Socialists to put the red flags out of commission. The Captain's advice made little impression on either side.

The parade continued boisterously to and into Carnegie Hall. Thereafter, Captain Kinney took no chances. He called out the reserves from the West Forty-seventh and West Sixty-eighth Street stations and they were able to preserve fairly good order both inside and outside the hall. The Mooney meeting continued and was still in session early this morning. No arrests were made.

Next Week's Metropolitan Operas.

Five operas new to this season's bills are announced for the Metropolitan's second week, making a dozen for the opening fortnight. In addition, "Madame Butterfly," which started the Brooklyn series last evening, will return Nov. 28 to Broadway at a holiday matinée on Thanksgiving Day.

Next week's list includes a Monday "Tosca," with Farrar, Crimi, and Scotti; Wednesday, "L'Elisir d'Amore," Caruso, Hempel, Scotti, Didur; Thursday, "Carmen," Farrar, Peterson, Crimi, Couzinou; Friday, "Marouf," Alda, Howard, De Luca, and Saturday matinée, "Le Prophete," Caruso, Muzio, and Homer. That evening the company will give "La Traviata" in Brooklyn.

Thomas Chalmers will sing the rôle of Amonasro in "Aida" at the opera tonight in place of Luigi Montesanto, delayed in arriving from Buenos Aires.

ARMY TO DISBAND AS MEN ARE NEEDED and overseas and the conversion of industry to its peace status will not cause any serious problem of unemployment.

Officers' Training Camps.

Orders were issued today by the War Department discontinuing the accepting of applicants for the central officers' training camps and stopping the organization of any new classes. There are now approximately 100,000 men in training at these camps operating on a monthly class basis. The November classes will be discontinued and a decision is expected soon as to whether present classes shall be continued to graduation. None of the additional training camps for officers that had been planned will be established.

The War Department today countermanded orders providing for an officers' training camp at Camp Fremont, Cal., to accommodate 20,000 students.

The future of the student officers' training units in universities and other schools also is now being worked out. Secretary Baker said today that the question of the best way to stop this work with the least disruption to the institutions involved was being considered by the college officials associated with the Government in the work and also by the General Staff. A policy would be worked out, the Secretary said, that would turn the colleges back to their regular pursuits as quickly as possible without causing losses to them. It may be that the training work will continue longer at some colleges than at others while necessary readjustments are being made.

Mr. Baker indicated that no definite decision had been reached as to the future of various army divisions, now completely organized or being formed at cantonments in this country. In this connection it was learned that orders already issued effectually check the development of those divisions which have not been fully organized. Transfers of officers and other steps necessary to completing organizations have been curtailed.

Order to Draft Boards.

Draft boards were ordered today to stop classifying men under 19 years or over 36 years, and to withhold questionnaires for such registrants not already sent out. It was said officially at the Provost Marshal General's office that registrants from 37 to 46 years old who received questionnaires need not fill them out.

Cancellation of all draft calls and inductions yesterday practically has nullified the famous fight or work order promulgated last Summer, and under which thousands of men flocked to essential industry on pain of immediate induction, though local boards have been ordered to continue classifying, after physical examination, men between 18 and 36. The work or fight order falls by reason of the fact that the only penalty attached was that of being placed in Class 1. With calls stopped the Government has no power to penalize the nonessential employment.

Champ Clark to Lead Minority.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Democratic leader Kitchin announced today that Champ Clark would be the Democratic leader in the next Congress. Mr. Kitchin said he did not expect to retire from the membership of the Ways and Means Committee.

RACHMANINOFF IS HERE.

Composer Escapes from Russia to America to Rest and Work.

Serge Rachmaninoff, the Russian composer, arrived with his family at an Atlantic port recently, and was registered yesterday at the Hotel Netherland, in this city. Besides the musician and his wife, the party included their two daughters, 16 and 14 years old. They escaped from Russia to Sweden, and thence from Stockholm by steamship to Copenhagen, and across the Atlantic.

Mr. Rachmaninoff was welcomed by the colony of Russian artists now in New York, including the young composer, Serge Prokofieff, who got here before him by coming the other way around the world, by Siberia and the Pacific.

"I have come to America to rest and work," Rachmaninoff told his callers yesterday.

He referred to a former visit in times of peace, when he conducted his music here with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The composer is 45 years old now. His previous visit to this country was in 1909-10, and he has since been chief conductor of the opera in Petrograd.

MILK UP TOMORROW ANOTHER CENT A QUART

Federal Food Board Grants Raise to Cover Advanced Labor Cost Dealers Losing Money.

A further advance in the retail price of milk of one cent a quart was announced yesterday by the Federal Food Board, which explained that the increase was made owing to circumstances over which it had no control. The chief reason is the increased cost of production, as shown by the Federal investigation. The new price list is effective tomorrow. As arranged by Dr. Clyde L. King of the United States Food Administration it is as follows:

UNITED WAR WORK CAMPAIGN GIVE all in one Hat

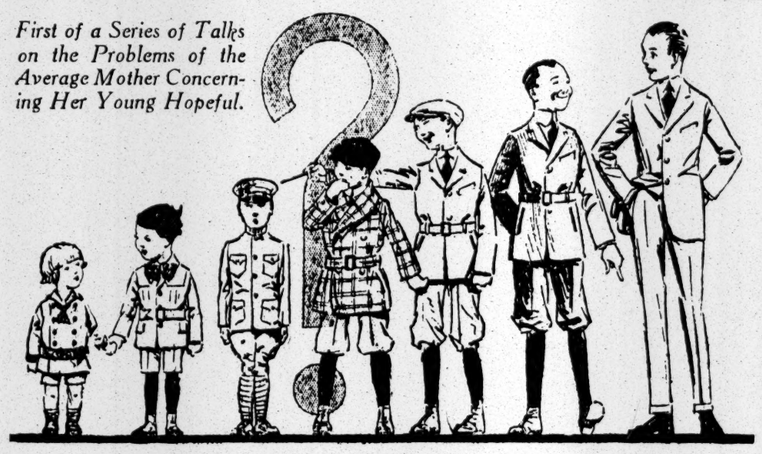
First of a Series of Talks on the Problems of the Average Mother Concerning Her Young Hopeful.



Watch Him Grow

The story of a boy's wardrobe is a long, adventuresome tale. There's many a "seamy" side to the history. From the time a baby first gains the distinction of boyhood that the first pair of divided "pants" achieves for him, down to that looked-for, longed-for day when the "pants" hide his lanky legs from public view, the voyage of a boy and his wardrobe is rough, to say the least.

Are You Watching Your Boy Grow?

IS HE AT that tender age when he wears his first Russian suit, and you only know the trousers are trousers because they're not skirts?

HAS HE arrived at that impressive moment when he can wear his first suit of wool goods with an Eton collar and a bow tie?

IS HE ready for school now and does he need a suit of ink-resisting material with lots of pockets?

DID HE come to that period of adventure where his confirmed career is that of a soldier or detective and he must have a uniform—or else a badge?

HAS HE reached the age where clothes are a bore and he scorns the sight of an overcoat for a bright plaid mackinaw?

HAS HE scrambled into the "rough neck" years where he needs suits of cast iron with dreadnought plates for knees and elbows?

IS HE at that hazardous age where he himself wants to pass judgment upon the flawless fit of his graduation suit?

AND HAS HE—oh, has he come to that brink of boyhood where he scorns the public exhibition of his nether extremities and yearns to conceal them in "long pants"?

It Is Our Business to Adjust the Conflict Between a Boy and His Wardrobe. Whatever Age Your Boy May Be, Whatever His Inclinations Toward Dress Manifested at No-Matter-How Tender Years,

Our Boys' Clothing Section is Ready to Dress Your Boy Just Right. Come in and Let's Talk Him Over.

CUT RESTRICTION ON NONWAR INDUSTRIES

The Fuel Administration made this announcement:

"The first revision of the curtailments upon the use of coal pursuant to the halting of the nation's war programme was announced today by the United States Feul Administration.

"All limitations on the use of fuel in the production of building materials, including brick, cement, lime, hollow tile, and lumber were ordered removed by Fuel Administrator Harry A. Garfield. This action was co-ordinate with the decision of the War Industries Board, announced today in removing restrictions on the production of building materials."

It also is stated tonight that the rulings of the War Industries Board in connection with the increased production of non-war commodities other than building materials will be approved by the Fuel Administration in instances where the Fuel Administration has reduced the fuel supply of the industries involved to a point which conflicts with the new program of the War Industries Board.

SECTION 4.

Dealers (wholesale and retail) in raw materials, semi-finished and finished products are hereby relieved from the obligation to give and require pledges relating to such commodities, notwithstanding any provision for pledges in and order or circular heretofore issued by the Priorities Division, and notwithstanding any stipulation in any pledge that they will require pledges from those who buy from them for resale; provided, however, building materials and other products shall not be sold and delivered for use in connection with any non-war construction projects save those for which no permit or license is required under priority circular No. 2, as revised by Section 1 hereof, or with the terms of orders and circulars heretofore issued, and comply with all pledges heretofore or hereafter given, save that they are hereby relieved from the provisions in such pledges as require manufacturers to exact pledges from those who buy them for resale.

SECTION 5.

The Priorities Division of the War Industries Board will, as far as practicable, assist industries in procuring materials, fuel, transportation and labor to enable them to increase their operations to normal limits as rapidly as conditions may warrant. Precedence must, however, be given to stimulate and increase the production of cargo ships and supply the requirements of the army and navy of the United States, as well as to provide for this nation's proper proportion of the enormous volume of materials, equipment, and supplies as have been required for the reconstruction and rehabilitation of the devastated territories of Europe. Precedence must also be given to such activities as will tend to stimulate the production of foods and feeds, of coal, of natural gas, of oil and its products, of textiles and clothing, and of minerals; and to provide for deferred maintenance, additions, betterments, and extensions of railroads, telegraph and telephone lines, and other public utilities, and to permit and stimulate the intensive development of inland waterways."

The War Industries Board today advised manufacturers of woolen sweaters and similar articles that the tentative schedule issued by the Conservation Division for the restrictions of the variety of their products would not be put into effect.

COL. ROOSEVELT IMPROVES.

Suffers from Sciatica, but His General Condition Is Excellent.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who is at Roosevelt Hospital undergoing treatment for sciatica in his left leg, is not in a serious condition and is getting along nicely, according to announcement made at the hospital last night. Dr. John H. Richards is keeping careful watch over the Colonel.

Dr. Richards said that his patient was suffering from an attack of sciatica, concurrent with rheumatic conditions, which might have been due to tooth trouble. "The Colonel's general physical condition is excellent," said Dr. Richards. "His blood pressure and heart action are those of a man of 40 years. The Colonel was brought to Roosevelt Hospital so that he might be enabled to more speedily return to his work."

Marine Insurance Rates Drop.

Marine insurance rates were cut in two again yesterday. To the United Kingdom and Havre the rate quoted on both cargoes and ships was ½ of 1 per cent. Rates to Spanish ports were the same, except to those ports of Spain long the Mediterranean. The rates to Mediterranean ports were quoted at 1 per cent. Rates to Greece, direct or by way of the Cape of Good Hope, were quoted at 3 per cent. for both cargoes and ships, as against 8 per cent. a few days ago. Rates to the West Indies and to South America were also reduced.

SMITH MUST FIGHT FOR VOTES IN COURT

Whitman Gets Order to Show Cause Why They Should Not Be Examined.

IN TWO BOROUGHS ONLY

Democrats Are Expected to Urge That Action Be Made Applicable to Entire State.

Justice Joseph E. Newburger of the Supreme Court yesterday, at the request of counsel representing Governor Whitman and the Republican State Committee, granted an order, directed to Governor-elect Alfred E. Smith, to show cause why there should not be an examination of the ballots cast within the First Judicial District, which includes the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx. The order was made returnable before Justice Gavegan, sitting in Special Term, Part 1., on Friday morning. Action affecting other boroughs may be taken later, according to Governor Whitman's counsel.

Abram I. Elkus, ex-United States Ambassador to Turkey; Senator John Godfrey Saxe, and Robert L. Luce, will represent Governor-elect Smith and the Democratic State Committee in the proceedings before Justice Gavegan on Friday, unless there is a change in the plans. Ex-Magistrate Emil E. Fuchs is the attorney of record for Governor Whitman, with Abraham S. Gilbert and Herbert R. Limburg, both experts on election contest proceedings, retained as counsel.

That the Democrats might profit materially from an inspection of the ballots in up-State districts, was indicated yesterday when a message from Syracuse showed that in the first election district canvassed there by the County Board of Canvassers, the Democratic candidate made a gain of 78 votes which had been credited to Governor Whitman on the election night returns. The Republicans, on the other hand, heard from the Republican County Chairman of Nassau County that the official canvass there had netted the Governor 330 extra votes, making his plurality in Nassau 4,215 as compared with 3,856 reported in the complete returns from Nassau made public last Thursday. From Cayuga County, George Washington Benham, Republican County Chairman, reported a Whitman gain of 125 votes.

These changes, it is said, had been anticipated by Republican State Chairman George A. Glynn in his tabulation, based on figures obtained from the County Chairmen throughout the State on the strength of which he has claimed that the plurality of Governor-elect Smith on the face of the returns was only somewhat in excess of 7,000 instead of slightly above 11,000, as the first returns indicated.

The County Board of Canvassers met and organized in every county in the State yesterday. In this city the canvass is conducted by the Aldermen in their respective boroughs. The actual canvass will begin in Manhattan at 10 o'clock this morning, in the Bronx at 1:30 this afternoon, in Brooklyn and Queens tomorrow morning, and in Richmond on Friday morning. The canvass of the ballots in Manhattan and Brooklyn, it is expected, will require a week or ten days, while in the other boroughs the canvass will be more speedily completed.

COURT ISSUES ORDER IN B. R. T. CAR FIGHT

Company Accused of Duplicity and Disregard of Public Safety in Steel Car Delay.

Supreme Court Justice Benedict, sitting in Brooklyn, issued orders yesterday requiring the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to show cause next

About the same time President Timothy S. Williams of the B. R. T. was writing a letter to Chairman Hubbell of the commission, complaining that Commissioner Whitney had libeled the company in a statement on Saturday.

The Public Service Commission's order to the company was issued in January, 1917. Action was delayed by legal proceedings until last February, when the commission and the company entered into an agreement which seemed to provide for the new cars without further controversy.

In his statement of Saturday Mr. Whitney recalled a recent statement of his asserting the need of the B. R. T. for a new set of officials and accusing the company of a "gross and grievous default" in not complying with a commission order. He also accused the company of "resistance to legal mandates, defiance of public obligations, disregard of the comfort and safety of passengers," and "disruption and overthrow of any kind of public control over it."

Similar remarks were made by William L. Ransom, chief counsel of the Public Service Commission, in his application to Justice Benedict. He said that the papers in the case disclosed "a discreditable record of delay, duplicity, and disregard of the safety, comfort, and convenience of the people of Brooklyn." In addressing the court Mr. Ransom said:

"I sincerely hope the responsible officials of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company realize now the serious public consequences of the course they have pursued in the past, and that no further resistance will be made to the commission's reasonable order for these needed new steel cars. The company has taken a very stubborn attitude as to new cars and better service throughout the war period, and in view of the attitude of the Federal authorities as to the use of steel in new construction it has been virtually impossible to enforce orders against companies.

WAITERS QUIT AT SHERRY'S.

Leaders Say Strike Cost the Hotels $100,000 in Peace Celebration.

The waiters' strike was extended yesterday to Sherry's, where it was said 150 waiters, cooks, and storeroom girls responded to the strike call. They marched to the New Amsterdam Opera House and were greeted by nearly 2,500 strikers from the eight hotels whose employes quit work recently. Sherry's bar and dining room were closed, but Charles R. Wilson, manager, said he hoped to reopen them today.

Threats that walkouts would take place in the string of hotels controlled by John McE. Bowman, which include the Biltmore, Belmont, Murray Hill, Manhattan, and Ansonia, did not materialize yesterday. Striking waiters effected a settlement with the Marlborough Hotel.

According to Paul Bourget of the strikers' committee, the eight big hotels affected by the strike have lost upward of $500,000 worth of business in less than a week through inability to serve their patrons. Bourget figured the hotels lost $100,000 on election night and an equal amount in Monday's peace celebration. The hotels now affected by the walkout include the Waldorf-Astoria, McAlpin, Claridge, Plaza, Vanderbilt, Knickerbocker, Astor, and St. Regis.

BAN ON SHIP NEWS LIFTED BY DANIELS

Arrivals and Departures May Now Be Printed as Before April 10, 1917.

MAY REQUISITION SHIPS

Report That Government Will Take All Under American Flag Circulated Among Shippers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The Secretary of the Navy has issued the following:

"To the Press:

"The Navy Department considers that the restrictions that have been placed on publication of arrivals and departures of merchant vessels and other shipping news may now be safely removed. The department appreciates the co-operation that the press has given it in this particular matter. Should the occasion arise when it might become necessary to place the same restrictions on shipping news as have been placed in the past, the press would be so informed.

"The department does not expect that such a necessity will arise. If it does, we feel sure that we can expect the same thorough co-operation that previously has prevailed.

"JOSEPHUS DANIELS."

On April 10, 1917, four days after the United States entered the war, at the request of the Navy Department the newspapers stopped printing the names of steamships or their movements from American or foreign ports, in order that no information should get by that means to the enemy. The necessity of this was demonstrated in October, 1916, when the commander of the U-Boat 53 went ashore and obtained copies of newspapers which gave the movements of steamships belonging to the Allies, and sank five vessels the following day.

A report was circulated yesterday in shipping circles that the United States Government had requisitioned all steamships flying the American flag, including the American-Hawaiian Line, for service on the North Atlantic to France and England. Officials connected with the Federal Shipping Control at 45 Broadway said that so far as they had heard there had been no change in the shipping situation in New York. No arrangements for the return of the American soldiers would be settled, it was declared, until the armistice was concluded and the date for the peace conference settled. So far no American or British steamships have been released to go back to their respective trades.

It is understood that the United States passport regulations will be maintained for some months after peace is declared and ratified in order to prevent a rush of tourists to France and Belgium. The immigration authorities said yesterday that the fourteen days' delay which aliens have to undergo now before they can get a permit to leave the United States for any country except Canada may be lifted within the next few days by the State Department, but so far no instructions on the subject had been received.

An official connected with the United States Transport Service said last night that the bringing back of 2,000,000 troops to America from France and England could be managed in nine months if the Government wished to have the men repatriated in a hurry, which was not likely to be the case. This could be done by putting large numbers of soldiers on board slow steaming vessels which were not considered safe during the time of the German submarine menace.

A transport that has a speed of ten knots and has only been carrying 3,000 troops on account of her slowness, can be fitted to carry 8,500 under the new conditions. In addition there are numbers of steamships belonging to the American-Hawaiian and other lines that have never carried troops which can now be brought into service.

The British transports Adriatic, Baltic, Cedric and Orontes will sail today with other British vessels carrying supplies to France and England for the American Government. The fighting units were taken off the transports yesterday and replaced by engineers, army service regiments, Red Cross nurses and other noncombatant forces. The British vessels will sail under convoy until further orders, it was said.

APPEAL TO WILSON BY IRISH PARTY

President Asked to Help Gain Freedom for Ireland as a Nation.

LONDON, Nov. 12.—The Irish Party today issued an address appealing to President Wilson to aid in a settlement of the Irish question in accordance with his principles that all nations, large and small, have a right to free determination of their own form of Government. A demand in this respect made in the House of Commons today was voted down.

"Can any one doubt," says the address, "that the nation of Ireland comes under the category of small nations for whose rights you so eloquently plead or that the present Government of Ireland by Great Britain, against the will of demnation you have given to such exercises of wrong?

"We claim that the war must be observed from your standard of broad-visioned justice, for the creation of a new world of freedom everywhere in all nations; that the war is to build up a new world that is safe for democracy; that this fact, an issue of the war, makes the liberation of Ireland, as well as of other small nations, a duty in which the associated powers have a right to a voice.

"Every national question today is international, unless the world is to abandon the league of nations to maintain in the future peace and universal justice.

"We implore you not to relax your efforts to make the war not a mere triumph of nation over nation or of armies over armies."

Lord Beaverbrook Operated On.

MONTREAL, Nov. 12.—William Maxwell Aitken, Lord Beaverbrook, formerly Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, who recently resigned as head of the Department of British Propaganda on account of illness, has been operated on here for a throat affection. His physician said today that nothing of a malignant nature had developed and that there was confidence of his "complete recovery."

THE BOYS ARE COMING BACK

THE boys are coming back from "over there." To millions of American families that knowledge brings supreme joy. Some day soon the vanguard of the victorious hosts of Democracy will march along Fifth Avenue to receive the homage of grateful multitudes.

Across the Atlantic they have left a world renewed—Autocracy crushed, and in its place the clean spirit of Democracy bringing freedom and happiness to the millions who have been ground under the ruthless heel of militarism.

They went across to make the world a decent place to live in; to complete the task so nobly carried on by the other great democracies of the world. They have gloriously upheld American tradition. Now they are coming home.

Back from the mud of the trenches, the crash of the high explosives and the steady patter of the deadly machine gun; back from the dank depths of the Argonne Forest with its miles of barbed wire. Behind them the glories of Cantigny and Seichprey; of Chateau-Thierry and the Vesle; of St. Mihiel and Cambrai.

They have lived a lifetime in a few months. On the battlefields of France they have changed from boys to men. Boys still in years, but men in experience and the appreciation of the things that life holds out for them. Thoroughly and efficiently they have performed their tasks abroad; more important still will be the part they play in moulding the future of the Republic.

As an army, our boys will be acclaimed by millions when they return to this land of peace and plenty. Nothing will be too good for them. But what of the individual soldier? Is his reward to lie in the fleeting glory of a delirious hour along "the Avenue." That hour, of course, will be his greatest; will live in his memory as a realization of ideals accomplished.

Rest and relaxation must follow the return of the American soldier from the World War. From his mind must be erased gradually all remembrances of the horrible side of the conflict. This duty devolves upon those who remained at home.

Of all forms of relaxation, the motor car stands pre-eminent. It is certain to find an important place in the country-wide effort to readjust the mind and physique of these valorous boys, so that they may as quickly as possible be fitted for a return to the industrial pursuits which they dropped at the call of duty.

The part which the automobile has performed in the successful prosecution of the war cannot be over-estimated. The industry was one of the first to mobilize on a war basis. It cannot so quickly demobilize. The pre-war standard of production is not likely to be reached for many months, due to the shortage of high-grade steels which are sorely needed by nearly all important industries for a resumption of peace-time production.

The allocation of steel to meet the widespread requirements renders improbable a production of motor cars equal to the demand that will follow the war In other words, a continuance of curtailed production may be looked forward to.

Would it not be the part of wisdom to buy your boy's car now? He will deserve it, and it will be of the greatest benefit to his health. Thousands of others will be doing the same thing. If you wait too long, you may find that the supply of passenger cars has been exhausted.

The Hudson Super-Six is a young man's car. It is ultra-modern. It is a leader among motor cars—not merely because of its exclusive and renowned motor—but for the reason that every unit of its chassis is scientifically designed for every call that can be made upon it. As to the bodies, of which there are ten different types—they are beautifully designed, handsomely finished and rigidly built. All motordom concedes to the Hudson Super-Six the four cardinal points of excellence—beauty, endurance, power and speed.

There are more Hudson Super-Six cars in service than any other fine type of car—more than 50,000.

Of the ten types of open and enclosed Hudson Super-Sixes we will receive only a limited number of each. Right now our line is complete as far as types and models go, but we can give no assurance that it will remain so.

GARY IS CONFIDENT OF TRADE OUTLOOK

Chairman of Steel Corporation Discusses the Problems Which Accompany Peace.

HAS FAITH IN COUNTRY

Believes in the End It Will Be More Progressive and Prosperous Than Ever.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, left for Washington yesterday afternoon in response to a call from the War Industries Board. Judge Gary is Chairman of the Steel Committee of the Board. Before leaving he denied that any Government orders to the Steel Corporation had been canceled and added that he suspected that he had been called to Washington to consult with his collagues on some of the problems that will confront the country on a peace basis. Then, at the request for a general comment on the present and immediate future conditions in this country, Judge Gary said:

"We are now confronted with innumerable problems of magnitude. Around the peace table there will be presented questions of difficulty involving the social and economic life of the people of all countries. It will require the best talent and wisdom, patience and poise to secure for the respective countries all that they are justly entitled to in privilege, position and protection. Human nature will assert itself. Unreasonable and selfish demands will be made and insisted upon. Undue advantage will be sought.

"To be valuable and durable, a basis of settlement covering all substantial and honest differences which existed when the war commenced or have arisen since must be settled accordance with the principles of exact justice. Equal protection and opportunity for all must be established. Above everything else there will be created a league of nations which, in its result, will prevent future prolonged wars.

Important Economic Questions.

"Of high importance are the economic questions which must be faced in the near future. They underlie the procuring of food, clothing and shelter. After, but not before, the people throughout the world receive these, they are willing to consider other matters. These subjects will puzzle the best and most experienced minds.

"The war with its cost in men and dollars will bring reactions and readjustments with possible economic demoralization and depression, and possibly panics, and we must be on our guard.

"It is probable that after the declaration of peace, when it becomes evident that purchases or deliveries for military purposes are reduced in volume, there will be more or less interruption in the conduct of general business. Therefore, it is imperative that we exercise prudence, deliberation and courage. It is easy to precipitate a feeling of demoralization, and no more difficult to develop a sentiment of confidence and serenity.

"There will be a normal and certain volume of business. This would not be increased by unreasonable or unfair means. There will remain the usual revenues, methods, and opportunities for securing and transacting business with old customers and acquaintances. Any spasmodic effort to divert or interfere with the natural progress, or to secure more than a proper share, will, as a total net result, impede rather than accelerate prosperity. We must all trim our sails in accordance with the drift and amount of business. If all business men recognize conditions and conduct their different lines so as to adjust the question of supply and demand on a legitimate basis, all will be benefited and may look forward with confidence.

"Upon a careful survey of the situation it will be found there are many reasons for believing prosperity in this country should continue.

"The United States is the richest of all countries. It possesses one-third or more of the total wealth of the world. It has become the leader of finance, and in this respect may properly exercise a commanding influence. Its natural resources are immense and are susceptible of increasing development. If industry is protected and fostered in accordance with its merit the war burdens surely, even though gradually, will be lifted. We shall be a creditor nation with a large interest income, more virile, more progressive, more successful, wiser, and better than ever before.

"And judging the future by the experience of the last few years, there will be a disposition on the part of those in authority to assist rather than to attack business effort. There will be study, reflection, friendly concern shown in relation to the needs and requests of enterprise and investment. Legislation and administration will be founded on ascertained conditions, deficiencies, and requirements. Both capital and labor will be protected and rewarded. Employers will lead in the effort to promote the welfare of their workmen.

Expects General Co-operation.

"Co-operation will be seen on every hand. Capital and labor will continue to co-operate with governmental administration, and the latter will reciprocate in every practical and proper manner. This spirit has been exhibited in a marked degree in this country and other countries during the last four years, and its benefits have been demonstrated so clearly that they will not permit a return to the methods of destructive competition.

"As to the volume of business to be offered during the next few months or years no one can accurately predict, but there are reasons to suppose it will be large.

"The Government will continue to be a large purchaser at reasonable prices for the finishing of incompleted projects and others contemplated for changes which will be incidental to a peace basis. In this connection it will be observed that the War Industries Board and other Governmental departments are already considering methods for assisting in the readjustment of business without serious disturbances or injury to general conditions.

"Besides, there has been in all lines of trade with which the Government has not been specially interested, an accumulation of orders, which to a large degree at least, will be placed as soon as the supply may justify. And in order to refill empty warehouses throughout the country large quantities of finished materials will be required.

"Moreover, in nonproducing countries it has been impossible to supply their necessities on account of the war requirements, and these will commence to buy as soon as it is practicable, so that a large increase in exportations may be expected.

"Extensions and new construction which have been necessarily postponed for lack of material will be taken up.

"And with all this is connected the thought that as a net result of the war the volume of cash and cash resources has been increased in a marked degree and will be expended for purposes of expansion and development in this rich and growing country. The circulation of money is considerably larger than it was at the beginning of the war.

"As a general proposition it is still true that the optimist who keeps within the limits of cash or stable cash resources will succeed. For the long future we have reason to believe that the country will be more progressive and more prosperous than ever before.

"It remains for all who have been permitted to survive the horrors of war to enter upon the new era with a united and fraternal spirit, and a fixed purpose to profit by the experiences of the past and to aid in the establishment of a permanent basis of peace and prosperity."

$3,500,000,000 LOAN CALLED FOR IN BRITAIN

Bonar Law Says Future Prosperity Depends on Harmony of Capital and Labor.

LONDON, Nov. 12 (British Wireless Service.)—A new loan of £700,000,000 was called for in the House of Commons today by Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Mr. Bonar Law in moving the new vote of credit said he believed there would be a reduction in expenditure owing to the change in the military situation, but that the Treasury officials had advised him against reducing the amount of money desired. It might be necessary for the Allies to make efforts to bring food supplies to Europe, in which case a greater expenditure would be incurred, the Chancellor said. He added that the general financial situation at the end of the fiscal year would be appreciably less than his budget figures.

The future prosperity and well being of the country, he continued, depended on the extent to which capital and labor could work harmoniously together. It was vital that the close international unity which the war had produced should prevail while the ravages of war were being repaired.

OPPOSES EULOGY OF MAYOR

Alderman Squiers Says Its Time to "Quit Capitalizing Tragedy."

Mayor Hylan was criticised in the Board of Aldermen yesterday for seeking to capitalize the Brooklyn Rapid Transit wreck for publicity purposes. The matter came up when a resolution was introduced by Alderman Charles H. Haubert of Brooklyn instructing the General Welfare Committee to draft an ordinance that would protect passengers on transit lines in this city and prevent disasters similar to the Brooklyn one by making mandatory the employment of efficient and competent motormen.

Alderman Haubert praised the Mayor for the interest he had taken in transit matters, and particularly in regard to Brooklyn. Alderman Arnon L. Squiers of Brooklyn, leader of the minority, said he was heartily in favor of the resolution, but was unalterably opposed to the eulogy of the Mayor.

"Just what effect Mayor Hylan's investigation of the terrible Brooklyn disaster is going to have I am not at this time prepared to say," said Mr. Squiers, "but I want to state that it is high time we quit capitalizing tragedy. Mayor Hylan knew of the impending strike of the Brooklyn motormen thirty-six hours before the public did, because he was a member of the union. It was his business to notify the Public Service Commission and the officials of the B. R. T. and let them know what was going on."

When your feet glide comfortably into a pair of Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoes they feel secure.

FRANCES STAR IN 'TIGER! TIGER!'

A Sincere and Sympathetic Study of Sex Attraction by Edward Knoblauch.

'THE FOREST OF THE NIGHT'

Miss Starr Adds a Portrait to Her Very Notable Gallery— An Able Cast.

TIGER! TIGER! A drama in four acts by Edward Knoblock. At the Belasco Theatre.

Clive Couper, M. P. ..... Lionel Atwill
Freddie Staunton ..... O. P. Heggie
Stephen Greer ..... Wallace Erskine
Sam Tullidge ..... Whitford Kane
Bartlett ..... Thomas Louden
Sally ..... Frances Starr
Evelyn Greer ..... Dorothy Cumming
Lizzie ..... Auriol Lee
Mrs. Wiast ..... Daisy Belmore

The "tiger" of William Blake's famous poem is a creature of "awful symmetry," of forged sinew and adamantine nerve, "burning bright in the forest of the night." It has very generally been taken as symbol of elemental and overpowering sex attraction. In Edward Knoblauch's play, with which Frances Starr returned last night to the Belasco, this creature, limned by its creator in lines of steel and fire, has been in a measure subdued, even domesticated.

The affair takes place between a young Member of Parliament and a woman of whom he knows nothing except that they met in the street by night and felt an immediate, overpowering attraction toward each other. He has hitherto been rather indifferent to love of any kind.

She is by no means a woman of the streets, being, in fact, a wage earner and too self-respecting to accept money or compensation of any sort. In many ways their passion is strengthening, perhaps ennobling. He is inspired to greater eloquence and power in Parliament. She is utterly happy. The affair is quite ideal, in fact, except that they are not married. Being of quite different stations in life, marriage is impossible.

It cannot be said that the passion wears itself out, on either side. Rather, it seems to become deeper and more intense. Yet the enforced secrecy of their meetings and the danger that discovery will ruin his parliamentary career make a rift within the lute. Then he discovers that her employment is domestic; she is a cook, in fact.

He tries to prevail upon her to give up service, to become his mistress outright. She refuses on grounds of common sense and self respect. So he renounces her—turns her over to marriage with a man of her class—and departs for the front, where he is killed.

Mr. Knoblauch tells his story, reveals his people, without the conventional aids of situation and climax. The development is rather lived than dramatized. There are four acts comprising eight scenes, and the time extends through three or four years. There is scarcely a touch of wit. Such laughter as occurs springs from the revelation of sheer character. Yet there is a reality in it all—a sincerity of feeling, an integrity of character, and a literary skill—that compel attention, indeed a deep and often absorbing interest.

The character of the heroine, Sally, is quite marvelously real and vivid. There is not a touch of sentimentality in the portrait, no trace of an effort at moral extenuation. She is a creature of work-worn hands, uneducated, and superficially unrefined. Her very gowns and hats strike inerrantly the note of the kitchen. She is prone to primitive outbursts of passion, wrong-headed, and uncompromisingly ugly. And yet, from first to last, this is perhaps the most intensely human and beautiful portrait of a woman in the contemporary drama.

For the elemental passion is there in its fullness of life and color, its fidelity to the inner laws of being. It is even thus that real women love and rise in the flame of their passion to the heights. And even thus real women are resolute in their love unbetrayed by its glamor to any act of misconceived self-sacrifice.

Miss Starr limns every contour with a touch as human as it is subtle and persuasive. Instinct though the character is with her peculiar sweetness and womanly emotion, it is utterly distinct from all her previous creations—a whole world removed from her Marie Odile, which approaches it most nearly in artistic quality.

That the play will prove as popular as many of its predecessors may be doubted. Both in subject and in manner it stands apart from the predilections of the great public. But there can be no doubt that it is work of distinguished quality, revealing Miss Starr at the summit of her achievement thus far.

The character of the young Member of Parliament is less skillful and convincing, in particular the scene in which, in a mood of ignoble anger and harsh incomprehension, he throws Sally off—humanly possible though it is—seems out of key with the play as a whole. Mr. Lionel Atwill's performance is capable, as always, but will scarcely add to his reputation.

Whitford Kane and Auriol Lee contribute character sketches which are delightful as they are brief. The production which Mr. Belasco has given the play is in every way worthy of the traditions of his theatre.

RECITALS OF A DAY.

Julia Henry, Leo Ornstein, and Chamber Music Society Heard.

Julia Henry, the daughter of a distinguished sire, the late Max Heinrich, presented an interesting program of songs at the Princess Theatre yesterday afternoon, during which she sang numbers by Dvorak, MacDowell, two beautiful songs by her father, respectively entitled "Over the Heather" and "To the Moonlight," and songs by Henri Duparc, and two by Felix Fourdruin, "L'Oasis" and "La Belle au Bois Dormant." This last named revealed the purity of Miss Henry's diction, intonation, and artistic sensibility. She is an engaging artist, versatile, and well trained as befits the atmosphere which her once famous father surrounded her. She has mastered many lyric styles and she sings with more emotional freedom than last season. There was an American group, represented by James H. Rogers, Arthur Foote, Mrs. Alex C. Mason, Marion Bauer, and Mrs. H. H. A. Beach. The only fault to be found was a certain monotony of mood in this section. But Miss Henry is musical to her finger tips, rather let us say tongue tip. She is a singer who is always welcome, even in these crowded hours. There was much applause. Mr. Deis presided at the piano.

We did not hear the middle portion of Leo Ornstein's recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, but the beginning and the close were well worth while. The audience thought the same and pounded frantic palms after the fashion of pianists, of whom there were many present, Mrs. Leopold Stokowski, better known in public life as Olga Samaroff, among the rest. Young Ornstein roared as gently as a sucking dove; he even cooed in his own Prelude, written in the traditional key of C sharp minor, and though Serge Rachmaninoff, the Russian composer and pianist, is in the city at this writing, he would have had no cause for jealousy if he had heard the piece of his fellow-countryman. The most attractive numbers of the afternoon were those comprised in Schumann's "Kreisleriana," seldom given, and charming miniatures. The work contains many ideas that come to light in other piano compositions of the gentle composer. More introspective than the "Carneval," Schumann is romantic, fantastic, enigmatic, passionate, musing, and tender. Fully to interpret the series demands a poet as well as a pianist, and to Mr. Ornstein praise may be accorded, for it is music in which he can display his brilliancy, nor yet his slight deviation from the normal, the conventional.

His interpretation was deeper felt than we had expected. This music is too intimate for the large spaces of a public hall, yet he contrived to suggest the very note of intimacy. His chief defect is his neglect of the nuance. The color is there and too much color. A more legato touch in single finger lyric episodes would conduce to a richer singing tone. However, he is very young, and variety is the result of multitudinous experience. Ornstein has the virtuoso temperament, and in Liszt's Mephisto waltz he set the blood tingling with his stormy attack and sustained bravura. He is a gifted youth.

It was a musically soothing concert, that given by the New York Chamber Music Society, last evening in Aeolian Hall. The fact that the organization is unlike any other was one reason for this; the other was the character of the music-making. A composition by Dubois, a first performance here, called a Dixtuor in D minor, afforded excellent scope for ten instruments: flute, played by William Kincaid; oboe, Henri di Busscher; clarinet, Gustave Langenus; French horn, Joseph Franzl; bassoon, Ugo Savolini; violins, Pierre Henrotte, Herbert Corduan; viola, Samuel Lifschef; violincello, Paul Kefer; double-bass, Ludwig Manoly. As a composition it is well written, giving each instrument its just due, and producing a harmonious ensemble.

These gentlemen were artists. They played with finish and tonal balance. Particularly enjoyable was the allegretto of the work. The lovely horn trio for piano, horn, and violin by Brahms was played with Carolyn Beebe at the keyboard. It was not a plastic performance in the first and third movements, lacking a sense of continuity, but the final allegro went with much spirit. Mozart's quartet for oboe, violin, viola, and 'cello and a novelty, a Divertimento by Juan, were also on the program. The society plays like a happy family. Altogether an evening of mellow music.

MUSIC NOTES.

Pierre Monteux, Arthur Bodanzky, Walter Damrosch, Josef Stransky, Fritz Kreisler, Frank Knobel, and others were guests at a dinner at the Biltmore last evening to George F. Lindsay, a chief patron of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

The Philharmonic Society will give a free concert for men and women in uniform at Carnegie Hall tonight. In the program are Macdowell's dirge from the "Indian Suite" and Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

The Duncan Dancers will make their reappearance at the Booth Theatre tomorrow afternoon, assisted by George Copeland.

THE PUNISHMENT OF WILHELM.

Many ill-considered opinions have been expressed as to the penalty that ought to be inflicted upon the dethroned German Kaiser by a world into which he has brought so much misery. The feeling is almost universal that his crimes transcend the provision of criminal law, for he is the world's greatest criminal and even the most terrible statutory penalties fall miserably short of his desert. The weakest suggestion is that he be extradited to England to be tried there under the murder indictment brought against him in the Lusitania case. To begin with, no extradition writ would be honored. But suppose he were tried, found guilty, and executed. Would not that end his sufferings? Retribution would cheat itself if so soon his sufferings were ended.

Why should not every civilized human being pray that this man of altogether unspeakable sin may live forever to undergo through the unending years of time those mental tortures, far surpassing any conceivable physical pangs, which we may be sure are afflicting him at this moment? Remorse he may not feel; we cannot well know the mental and spiritual nature of this incomparable malefactor. But he must feel the immeasurable difference between his present despised state and that high position from which he has fallen. Excruciating as that torment must be, it is only the beginning. He knows that earth's millions detest him, loathe him, hate him with a hatred never before visited upon mortal man. They will shun him, or seek him out only for hot reproach and reviling. The guilt of ten million murders rests upon his soul, for he is the man, the one man, who might have stopped the war before it began; he was the greatest exemplar, preacher, and practitioner of that theory of rule over men out of which the war was born. "Thou art the man" is what the world has said to him from the beginning.

So let him live, let him live through such days of anguish and nights of sleepless torment that he will rage furiously against any who, speaking from a sense of pity and belated loyalty, may cry out "Long live WILHELM!" LUCRETIA'S prayer for the punishment of TARQUIN, as SHAKESPEARE has given it form, befits the case of him who was the German Kaiser:

Let him have time to tear his curled hair,
Let him have time against himself to rave,
Let him have time of Time's help to despair,
Let him have time to live a loathed slave,
Let him have time a beggar's orts to crave
And time to see one that by alms doth live
Disdain to him disdained scraps to give.

Time without limit, unending time spent in torment without any respite, ceaseless, hopeless, that is the punishment appropriate to the crimes of WILHELM of Hohenzollern, for sins altogether inexpiable, sins that appall, that outrun experience and overpass the powers of imagination. Leave him as he is, that is the worst the world can wish him. This man felt himself to be the greatest on earth, he is now the meanest. He has come down from his high place where he dreamed of extending over all nations the supreme power he wielded over one. He has come down to a condition from which the wretchedest would flee in horror. Is he not in a way of punishment which the most inexorable would hold to be fitting and adequate? Yet some men say there is no God!

TAKE CARE OF THE SOLDIERS.

The armistice does not end the work of our soldiers and sailors, or the need of taking care of them. It increases that work. The idea that they are coming right home is mistaken, and if they were it would take a long time to transport them. But in truth they have many and various tasks still confronting them; for one thing, they will furnish their quota of the military occupation of the Rhineland. Nor must it be forgotten that the terms of the armistice with Austria provide that the Allies shall have the power not only to use her territory for military purposes, but to maintain order there. As for our sailors, the menacing attitude of the German fleet under its new commanders may indicate that even the fighting is not over for them.

It is well to cheer the armistice, but it is not well to tighten the purse-strings. Now, more than ever, the soldiers and sailors need the protecting care which has been extended over them by the loyalty of the men, women, and children at home. It is no time to withdraw or lessen it. All the great organizations, Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, and secular, have united in an appeal for $170,500,000, which, however, is the very minimum of what is needed. To give the men the physical care, the social opportunities, and the moral backing they ought to have, $250,000,000 would be the full figure. The demands made by the Government for service among the troops have greatly increased in the last few months, instead of lessening, and they must be met.

New York's quota of this $170,500,000 is $35,000,000. Remember that that is the minimum quota. In the Liberty Loan campaigns you lent to the Government, and lent at a good rate of interest. Now is the time to give!

AGAIN WE CELEBRATE.

"Newsboys and news extras have been detected ere this in imposing on a credulous and a hopeful people," said THE NEW YORK TIMES of April 11, 1865, in describing the first reception here of the news of General LEE'S surrender. That event, like the surrender of Germany, had been somewhat discounted by a false report coming two or three days before it actually occurred; and the real news arrived, like the news of the German surrender, midway between Sunday night and Monday morning. But despite all this, despite the fact that the fall of Richmond had apparently exhausted all the pent-up rejoicing of the people, New York celebrated with enthusiasm.

So the outpouring of emotion last Thursday on the receipt of the false news of peace apparently made no reduction in the volume of the demonstration which greeted the truth. If the spirit was somewhat different, if the jubilations over the real surrender were somewhat more standardized—lacking the millennial-dawn spirit which possessed everybody while the premature report held its currency, when, as after the fall of Richmond, "the magnetism of delight was on every man"—still it was a celebration whose like we shall scarcely see again.

We have proved our capacity for celebration, though we can hardly celebrate our capacity in view of the very large number of persons too much flown with stimulants who could be seen on the streets at night. But moralists who may have regarded this as a proof of our city's bacchanalianism should be reminded that, as in the case of most of New York's supposed sins, the real offenders were chiefly the strangers within our gates.

Not all manifestations of popular delight would commend themselves to the discriminating taste; there was an amazing amount of promiscuous osculation, but nobody seemed to take it amiss; and after all, it was an occasion which transcended the standards of refinement and evoked what was in the heart of every man and woman. That the hilarious carnival spirit did not degenerate into rowdiness and disorder is greatly to the credit of the police, who performed with distinguished success the difficult task of permitting a very unusual degree of license, such as the occasion claimed, while still keeping the crowds from becoming a menace to individual safety or public order. It was hard to say just where the line should be drawn, but drawn it was, and in such a way as to give very general satisfaction.

Judging from the dispatches, what happened in New York was about the same as what happened the world over. The accounts of the celebrations in London released from four years of war, no less than in Lima where the people had not participated in the war at all, read very much like descriptions of the demonstration here. Which was not unnatural, for there has probably never been an instance in the previous history of the world where so large a percentage of the human race was thrilled simultaneously by the same emotion.

OUR SHIPBUILDING PROGRAM.

No longer affected by the menace of the enemy submarine, the shipping problem is still with us. Food must be rushed to Europe to meet an increased demand because the people of the Teutonic nations, lately in arms against us, are on the brink of starvation; also because conditions almost as desperate exist in Turkey, Bulgaria, and Russia. Besides food there are other commodities that the people of these nations must have. Argentina, Australia, and Canada will also lend a helping hand, and Great Britain will furnish most of the ships required as soon as they can be released from war duty.

Again, our soldiers, more than 2,000,000 of them, are to be brought home. For police work in occupied districts in Europe large bodies of troops of the Allies will be needed for an indefinite period. America's contribution will have to be greater than France's or Great Britain's, since their losses in the war have been excessive, in fact enormous compared with ours. To relieve American troops that were first sent to France and have taken part in the fighting of the last nine months troops equal in number may be transported to the other side. At least that is probable. Therefore, the demand for ships will probably be as great as ever for some time to come. Great Britain, no doubt, will continue to spare as many of her vessels as she can, but it must be considered that Argentina, Australia, India, and Canada will call for tonnage, and Great Britain will naturally desire to put some of her ships back on the old trade routes. In the case of both the British Empire and the United States, the supply of bottoms will be inadequate. The cry will still be for ships, ships, ships, although the conditions of the demand have changed.

There is no escaping the unpleasant truth that the German submarines played havoc with allied and neutral shipping during the war of more than four years. According to a statement issued by the United States Shipping Board on Sept. 21, 1918, the losses of allied and neutral shipping from August, 1914, to Sept. 1, 1918, were 21,404,913 tons dead weight; the total construction in the same time was 14,247,825 tons; enemy tonnage taken to the end of 1917 was 3,795,000; the excess of losses over gains was 3,362,088 tons. Here was a void to be filled. American and British yards are turning out ships at a remarkable rate. British deliveries in September were 231,635 tons; the American deliveries were 360,330. The return of peace does not release either country from the necessity of building ships, although the race is no longer against submarine sinkings.

The United States cannot pause, for some time to come at any rate; and Great Britain is not likely to do so. Aside from the reconstruction demand for cargo space which must be supplied, the United States has planned a merchant marine to carry to all parts of the world the goods of a productive development that is bound to be unparalleled in her commercial history, and perhaps in that of any other country. To abandon a program that has cost so vast a sum of money and that promises so rich a reward would be preposterous, not to be thought of. If America is to continue to figure as a great world Power she must maintain the merchant marine decided on.

PAYING THE DUTY.

Since the election Governor WHITMAN has felt a new love for Albany. He wants to stay there for two years more. It would be unkind to suggest that he can look nowhere else for a political home. Mr. SMITH'S "apparent plurality" being of moderate size, Mr. WHITMAN hopes that it can be changed into a plurality for him. In an amusing letter to Chairman GLYNN of the Republican State Committee, the Governor's own, he says that that body has asked him for an inspection of the ballots. There is a possibility of error, of course, in such a multitude of ballots. Against his wishes and merely because he owes the "duty to the people of the State, irrespective of party," the Governor complies. As a candidate he has a right to ask for the examination of the ballots. So, reluctantly, he will ask for a court order for the purpose. At present his curiosity seems to be limited to the ballots cast in this city, where Mr. SMITH got so monumental a majority.

It is not charged that fraud has been used. If inspection reveals fraud, the Governor's friends say with proper gravity, a recount will be asked for. They know perfectly well that elections here in this town are as honest as they can be made anywhere. The law against fraud is severe. In the best good old Tammany days some enthusiastic adherents of a then conspicuous local politician, competing for a banner offered by him to the leader of the district showing the biggest majority on the "right" side, were convicted and punished. Some seventeen were sent into exile "up the river." The lesson that it does not pay to attempt election frauds was thoroughly learned. Surely the men are too shrewd, even if they are not too honest, to have any hand in ballot frauds. As a devoted lover of woman suffrage, if for no other reason, Mr. WHITMAN must be incapable of suspecting that the women would take up the abhorred art of ballot-box stuffing.

It is true that "the somewhat complicated nature of the ballot," as Mr. WHITMAN says, with rather a doubtful compliment to ballot "reform," and the new system of canvassing the ballots, make mistakes in count possible. It is sound doctrine of probabilities, however, that the mistakes on one side and on the other are pretty sure to balance each other. Does the Governor imagine that the new woman voters were more careless or more likely to make mistakes in marking or counting the ballots than the men? So far as is known, the women were particularly painstaking, conscientious, and intelligent in the discharge of their tasks at the polls. It is a sad fact that altogether too many of them, from Mr. WHITMAN'S point of view, voted for Mr. SMITH.

If there is inspection here of the ballots, there will have to be inspection of them up-State. Should a recount be asked here, a recount will be asked up-State. There would be a repetition of the tedious, dreary, expensive, scandalous, and bootless processes after the Mayoralty election of 1905. The people of the State don't feel that Mr. WHITMAN owes them or anybody else this "duty." The Lord loveth a cheerful giver. The people love a cheerful loser.

WAR REVENUE REVISION.

When Congress adjourned for the elections it left the War Revenue bill in a situation that makes its thorough revision necessary and desirable. The elections cannot be construed into a mandate for persistence in Kitchinism, the unanimous delegation from North Carolina, including Scotland Neck, to the contrary notwithstanding. And the signing of the armistice alters the demand for revenue for war into revenue for peace and prosperity. While the war lasted it was commendable to put such burdens of taxes on unessential industries that they should not compete with war industries, that is, with the Government expending tax money. That consideration is much limited in its application with the prospect of peace. The Government is overbought in many of its supplies, and the change from war policies will release supplies for civilian demands in industries which may now be taxed for revenue rather than for discouragement.

The continuance of the shipbuilding program into 1920 is one of the few examples of prolonging war activities into peace, for which provision must be made by taxation. On the other hand, war profits will fall and the revenue from them will be reduced. The Kitchin program contemplated taxation of book profits, which consisted largely of inventories of materials and products. The outlook now is that these inventories must be revised downward and that the profits will not exist as a basis of taxation. The mood of the country is not as liberal toward taxation for peace as for war. In war there is something to be said for taxation for a surplus, to be on the safe side. There is no extenuation or excuse for taxation for surplus in peace. The country would not endure it, and would be equally intolerant of waste, or lavishness approximating waste.

Previously the Senate had reduced the House taxes by nearly two billions, without providing a substitute, as then was thought necessary. Probably some additions must still be made, but the additions may be smaller, and they should be made in directions in which the House bill did not look. The burdens which the House laid on wealth, and on production by way of burdening war profits, may be shifted to consumption by way of equalizing the burdens between classes. That would be a tax for revenue, not for restriction of either profits or production. It would be so small on items countless in number as hardly to be noticed, and distributed universally. Producers would take care that it was paid by ultimate consumers. Members of that great class could not shift it to others but could protect themselves by not consuming, thus encouraging the thrift which war started, and which is equally excellent in peace.

Republicans would not expect Democrats to co-operate with them in the restoration of old-fashioned protectionism of the German pattern. But there may be a temporary customs provision for the reduction of unearned profits by neutral nations. They have not borne the burdens of war, and have heaped up profits both in cash and in goods which the reopening of the seas will enable them to put into unfair competition in the best markets, where costs are high due to taxes for purchases by which the neutrals will benefit. There must be another loan or two, and the interest and amortization charges alone will approximate or surpass the total budget before the war. Thus there can be no such thing as absolute reduction of taxation for an uncertain future, but there can be reconsideration of the relation between the proportions of income to be realized from taxes and from loans. It would seem clear that this revenue bill, like its predecessor, will be written in conference, and differ decidedly from its present form.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Good Taste Combined with Truth.

There are people in this country, and too many of them, whose patriotism, though entirely well-intentioned, is not sufficiently thoughtful or enlightened to save them from describing in ways entirely wrong, and to the judicious a source of grief, the part which the United States has played in the termination of the war. These are they who declare that the great conflict was won by us, that we have saved Europe and civilization from the Huns who had attacked them.

All such misguided persons should read with care and earnestly consider what President WILSON said on this subject in his address of Monday before the two houses of Congress. There was nothing of boastfulness, of inaccuracy, in his reference to America's achievement, nor was there anything of false modesty or affected depreciation. Instead, there was the exact truth, expressed in one of the best sentences he has ever written, and the words were these:

> It was the privilege of our people to enter it [the war] at its most critical juncture and in such force as to contribute, in a way of which we are all deeply proud, to the great result.

A fine and correct statement, that—marked by good taste as well as in full accord with the facts, and never was selection wiser than his in using "privilege" and "contribute" instead of the other terms too often chosen under the pressure of inconsiderate exultation.

In that single sentence, or rather in that part of a single sentence, the President told the story of our participation in the war—not the whole of it, of course, but enough for his purpose of the moment, and enough, it is to be hoped, to supply a needed commentary on exaggerated and distorted claims as to America's achievements—claims that are cruelly and offensively unjust to our co-belligerents, though not one of them cares to say so.

Murderers Until the Last.

Possibly the psychologists of Germany will be able to explain some day why the town of Mézières was subjected to a heavy bombardment up to the very moment when the suspension of hostilities to which both sides had agreed went into effect. So far as anybody on this side of what were the fighting lines can see, the firing on the little city was motiveless, unless the Germans simply couldn't resist the temptation or neglect the opportunity to commit one more "atrocity"—one of no slightest military advantage, and one the only possible effect of which would be the making of another long black mark on the score kept by the Allies.

The Germans did not want to take the town, and they knew that they could not. They knew, too, that the great majority of the occupants of Mézières were civilians, and that these would supply most of the victims. Yet they shelled Mézières for hours, using gas shells, too, so that the women and children huddled in cellars might die an agonizing death.

The problem thus presented is a strange one. Germans do not like to be hated, and the world's bitter antagonism mystifies them not less than it disturbs their equanimity. Prince MAX wrote the other day of the "malicious joy and hate" to which Germans outside of the Fatherland were now to be exposed, and evidently he knew of no reason except malice why their hearts should be made heavy. He seems to be typical of his race. It cannot, or at any rate it has not, abandoned the belief that in "frightfulness" there is profit.

An International Holiday.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to suggest that this day, the 11th of November, the day that marks the end of the bloodiest, the most destructive and the costliest war of which the records of history contain any annals, should be made an international holiday, and that our Government, in due course, take steps to bring this about. Could anything be more fitting, more appropriate, than that we and our children and our children's children, down through all the ages yet to come, should celebrate, in common with our allies and their descendants, the birthday of universal freedom and the death knell of militarism, Kaiserism and of autocracy, and of all the horrors those odious terms connote? The anniversary of this day, which ushers in the final triumph of true democracy, should for all time be an inspiration to every lover of liberty, and that result can best be achieved by making it a day of celebration and rejoicing in every corner of the globe. The time will surely come—perhaps it is not far off—when Germany and her former allies will realize that for them, too, this is a day of liberation, and when that time comes they will, in all sincerity, join in commemorating the 11th day of November, the most significant the world has ever known.

The Restoration of Russia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As days pass peace triumphantly commands her rightful place in the sun. Even the war lord is, nolens volens, a pacifist. The question arises with intense anxiety for many, "Who will pacify Russia?" This unhappy country will enjoy the fruits of peace the last of all. Here is the great opportunity of America, the great liberator of mankind. Let one of the conditions of peace with Germany be the right of the Allies to use Germany's railways to assist in the colossal task of repatriation of part of the American and Canadian forces, and even Chinese laborers, by way of Russia.

This will not alone obviate the congestion of the shipping or a long drawn out homecoming, but these forces could atop on their way to establish order, enlarging the rather microscopic efforts in this direction by the Allies already on the spot. The power that has brought victory to France would soon wake the sleeping giant from the nightmare of distress. Threatening starvation and anarchy would quickly be replaced by order and prosperity. We have done it for Cuba, are doing it for the Filipinos, and shown the same unselfish good-will to Mexico. Why not to Russia? This would be a fitting climax to that gigantic undertaking of the American people in making the whole world safe for democracy. ERNEST PICK.

Victor Hugo's Prophecy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"There is only one thing stronger than armies, and that is: an idea whose Time has come."—Victor Hugo.

Here are the lines that were found written on a half sheet of paper lying on the desk of Victor Hugo the day the poet died in 1885—his last message to the world he was leaving:

"Je représente un parti qui n'existe pas encore, le parti Revolution-Civilization. Ce parti fera le vingtième siecle.

"Il en sortira d'abord les Etats-Unis d'Europe et puis les Etats-Unis du monde."—Victor Hugo.

Permit a translation of the original which was copied standing at the poet's old desk, 6 Place des Vosges, July, 1910:

"I represent a party which has not yet come into existence, the party of Revolution, of Civilization. This party will transform the twentieth century.

"There will issue from it, first the United States of Europe and then the United States of the World."

A Proposal for German Colonies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is interesting to see The London Spectator revive the proposal (which has been discussed in England before) that this country should be asked to protect the late German colonies, or, more accurately, dependencies in Africa. The proposal is not likely to be very attractive, but it might have at least one huge advantage in giving to highly trained colored men in this country a share in that binding up of the world's wounds that must be one of the chief glories and anxieties of our immediate future. I had always known that the white population of the territories was exceedingly small; on a visit to German East Africa I discovered that, except for a few officials, it positively does not exist. Hindenburg Then and Now.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would it not be a suitable Christmas gift for General von Hindenburg, at the present time, if some one would send him a neatly illuminated copy of his own public declaration during the first months of the war, which was substantially as follows:

"I will prove that the commonest stone that marks the grave of a German soldier is of more importance to the world than all the art and monuments and cathedrals that ever have been created by those who oppose Germany."

Enough said!

WORK FOR OUR ARMY.

Rebuilding Devastated France as a Contribution from America.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After peace negotiations begin, it will still be months before our boys come home. That our armies will be withdrawn during this period is highly improbable; we cannot and will not trust Germany until the final word is said. But what will our two million soldiers do during this time of waiting?

If they have not active occupation, their moral hazards may be greater than their previous physical hazards. Some will be looking after the disarmed Germans and their armament; some will be doing police duty, but it is hardly supposable that such a vast number will be thus actively engaged. It is, therefore, imperative that many hundreds of thousands shall have some occupation that will adequately employ their time and energies in constructive occupations.

With the fields and cities of France lying in desolation, what would be a finer recognition of the most splendid heroism and service the world has ever seen than to help her reclaim her fields and rebuild her devastated homes? What would appeal more to our boys "over there" than to work beside our French brothers in the rebuilding of their homes and the tilling of their fields? For it is the sight of devastated towns and villages and desolated farms and vineyards that has, more than anything, filled our soldiers with a burning rage and a desire to end the Hun.

What the Hun shall pay for this is another matter. What part of this it will be expedient to have him do with his own hands is problematical, but prostrate France has thousands of homes and factories that must be reconstructed immediately, and fields that must be tilled and planted, if she is to be saved from the destitution and famine and disease that from time immemorial have followed devastating war.

In our army are thousands of farmers, mechanics, carpenters, masons, and men from every trade and profession that bears a part in community life, and could such men be more efficiently, more happily employed than in doing the very thing for which their civilian life has trained them?

I like to think of the great public buildings of France and her wonderful cathedrals and her simple, charming homes rebuilt by American hands—and the same hands that have helped to push back the German. Could there be a more fitting tribute from a grateful and admiring American people to the magnificent heroism and sacrifice of those wonderful men and women who, for four years, have stood between us and the fearful ravages of the Hun?

A Clean Sweep in Asia Minor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allow me to congratulate you for the clear and just stand you have taken in your editorial article which appeared in THE SUNDAY TIMES, under the title "Asia Minor," and for championing the equitable rights of the oppressed nations. It would be sheer folly to try something which has been tried for over five hundred years, and has been found wanting. The old Turkish regime proved its utter incapacity for government, and has been a regime of tyranny, outrage, spoliation, and shame. The Young Turks came to power with the promise of setting a rule of justice, freedom, and fraternity. But they have proved themselves more barbarous, heartless, senseless, corrupt and villainous than the old Turks. They have caused such unimaginable havoc and carnage in the country that the outraged races longed for the Hamidian days. The Turk is incapable to rule himself, and more so to rule the subject races. The highest good of the Turks themselves, the welfare of the entire country, the rights of the Christian inhabitants for freedom and security, and the future peace of the world demand that the scandalous Turkish rule should be brought to an immediate end, and a clean job should be done in sweeping away the dirt of the Turkish Empire.

The World Raider's End.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your speculation this morning as to what is to become of the empire that the Germans made nearly fifty years ago makes it timely to consider this fact, one of the most impressive and comforting results of allied victory:

Fifteen years ago William II. first showed to the world his plan to dominate it. At the launching of the battleship Wittelsbach he declared that he looked to the time when no great international decision could be taken without the consent of the German Emperor. Today there is no German Emperor, and not a foot of the earth's surface has a welcome for the man who was. Truly justice moves with a leaden heel, but strikes with an iron hand. D.

NOVEMBER ELEVENTH.

The agony is done, the darkness over;
Evil that burned and ravaged dies at last;
The beast with bloody mouth has run to cover;
The hosts of light are marching far and fast!

Brave men of all the little lands are singing
For hopes as dear as their heroic dead;
The bells of all the little lands are ringing—
"Freedom is won! Be glad! Be comforted!"

"Freedom is won!" Humbly the words are spoken—
(They can be humble, for their deeds were proud!)
"The power that would devour the world is broken—
The beast that lusted after us is cowed!"

And in the mighty lands is mighty laughter
Mingled with tears, and many a thankful word
Which shall resound for generations after
These hearts have gone to rest that now are stirred.

"Freedom is won!" and all mankind rejoices!
Women and men shall build them homes again,
Beauty shall speak with her unnumbered voices,
Wisdom shall answer from the mouths of men;

The hungry shall be fed, the grieving cherished,
The kind be honored, and the poor made strong;
The beast that knew no ruth—the beast has perished!
We are set free for work and love and song!

The beast with bloody mouth has run to cover—
The merciless seek mercy at the last.
The people win! The day of Kings is over!
The hosts of light are marching far and fast!

NEED THOUSANDS FOR SHIPS

Hurley Orders Recruiting Rushed to Meet Situation Peace Created.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Orders to rush recruiting of men for the crews of merchant ships were sent today to agents of the Shipping Board in all parts of the country.

"We shall want thousands of men for our fleets," Chairman Hurley said. "Our recruiting service and training ships will keep right on preparing men for jobs in merchant ships. The service is training at present 4,000 apprentices a month. We are planning to increase its output, and the Shipping Board will continue until further notice to accept men between 18 and 35, inclusive, for training. We want to build up an all-American personnel for the great merchant marine."

Shipyards also will continue their work with unabated energy, except for the curtailment of overtime and Sunday work, the Chairman said. There now are under construction in the United States for the board 724 ships, aggregating 3,500,000 tons. Four hundred of these are steel or concrete and the others wood. Opportunity for private construction of wooden ships will now be given, Mr. Hurley said, but all available ways for producing steel ships will remain under control of the board.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Signing of the armistice will not affect the Government's shipbuilding program, according to Charles M. Schwab, Director General of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

"The continuation of the program," said Mr. Schwab, "will be the biggest factor in tiding over the period between war production and peace conditions. The situation will soon adjust itself, however, and the whole labor problem will straighten out automatically as the readjustment goes on.

"Our tonnage output so far has consisted too largely of small vessels, because we had to take anything we could get to meet the necessity. But 75 per cent. of the tonnage has been in vessels of over 7,000 tons. Now we shall turn to the larger cargo carriers of from 10,000 to 14,000 tons, they being the most economical, cost compared with capacity. The ruling principle of our shipbuilding from now on will be economy."

ALSACE GIFT FOR WILSON.

Golden Book with 70,000 Signatures Presented to Ambassador.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—William G. Sharp, the American Ambassador, today received on behalf of President Wilson the so-called "Golden Book of Alsace-Lorraine," consisting of five great volumes which are masterpieces in leather ornamentation, tooling and illumination. The book contains the signatures of 70,000 men and women of the two provinces residing in France or abroad.

The preface was written by Henri Welschinger. No one was allowed to sign the book in any part of Alsace reconquered and administered by the French, nor any of the 25,000 young refugees enlisted in the French army or prisoners who formerly served in the German army.

DISCUSS STORES' HOURS.

Conference Considers Proposal to Make Existing Schedule Permanent.

Representatives of big department and dry goods stores and of labor met yesterday in the office of the Public Service Commission to discuss with Chairman Hubbell the question of making permanent the changed hours of beginning and ending work for the purpose of relieving the congestion on the rapid transit lines during the rush-hour periods. The order for the change came from Health Commissioner Copeland during the recent epidemic of Spanish influenza, and the results were so satisfactory that Mr. Hubbell would like to see the new hours continued.

After discussing the matter for nearly an hour it was agreed that those present should confer among themselves, and that next Tuesday a committee should call upon Mr. Hubbell and report the decision reached. Among the firms represented were Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Best & Co., Gimbel Brothers, Franklin Simon & Co., Abraham & Straus, and Macy's. The labor unions represented were Local No. 1 of the International Jewelry Workers' Union, Typographical Union No. 6, the Stereotypers' Union, and the Allied Printing Trades Council.

QUEEN SENDS HER THANKS.

Alexandra Expresses Gratitude for Gift to Kitchener Memorial.

The American Committee of Queen Alexandra's Kitchener Memorial and Allenby Foundation Fund for hopelessly crippled soldiers and sailors took the occasion of King Edward's birthday last week to transmit a further sum of £2,000 to the Queen, who cabled the following acknowledgment:

Please convey my sincere thanks to all those who have subscribed the most generous sum or £2,000 to the Kitchener Memorial Fund. I am deeply touched at the anniversary of my beloved husband's birthday being chosen as the day on which to send this gift. ALEXANDRA.

RELAX LIGHTING RULES.

Stores May Illuminate Windows When Open for Business.

Through a modification of the "lightless nights" order, announced yesterday by Mercer P. Moseley, Chief of Fuel Conservation for New York State, store windows may hereafter be lighted on "lightless nights," during such hours as the stores remain open for business. This modification of the orders promulgated on Nov. 9, 1917; Dec. 14, 1917, and July 18, 1918, is effective at once in New England and the States of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, and the District of Columbia.

When closed for business, window lights must be put out, as heretofore, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights. No change has been made in the "lightless night" order respecting signs, ornamentation of buildings, and other wasteful use of light in streets, parks, or public places. Fuel Administrator Garfield says that it is essential to lessen and prevent waste of fuel.

SOLDIERS ELECT DEMOCRAT

Casey Wins Over Carpenter in Pennsylvania Race for Congress.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Nov. 12.—The soldier vote has changed the election result in the Eleventh Congressional District, giving John J. Casey, Democrat, a lead of 64 votes over Edmund Carpenter, Republican, according to a statement from Democratic State headquarters tonight.

Without the soldier vote Carpenter had a lead of 18 votes in the Luzerne district.

HOOVER OUTLINES DEMAND FOR FOOD

Says We Must Ship 20,000,000 Tons in Next Year, Yet 40,000,000 Russians May Starve.

SHIFTING OF SACRIFICES

Americans to Have White Bread, but Must Save Otherwise and Practice Simple Living.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The nation's obligation and opportunity to serve stricken humanity in wartorn Europe by helping to provide sustenance until the next harvest will demand further sacrifices by the American people, Food Administrator Hoover declared today in an address at a conference here of State Food Administrators.

Conditions of famine exist in Europe, Mr. Hoover said, that will be "beyond our powers to remedy," even with the carrying out of the plan to ship from America 20,000,000 tons of foodstuffs during the next year. In Northern Russia alone, he declared, there are 40,000,000 people who have but little chance of obtaining food this Winter. Millions of others throughout Europe, he said, who can be reached must be fed.

"In the matter of wheat and rye," said Mr. Hoover, "the large supplies that have accumulated in Argentina, Australia, and other inaccessible markets appear to us to supplement the stores of clear wheat bread for the world. It will, however, require a continued high percentage of milling, with continuous economy in consumption and the elimination of waste. Here directly arises a change in our policies, for we are able from now on to abandon the use of substitutes in our wheat loaf. The world's supply of wheat at this juncture is a priceless blessing, for, while bread comprises but 25 per cent. of our national diet, the food of Europe is from 50 to 60 per cent. sheer bread. The large harvest that we have here this year is, to a large degree, the result of the guaranteed price, and we may rightly be proud that our production and conservation policies have provided the necessary margins to the world of its daily bread.

White Bread Again Available.

"This being the new world situation, created by the collapse of the war," Mr. Hoover continued, "the prime changes in our policies on today's outlook can be summarized: That we may now advantageously abandon the use of substitutes in our wheat bread; that we will still require economy and elimination of waste in its consumption; that for the present we need conservation in butter and condensed milk; that ultimately we must extend this to all the fats.

"We can contemplate, at the most, maintaining fully three pounds per month per person of household sugar on the present outlook, and we can, by the availability of Java sugars to Europe, begin at once to relax more restraints on sugar pending some change in European policies.

"These are special features of changes in policy, but the shifting of conservation from one commodity to another is not the whole policy. There is one policy which cannot change, and that is the vital necessity to simple living, to economy in all consumption for commodities more or less substitute for each other. We must realize that the spectre of famine abroad now haunts the abundance of our table at home.

"We have now to consider a new world situation in food. We have to frankly survey Europe, a Europe of which a large part is either in ruins or in social conflagration; a Europe with degenerated soils and depleted herds; a Europe with the whole of its population on rations or varying degrees of starvation, and large numbers who have been under the German heel actually starving.

"The group of gamblers in human life who have done this thing are now in cowardly flight, leaving anarchy and famine to millions of helpless people.

"The war has been fought to an end in no small measure by starvation itself, and it cannot be our business to maintain starvation after peace.

"We must consider carefully how this situation reacts upon our people. We must consider our national duty in the matter, and we must make such changes in our policies as are fitting to the new situation. The matter of prime importance to us is how much of each commodity the exporting countries can furnish between now and next harvest and how much is necessary to the importing countries in which we have a vital interest, in order to maintain health and public order in the world."

Situation Until Next Harvest.

A computation on this basis, Mr. Hoover said, shows this situation until the next harvest: A shortage of about 3,000,000,000 pounds in pork and dairy products and vegetable oils, and of dairy feeds of about 3,000,000 tons. Of beef, there are sufficient supplies to load all refrigerating ships' capacity, and there will be enough of other foodstuffs, provided the utmost economy is practised by the American public. Although sugar that will be available is ample for normal consumption here if other nations retain their present short rations, any increase in Europe will create a "world shortage." There is a surplus of coffee.

North America, Mr. Hoover said, will have to furnish 60 per cent. of the world's supply of foodstuffs, and the United States and the West Indies will be able to export 20,000,000 tons, as against a pre-war normal of 6,000,000 tons.

The food policy of the United States has contributed to this ability to increase shipments, Mr. Hoover asserted, and the nation should be particularly congratulated on two measures taken: a guaranteed price for wheat and maintenance of the price of hogs to the farmer through export control, thus stimulating production and lessening the world shortage of fats to some degree. There will be a shortage under the normal world supply of fats for two or three years, and pork production must be maintained. Of America's export possibilities in fats, the largest item will be pork products, Mr. Hoover said.

Mr. Hoover told the State Administrators that the Food Administration would be discontinued under the law when peace was proclaimed, and added: "I do not expect to see its renewal."

"I look now," he said, "for a turn of American food trades toward conservative and safe business."

NAON RESIGNS HIS POST.

Argentine Envoy May Go to Peace Conference as an Observer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Dr. Romulo S. Naon, the Argentine Ambassador, has sent in his resignation. He was reluctant tonight to explain the reason, saying that as yet his Government had not acknowledged receipt of the message containing his resignation, which was cabled yesterday. When asked what his plans were, he said:

C. H. DODGE GIVES $500,000

Subway to Add a Tenth of Tickets Sold Next Friday — Judge Gary Appeals to Steel Men.

John McCormack, the tenor, with the aid of his friends, and under the auspices of the Allied Theatrical, Motion Picture, and Musical Team, gave a gala concert at the Metropolitan Opera House last night in aid of the United War Work Campaign. The proceeds of the concert, including boxes and tickets sold, and pledges and cash collected, amounted to $75,000. This was said to equal the direct receipts of any single entertainment given since the beginning of the war. On the program, in addition to McCormack, were Maggie Teyte, soprano, and Jacques Thibaud, violinist. The concert was opened by McCormack, who sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

During the intermission the lights were lowered and the curtain went up on a dim stage. As the first flush of "dawn" streaked the stage landscape the scene disclosed a group representing refugees in Northern France fleeing from the invader. Mothers carried their children, farm carts creaked heavily, and the refugees threw frightened glances to the rear. Suddenly, off in the distance, was heard a strain of martial music, which grew louder and louder, and as the sun arose a company of American soldiers led by a band filed into view.

The refugees welcomed the Americans as saviors, and then a group of white-clad girls came on the stage, extending gold palms of victory toward the soldiers of Uncle Sam.

Marshal Thomas B. McCarthy appealed for generous contributions during the intermission. The highest amount for a box, $5,000, was paid by E. L. Doheny of Los Angeles.

Second Day of the Drive.

The sum of $23,100,054 was pledged up to noon yesterday in the United States toward the United War Work campaign fund of $170,500,000, and a 50 per cent. oversubscription, amounting to $250,000,000, which the seven accredited civilian war relief agencies are asking this week in order to finance their work for American soldiers and sailors.

Up to noon yesterday the first two days of the campaign in New York City netted $4,318,476 toward the New York City quota.

At the second day's luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday announcement was made by the thirty team Captains that the day's gifts solicited by the 300 team members amounted to $1,660,639, as against $981,262 reported the day before. The high spot in the day's figures was a contribution of $500,000 by Cleveland H. Dodge through Team 11, of which Thomas A. Buckner is Captain. For the second day of the campaign the Industries Division allocated $1,676,575 as New York's share of the contributions made through that division. The total of funds announced for yesterday by the team Captains and the Industrial Division was $3,337,214. This sum goes to New York's quota.

Among the large contributions yesterday were the following: $350,000 by the Standard Oil Company of New York; Western Union Telegraph Company, $150,000; First National Bank, $100,000; West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company, $30,000; the Niles-Bement-Pond Company, $30,000; American Smelting and Refining Company, $100,000; $25,000 from the American Metal Company; Butte Copper and Zinc Company, $2,500; the fur industry, $16,575 as a starter; Rogers Peet Company, $10,000.

Many Corporations Assist.

Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, announced yesterday that at a meeting of the Board of Directors it was decided to donate to the campaign 10 per cent. of the gross receipts of all subway and elevated tickets sold on Friday, Nov. 15. The tickets may be used any day; the money will go to the campaign at once.

Officers and employes of the Gotham National Bank of New York have unanimously donated one day's pay to the fund. The Brooklyn committee yesterday reported contributions of $200,000 toward the quota of $3,000,000.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, sent the following telegram to each of the 105 Industry Chairmen in this city:

The peace celebration has probably prevented your committee from starting its intensive campaign. This means that you will have one day less in which to complete your work. The Industries Division for Borough of Manhattan must raise at least $25,000,000. We must not fail and I hope you will exert every effort in your power toward obtaining this result.

Here is what Robert E. M. Cowie, Vice President of the American Railway Express, says the express companies will do for the fund:

Nov. 12.

Your telegram received. Realizing that yesterday's celebration interrupted solicitations we had anticipated your instructions. Have no fear for the express division. "We will go over the top."

The Postal Telegraph Cable Company, through Edward Reynolds, who is the Industry Chairman for the postal telegraph section, sent this reply to Judge Gary:

Answering your telegram yesterday the postal telegraph section of the industries division did not allow yesterday's celebration to interfere with its work. It will come through with a full return.

Victory Boys and Girls Parade.

A million Victory boys and girls in all parts of the city, pupils in the public, private, and parochial schools, yesterday held parades and mass meetings at their schools in aid of the drive.

The Boy Scouts' parade, which was the biggest feature of the boys' and girls' Victory Day, started at Sixty-third Street and Central Park West shortly after 2 o'clock, and, headed by a police escort and band, made its way down Fifth Avenue to Madison Square, where it was reviewed by Dr. Royal S. Copeland and Mortimer Schiff, thence to Washington Square for disbandment.

Mr. Davison Appeals to Mothers.

Mrs. Henry P. Davison, representative of the Y. W. C. A. on the Executive Committee of the United War Work Council, issued a special appeal to the women of the country yesterday, urging them to put forth redoubled efforts to insure success.

"To the mothers and sisters of America the period of demobilization has a particular significance," said Mrs. Davison. "They have followed the letters from over there during the last few months with feelings in which pride mingled with deep apprehension. Today the apprehension that has its source in long casualty lists is lifted, but another apprehension has come to take its place. What of the hard lonesome months that must elapse before the boys can come home again? Now that the strain of battle is over how will they be employed? Where will they go for their furloughs? How will their leisure be occupied?

"These are questions that are in the heart of every woman in America who has a boy over there. And the only adequate answer to those questions is found in the program of the seven great agencies which are joined in the United War Work Campaign."

Smokers' Pennies Add $10,000 Daily.

The United Cigar Stores Company has put into operation a plan of contributing to the United War Work Campaign which, it is estimated, will result in turning over between $8,000 and $10,000 daily during the week of the drive toward the original fund total of $170,500,000. When a customer is waited on in any one of the company's thousand stores scattered from coast to coast, the clerk deposits 1 cent in a glass jar on the counter.

Bryant Park was transformed into a circus lot yesterday by the Outdoor Showmen of America, in the effort of the Showmen's League to aid the campaign, while on the busiest corners of Broadway high divers leaped from dizzy heights into shallow tanks of water, pretty girls, soldiers, and sailors collected voluntary contributions from the crowds.

In the park arena the principal event was the dive from a height of 150 feet, at the top of a swaying ladder, by Captain Peter Jerome Ringens, and the fancy diving of Miss Ringens. The park is filled with the tents of the Great Ferari Shows, including the Arabian Nights of Hamda Ben Mohammed, with fourteen Arabian beauties in Arabian and Egyptian dances, headed by Marcia and her troupe from the St. Louis and San Francisco Expositions. There also are Maharaja, the Hindu mystic; Raymond's Athletic Arena, the Broadway Cabaret, and the World of Wonders, made up of twenty freak shows in one.

High Divers in Times Square.

A performer known as the Great Raymond did an aerial strait-jacket dive act on the side of the Fitzgerald Building in Times Square last night. He dived from the second story to a chute and landed on his feet. Today "Nervo" will make a spectacular dive from the top of the Times Building, and other performers will appear at various places.

An auction sale of seats and boxes for the combined "Frolic and Gambol" to be held by the Lambs and the Friars at the Metropolitan Opera House on Sunday night took place yesterday at the Liberty Theatre, and $35,000 was realized. Regular tickets to the full capacity of the Opera House will be on sale this morning.

Women Plan Thanksgiving Gift.

A Women's Great Thanksgiving will be held on Saturday night, Nov. 16, at Carnegie Hall, and among the speakers will be Dr. Anna Howard Shaw. Chairman of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense, and Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy. It is expected that a great number of women will be present to give thanks for the approaching return of their husbands, sons, and brothers. There will be no admission fee, and all will be urged to make a thank offering for the United War Work Campaign.

Here is the parade for today: 8 A. M., canvass of 12,000 names by the thirty teams 9 A. M., J. E. Sheridan will begin painting a symbolic picture of the National Catholic War Council and Knights of Columbus in front of the Public Library; 12 M. to 2 P. M., "Silver Road to Berlin," silver coin contest between the Friars and the Lambs, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-eighth Street; Captains—For the Friars, William A. Brady, and for the Lambs, William Farnum and Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States.

Beginning at noon, the Junior League girls will sell "Y" pies at Sherry's, at luncheon, tea, and dinner. Florence Easton, Marcia Van Dresser, and Povla Frijsch will assist. At 12:45 occurs the Chamber of Commerce luncheon of teams and at 1:30 P. M. a rehearsal and free entertainment at the Grand Central and Pennsylvania Stations by the Green Room Club. There follows at 2:30 P. M. a pageant in the First Field Artillery Armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway, with an exhibition of war relics, and an entertainment also at the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, Bedford and Atlantic Avenues, Brooklyn.

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock there will be repetitions of the entertainment by the Green Room Club at the Grand Central and Pennsylvania Stations, and all day and evening a "Village Carnival" along Broadway, from Bowling Green to Columbus Circle. There will be a meeting for the drive today at Camp Upton.

A feature of the Victory concert at Carnegie Hall on Friday night will be the first appearance of the huge three-in-one military band composed of the bands of the 15th Coast Artillery, Fort Hamilton; the 22d Infantry, Governors Island, and the Coast Artillery, Fort Totten. The band will be under the leadership of Rocco Resta and the program includes Resta's "Victory March."

Fifth Avenue "Silver Lined."

The Friars and the Lambs continued to "pave" Fifth Avenue with silver yesterday. Their operations extended from Thirty-sixth to Thirty-ninth Street. Showers of silver tinkled down on the pavement at the behest of the actors, the Lambs on one side of the street and the Friars on the other. Elephants from Richards's circus bore banners of the campaign, and there was a Kiltie band as well as the 15th Coast Artillery Band from Fort Hamilton. Charles Mussett, George Leonard, and Fred Annerly of the Friars appeared as "The Spirit of '76." Among the actors who took part were Sam Bernard, Fred Block, Silvio Hein, Louis Mann, David Warfield, Charles Judels, and Robert Emmet Keane.

Five of the children of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Chairman of the United War Work campaign in Greater New York, are earning $5 each this week for the drive. The sixth child of Mr. Rockefeller is an infant and has been excused from taking part. Children of Albert G. Milbank, the lawyer, and other men of wealth have joined the Earn-and-Give Division, whose aim is for every youngster to earn $5 this week for the fund. The children on the big estates in Westchester and Dutchess Counties are raking leaves, "swatting" flies, selling vegetables, and even typing and translating to earn the $5 to contribute in their own names.

A rally for the campaign was held last night at Temple Israel in Harlem. Colonel Harry Cutler told of the work of the Jewish Welfare Board, and the other speakers included Joseph P. Day, Frank E. Ward, Lieutenant D. Villanes, Dr. Robert Johnson, and Dr. Maurice H. Harris. Mgr. J. W. Powers delivered the invocation and Cyril Lee led the community singing.

TAXES ARE LIKELY TO REMAIN HIGH

Government's Expenditures Resulting from War Will Continue to be Heavy.

MORE LIBERTY LOAN ISSUES

Immediate Finahcial Policy May Be Indicated In Statement In Senate Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The financial policy of the Government will probably be indicated tomorrow, when Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, expects to make a statement concerning the Revenue bill. The Senator has been in consultation with Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, and will probably see the President tomorrow.

It is not expected that the bill will be radically cut. The Senate committee has already reduced the $8,000,000,000 to about $6,250,000,000, and at the Treasury Department, it was said today, expenses of some $1,500,000,000 monthly are expected through the Winter months. Secretary McAdoo said that there were "hundreds of millions" yet which the War Department would find it necessary to expend. Other Liberty Loans, perhaps two, will be put out to the public. Further loans to the Allies may be made under the reconstruction program.

At the same time the Government is anxious not to impose any more taxation than is necessary, and this sentiment is echoed in Congress. The taxes already instituted will be heavy, and there appears to be no desire to place more burdens either upon industry or the individual. However, the money must come from somewhere.

Robert R. Reed, counsel for the Investment Bankers Association, which some time ago offered its services to the Government in the work of revenue legislation, said tonight:

"The suggestion of a war profits tax for 1918, continued at one-half the rate for 1919, with a credit for any 1918 excess profits tax under the 1917 law, will, I believe, meet the approval of business interests and of the public. I assume, of course, that the profits tax will end with 1919 and that after that year there will be no special or exclusive tax on earned income and active enterprise. The Investment Bankers' Association has heartily favored the war profits tax as a war measure and has sought to make it productive and equitable but it has always said, and is glad to repeat at this time, that such a tax in normal times is impossible in America.

"To take two men with an income of $50,000, one an inherited, uncarned income, the other the income of enterprise and accomplishment, and to subject the latter income to a special tax not imposed on the former runs counter to our basic principles, and is necessarily destructive of enterprise. It taxes the new man and grants relative immunity to the man of established wealth.

"In our form of corporate promotion, the men who supply the brains, the opportunity, or the invention receive the common stock or equity in the enterprise, while the men who supply the capital receive the bonds or secured preferred stock. The profits tax destroys the interest and the opportunity of the inventor and of the originator of the enterprise, while assuring a safe return to capital. With the termination of the war and of the war profiteer, both the need and justification of such a tax will disappear."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Treasury officials and Congressional leaders in charge of revenue legislation figure the situation this way:

Ordinary Government expenses, which ran around a billion dollars a year before the war, now will amount to at least $2,000,000,000 annually for many years, and for two or three years after the war may be double that figure. If the $16,850,000,000 of Liberty bonds already issued are increased in volume by later loans to $25,000,000,000, the interest on this would amount to about $1,000,000,000 a year. In addition, it probably will be the Government's policy to establish a sinking fund to pay off the bonds at maturity, and this would require about $1,250,000,000 a year. Those three items would make an aggregate near $4,250,000,000.

To offset this there would be nearly a half billion dollars coming in annually from the Allies as interest on their loans, which now amount to $7,000,000,000, and are likely to run much higher, and revenue from customs and miscellaneous sources, which last year amounted to about $450,000,000.

With allowances for wide variations in these calculations, there would still remain about $3,500,000,000 to be raised from internal revenue taxes. Last year $3,643,000,000 came from internal revenue, including $2,775,000,000 from income and excess profits taxes. This year these figures probably will be more than doubled.

Factors which make this system of estimates highly tentative, officials point out, are that the war is not yet definitely over, so far as expense is concerned, and that war debts both of the American Government to the public and of the allied Governments to the United States cannot be figured until then. Reconstruction policies, yet to be formulated, will have much to do with determining how many existing Government war-time agencies shall be continued, and consequently how high ordinary Government expenses will run. Besides, on the condition of business and foreign trade after the war must depend the weight of the tax burden which can be borne.

POLICE VIE WITH SOLDIERS AT SHOW

Mounted Squad Entertains Throng at Garden by Charge Over Arena.

MOORE ROAD FOUR VICTOR

Take Vanderbilt Memorial Cup Outright from Chief Rival After Spirited Contest.

New York's finest encroached yesterday on the glory of the fighting heroes of Uncle Sam at the Horse Show in Madison Square Garden. It was Military Day, with important events over the jumps and on the flat to be decided, and the khaki-clad officers held undisputed sway in the afternoon only to have their brightness dimmed at the night session when a squad of thirty mounted policemen dashed into the arena and took the spectators by storm.

Many of the horses bestrode by the guardians of the peace compared favorably with the animals shown in the saddle classes, but it was their handiness that appealed to the crowd. With energy unimpaired by their vigorous work in preserving order during the city's greatest celebration on Monday, chargers and policemen alike went through intricate manoeuvres with vim and dispatch that held the large crowd enthralled.

Cheers greeted some of the more difficult feats, while the rafters fairly rung as the squad raced the length of the Garden in a grand charge that looked as if it might terminate on the avenue outside the building, but which arrived at the grand finale with the horses on their haunches at the far end of the arena.

Neither the military nor police features detracted from the interest in the regular program which was diversified enough to satisfy the most versatile horseman. Miniature equine beauties occupied the centre of the stage in the morning, a series of interesting competitions winding up with the championship for pony stallions, which fell to the Willisbrook Farm's Horace with the Delchester Farm's Melbourne Tattler, reserve.

Judge Moore Triumphs.

There was plenty of enthusiasm before the bluecoats dominated the scene, for spectacular four-in-hands were in competition for the Alfred G. Vanderbilt Memorial Cup for the last time. This trophy was presented by Mrs. Vanderbilt after her husband lost his life in the Lusitania tragedy, and it was fitting that it should be won outright just at the time that the perpetrators of the deed should be ready to meet their deserts.

Head four-in-hands of Judge Moore and J. Campbell Thompson have been rivals for the cup since 1915, with the former having two victories to his credit prior to last night, while Mr. Thompson had only one leg on the cup. The importance of what proved to be the final contest caused Judge Moore to make his first appearance of the show. He drove four of the finest grays ever assembled, perfect in conformation and stately and sure in their manner of going, while the completeness of the outfit and road work was assured when the coach and four were followed by a sturdy cock horse.

J. Campbell Thompson also was represented by a gray team, with Charles Barry on the driver's seat of the Paugh & Ballagh, assisted by a more musical guard than the one that accompanied Judge Moore on the Rockmarge. Mr. Thompson's team was kept at work cutting figures of eight, while the Moore coach only made a couple of short trips around the ring. Partisans of both teams made lively demonstrations, but though the Thompson adherents did the most shouting the judges were more impressed with the quality and level gait of the Moore four. All doubt as to the decision was settled when the officials handed the silver cup to the Judge just before he drove proudly from the ring, victor for the third and last time.

Hunters Have Day.

Hunters opened the morning session and also the afternoon program, J. Campbell Thompson winning his first blue in the morning with the bay mare Cousin O' Mine, which was a trifle lucky, as she crashed through the rail fence and gave her rider, Captain Robert Foraker, a bad fall before settling down to her fencing to lead the field at the end.

The opening number of the afternoon brought to the front an old favorite in Robin Hood, which captured the high jump a year ago. Robin Hood was exhibited yesterday by Miss Eleanora Sears in the pen jump, and he showed such dexterity in leaping in and out of the little pen that he annexed the first blue for the Bostonian sportswoman, who has been one of the most active exhibitors so far.

Saddlers, ponies, tandems, and roadsters all took turns at entertaining the critical crowd before the contestants were ushered in for the competition of officers' horses over the course, which carried with it possession of the Beresford Challenge Cup, presented by Lord Decies after his appearance at one of the previous shows. The cup was in danger of being captured permanently, as Major D. O. Nelson's Ginger, winner a year ago, was a contestant and had shown in a previous competition that he was at the top of his form.

Early in the show week, and especially in the afternoon, the horses are affected by the uncertain light, and this factor only prevented Major Nelson securing the valuable trophy as his personal property. All eyes were on the aged chestnut when he typified his name by stepping gingerly up to the rail fence to clear it with ease developed by constant practice. An imitation wall of dull color, so that it took on camouflage from the tanbark, Ginger saw it not at all and was breasting the obstacle before his rider could pull him back. One look at the wall was sufficient and Ginger took a fresh run to clear it like a bird and also perform faultlessly over the remaining jumps.

Ginger's Error Fatal.

There were other good leapers to be reckoned with, however, and the one mistake of Ginger was sufficient to put him out of court for all except third place. Major John K. Brown's Forest, a massive chestnut mare, was the one to profit by the error of the cup holder. She skimmed the bars lightly and received the verdict of the judges over Captain M. M. Corpening's Leonard Wood, which showed vast improvement over his performance the previous day.

Women gained many laurels in the afternoon, the chief wreath being due to Miss Isabella Wanamaker for her dexterous handling of her tandem team, Eve and Nethersall's Pride, in a class that called for all that was expert in driving. The Philadelphian was the only amateur pitted against seasoned professionals that handled the reins over tandems that cut all kinds of curlicues on the tanbark.

Miss Wanamaker was also the only woman driver in the exhibition, but her skill was not marred by a taint of nervousness and she let her leader and wheeler step daintily around the ring with scarcely a perceptible slackening of the reins. Her driving elicited frequent applause and there was a ringing cheer when the blue was pinned on her leader, leaving only second place for the formidable Whitewall Ariel and Raeburn, representing Judge Moore.

Miss Wanamaker also rode in the saddle class for horses not exceeding 15.2 hands, but her entry, Cherrystone, was not quite up to the merit displayed by Mrs. Charles M. Allaire's old campaigner The Minstrel. Mrs. Allaire handled The Minstrel capably and fairly earned the blue.

Walter H. Hanley achieved his first victory in the class for ladies' saddlers, which brought out the largest field of the day. There were eighteen shown, all but four adopting the side saddle. Mrs. Hanley was mounted on Driftwood Blaze, a brilliant brown gelding that showed perfectly and took the blue, with Miss Wanamaker again second with Cherrystone.

PLAN FOR 1919 BASEBALL.

Minors Prepared to Get New Start at Game.

PEORIA, Ill., Nov. 12.—Baseball is assured for next season as a result of the end of the war, according to sentiment at the seventeenth annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, which opened here today.

President Michael H. Sexton of Rock Island, Ill., and Secretary J. H. Farrell of Auburn, N. Y., presided over the meeting. The baseball men say the calibre of the game next season will depend entirely upon the clearing up of the war situation and the feeling of the people as a whole toward the national pastime.

GEORGE SMITH RUNS AWAY FROM RIVALS

Sanford's Horse Beats High-Class Field in Record Time for Bowie Handicap.

PIMLICO, Md., Nov. 12.—John Sanford's George Smith strengthened the claim of his admirers that he is the best handicap horse of the year when he won the Bowie Handicap at a mile and a half today, defeating a field of fourteen that, with the exception of Cudgel, included the best horses in training.

In the absence of Commander Ross's crack, George Smith picked up the top weight of 130 pounds, and, skilfully handled throughout, came through in determined manner in the stretch, to win by a scant length from Omar Khayyam, with Exterminator only a half length back. The result furnished proof that the Kentucky Derby produces horses fit to run in any company, for all three of the placed horses won that classic as three-year-olds, and the finish of the big handicap was practically confined to them, as Exterminator was six lengths in front of the fourth horse. George Smith further emphasized the importance of his victory by covering the course in 2:31 1-5, which is three-fifths of a second faster than the track record.

George Smith was a well-played choice, but nearly every horse in the field received substantial support. The Porter and Exterminator, which have had several close battles recently, set out to make the pace, closely followed by the lightly weighted Corn Tassel. George Smith was fairly close to the leaders, and, improving his position gradually, went into the van at the three-eighths pole. He looked to have the race at his mercy then, but opposition developed from an unexpected quarter.

The discredited Omar Khayyam at last took it into his head to run, and he began to gain as Kummer put him under a drive at the head of the stretch. It was a driving finish, in which George Smith managed to retain his lead until safely over the line.

J. E. Griffith's The Brook demonstrated that he is the best jumper of the season by capturing the United Hunts Double Event Steeplechase, with 163 pounds in the saddle. Bet, the winner of the Manly Memorial, was prominent all the way, but fell at the last fence, leaving the place to W. F. Knebelkamp.

Defeats Gates in First Round of Carolina Golf Tourney.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Nov. 12.—The first match round of the Carolina tournament was played at Pinehurst today with the interest centred in the contest between C. L. Becker of Philadelphia and Franklin Gates of Hoffman, who had tied for the qualifying medal. Becker defeated Gates by 1 up after going out in 39. Incidentally Becker annexed the qualifying medal by finishing 2 strokes under Gates's medal score.

The summaries:

First Round.—H. G. Phillips, Pinehurst, beat E. H. Wiswell, Montclair, 5 and 4; C. L. Becker, Philadelphia, beat F. H. Gates, Moore County, 1 up; J. D. Armstrong, Buffalo, beat E. D. McCabe, St. Albans, 5 and 3; R. C. Shannon, 2d, Brockport, beat H. G. Waring, Moore County, 5 and 4.

PLAN MOCK BATTLE IN AIR.

Eighty-four Planes to Manoeuvre at Football Game.

An aerial battle involving three squadrons of United States Army aircraft—eighty-four airplanes—will be "fought" above the Polo Grounds on Saturday as the great added attraction of the Princeton University-Camp Upton football game to be played for the benefit of the United War Work Campaign.

Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, formerly camp commander at Upton; Colonel Sloan, the present commandant, and Rear Admiral Caspar F. Goodrich are expected to lead the cheering next Saturday. Invitations having been extended them by the committee.

From Princeton comes word that Keene Fitzpatrick, the coach, has his wartime Tigers tuned up, while from Yaphank is hurled the reply that Captain Dan Hurley has an eleven composed of stars.

HOPPE IS BILLIARD VICTOR.

Champion Defeats Amateur 200 to 6 in War Fund Match.

Willie Hoppe, balk-line billiard champion, defeated Charles P. White, the amateur Class B champion, last night in an exhibition game at the Freeport Elks Club by a score of 200 to 6 in four innings. Hoppe ran 4 in his first turn at the table and followed it with a cluster of 90. To this was added 65 in the third and 41 in the fourth.

White sustained his second defeat when he bowed to Mr. Campbell by a score of 100 to 88. The contests were played as part of a program for the United War Work campaign. A crowd of about 200 witnessed the matches.

Nelson Mayo, with the aid of a handicap of 100 points, triumphed over Hal B. Coleman in a balkline match at Doyle's. Coleman was playing for 200 points, while Mayo had only to make 150 to win. Mayo ran out his 150 in fifty innings, while Coleman was rolling up 162.

S. E. Dittman triumphed over Dr. C. W. Tuggle in a balkline match at Osborne's by the score of 200 to 182. The game lasted fifty-seven innings, Dittman making a high run of 20, while Dr. Tuggle's was 17.

M. Elin defeated George P. B. Clarke in a balkline billiard game at the Morningside Academy by a score of 200 to 179 in thirty-five innings. Elin had a high run of 42 and Clarke one of 41.

Balk-line and three-cushion carom billiards were played for the war campaign at Thum's yesterday. In the balk-line game Edward Schevenelle defeated William Gershel by 200 to 190 in fifty-four innings. Schevenello had a high run of 23. The evening game at three cushions resulted in a victory for Clifford Bash over L. Magnus by 50 to 48 in 135 innings. This brings Bash's total for two nights of play up to 100 against 99 for Magnus. The men will conclude their match tonight.

DEMPSEY WILLING TO BOX.

Heavyweight Wants to Appear in Local Benefit Show.

Jack Dempsey yesterday notified Charles J. Harvey, in charge of the United War Work Campaign Boxing Carnival to be held in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, that he was willing to box any heavyweight for the fund. Dempsey left it to the management of the show to select his opponent. This task presents considerable difficulty. Few heavyweights can be found who will risk a meeting with him. Harvey, with James W. Coffroth, Chairman of the National Boxing Committee, has issued an appeal to heavyweights in various parts of the country to volunteer their services. It is expected that the response will bring forward an opponent for Dempsey.

The offer of James J. Corbett, once heavyweight champion, to referee the bout between Benny Leonard and Jack Britton, which will be part of Saturday night's carnival, has been accepted.

COLUMBIA TO PLAY WESLEYAN ELEVEN

Game Finally Arranged for Saturday at South Field After Many Failures.

After corresponding with most of the leading elevens of the East in an endeavor to arrange a football contest for this coming Saturday at South Field, the Columbia football team management yesterday was successful in getting Wesleyan to agree to come to New York for a contest. Columbia had sought a game with Pennsylvania, Yale, and Lafayette, besides Wesleyan, but none of the others was able to arrange such a contest. It was only because Trinity canceled its scheduled game with Wesleyan for next Saturday that the New England eleven was able to accept the date offered by Columbia.

After a rather inauspicious start Wesleyan has rapidly developed into a football aggregation of power, in which Travis and Peck of the backfield are the star attractions. Wesleyan has played three games this season and has won two of them. Its only defeat came in the first game of the season when it bowed before the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College eleven. In that game Wesleyan shoved the ball to within ten yards of the goal line only to lose its chance for victory by the call of time. Wesleyan has defeated Amherst by 5 to 0 and Williams by 19 to 0.

With prospects for a game Coach Fred Dawson sent his charges through a stiff drill yesterday and also brought out a few new formations to be learned by the players. The Columbia backfield has progressed so much faster than the forwards that Dawson is giving most of his attention to the linemen.

Columbia has not given up hope of arranging a game with Harvard, and may be able to schedule a contest with the Crimson for either Thanksgiving Day or the Saturday following, Nov. 30. Columbia is desirous of playing the game in New York, and would probably make application for the use of the Polo Grounds if the Crimson would consent to send its team here. Cornell is still a possible opponent for the end of the month.

SPORTS' AID TO BE KNOWN.

Money Raised for War Work Fund to be Tabulated.

The Sports Committee of the United War Work Campaign is anxious to ascertain the exact amount of revenue the sporting world raises in the present campaign. It has sent word to every person and organization promoting sporting activities in behalf of the drive that the money should be turned over to local campaign authorities, and that a report of the amount thus raised should be forwarded to the Sports Committee.

In order that the sporting world's response to this call may be definitely put down in dollars and cents, the committee now urges that a statement of the money obtained from each event be sent as soon as possible to Julian W. Curtiss, Treasurer of the National Sports Committee, 60 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York City.

Miss Flower Defeats Sister.

Mrs. Mary Johnson and Miss Florence Flower, New York State women's pocket billiard champions, were victors yesterday in the continuation play in the women's tournament at Daly's. Mrs. Johnson defeated Miss Carolina Platt by 62 to 50, and Miss Florence Flower defeated her sister, Miss Maude Flower, by 62 to 54. Today's matches will be between Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. A. Bresnan in the afternoon and Miss Maude Flower and Miss Platt in the evening.

A Valuable Dog Team

A GOOD team of sledge dogs is worth from $150 to $300. These teams are bred and trained by Indians or traders who like the work and find it profitable. In Western Canada a dog team is usually made up of five dogs harnessed one after the other. On the open ice fields around Hudson's Bay more dogs are used harnessed in fan shape. During the Winter working season the dogs are fed on frozen white fish, about three pounds to each dog.

Indian dog owners will not feed their dogs in Summer when they are not working, but traders keep their dogs in good condition the year around. The dog teams at the Revillon posts are among the finest in Canada.

Bids for Army Supplies.

Twenty-seven bids were submitted at the local office of the Quartermaster General yesterday for furnishing twenty-six-ounce jerkin lining. The prices on most of the 2,325,000 yards offered were quite close. The high bid was $2.90 per yard and the low $1.15. For twenty-ounce overseas cap cloth, 1,394,500 yards were offered in the twenty-nine bids submitted. The prices ranged from $1 to $3 per yard.

A New Kind of Crib.

A new crib was put on the market a few days ago by a manufacturer in this line. Its construction is very simple, being put together by screws, and it is easy to keep clean. It is made in sizes ranging from 36 to 41 inches. The panels are wood, white enameled, it has six-inch wire wheels with rubber tires, and a wire spring for the mattress. It is said to have a ready sale.

Sales of Oriental Rugs.

During the past few months the sale of Oriental rugs has been exceedingly small. A number of the smaller merchants have gone out of business and have disposed of their stocks to the larger ones at landed prices. Although there have been practically no shipments at all for several months, one importer stated that he recently received 117 bales which came in by the way of Bombay. Prices on all grades of these rugs have about doubled.

Gray Goods Very Quiet.

Things could hardly have been any quieter in the local gray goods market yesterday if an armistice between buyers and sellers had been signed. Every day there was uncertainty as to the proper course to take and an apparent willingness to hold off for the present, at least. What practically amounted to official confirmation of the report, that the current Government price differentials would continue in force until Dec. 31, was received here during the day.

Velvets and Velveteens Popular.

Both in made-up garments and by the yard, retail sales of velvets and velveteens are said to be larger this season than for a long time. The call for velveteens has been especially heavy, for, in spite of their increased cost, they are priced lower than many lines of woolen goods and are proving popular with women who are going in for home-made garments this Fall and Winter. As usual, black is by far the most wanted shade, but rich blues, browns, and other of the darker colors are also well in the running.

PURCHASING POWER OF MONEY

When the world is again following its peaceful pursuits, the purchasing power of money should be much greater than today. The man who will profit by this unusual condition is the man who invests now in well secured long-term bonds. By investing in bonds of this character, he not only would receive over a long period of years the unusually high return they now yield, but the purchasing power of his income would be materially increased as commodity prices gradually decline. Let us suggest to you some long-term bonds.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Turn from Strength to Weakness as Future Outlook Is Studied.

The forces which controlled the movements of stocks fell into sharp conflict not long after business got under way yesterday, with the result that a positive tendency toward higher levels was converted, first, into a period of uncertain movements, then into an interval of irregularity followed by marked weakness among important issues. It appeared as though the holiday of Monday had served to convert the expected enthusiasm into more sober considerations of developments which now face the financial markets. In the first few minutes of business there was a continuation of the buying of railroad stocks which brought gains running from 1 to 3 points. When the trend of sentiment changed rails became weak and vied with certain of the industrials in receding. The market seemed to be largely in the hands of speculators, and when prices began to move off operations on the short side came into prominence. An indication that traders were feeling out the quality of the market in as comprehensible a way as possible was displayed in the fact that the number of stocks dealt in was the largest for the year. At the close declines extending from large fractions to 2 points or more were widely scattered and the only issues to show decided strength were included in the class of specialties.

It was noted that the declining movement gained impetus after the receipt of comment from Washington on taxation plans and the problems entailed in the conversion of numerous major industries from a war to a peace basis. The trading element paid considerable attention to Mr. McAdoo's views on the necessity for continuing heavy taxation. Doubtless many followers of the stock market had conceived the thought that, with the war ended, Congress might be moved to ease the burden of Federal taxes on industry. Mr. McAdoo, as quoted in Washington dispatches, made it clear that the country's burden must perforce be heavy for many months to come, and this tended to nullify comfortable ideas about the retention by many corporations of a substantial part of the earnings they are reserving for the current year's tax bill. At the same time the financial community was moved by expressions from local quarters that credits must needs be conserved as carefully as in the past for the demands of reconstruction work whose extent may not yet be calculated. Considerations of these items may have had effect in stimulating some liquidation of investment in stocks, but the bond market presented a quite contrary picture of the public's attitude toward funded securities at this time. Foreign Government issues again moved forward with vigor, and railroad bonds were in continued demand to an extent comparable with the accumulation of these issues last week.

In the foreign exchange market there was a decided improvement of Paris exchange, the cable rate moving from 5.43¾ to 5.35, a rate most favorable to France since the Spring of 1915. Neutral quotations showed only slight changes, but these in a direction to improve the status of the dollar in those markets. In view of the fact that the rates on Holland, Spain, Switzerland, and the Scandinavian countries had previously declined considerably it was not surprising that the actual signing of the armistice brought about a pause in their movements. The market for Russian currency moved forward again.

Call money continued at 6 per cent., although predictions were heard in banking quarters that easier rates might well appear in the near future. No indication was found, however, that the supply of credit not required by the Government and in outside essential undertakings would increase the supply in the near future.

Life insurance company executives from all parts of the United States will hold a "thrift conference" in New York, on Dec. 5 and 6, in connection with the twelfiht annual convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. It is announced that Trustees representing about 90 per cent. of the $27,000,000,000 of old line life insurance will be in attendance. Heads of insurance departments from many of the States also will be present. The need for a continuance of thrift in the reconstruction days already at hand will be emphasized by the discussion, in which Government officials, educations, banking, life insurance, and other business executives will participate.

REMINGTON STOCK PLAN.

Committee Formed to Reorganize Typewriter Company's Finances.

A committee representing what is said to be a large percentage of the holders of the first and second preferred stock of the Remington Typewriter Company has been formed to reorganize the company's finances and readjust its securities. One of the problems the committee has attempted to work out is that involving the resumption of dividends on both the first and second preferred shares. None has been paid since October, 1914. These dividends have been permitted to accumulate, and the committee purposes to liquidate them. The committee has formulated a tentative plan to reduce the bond series maturing in 1926, amounting to $4,400,000, by purchase, to $1,650,000. Of the bonds so purchased, $1,000,000 will be converted into first preferred stock, thus increasing the amount outstanding of this issue from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The second preferred and the common stock will remain as it is at present.

Accrued dividends of $1,120,000 on the first preferred stock and $1,600,000 on the second preferred will be liquidated. The total liabilities of the company, amounting to $26,120,000, will be reduced, if the plan is ratified, to $21,650,000. The committee proposes to acquire $2,750,000 first mortgage bonds, and will surrender $1,000,000 of them for first preferred 7 per cent. cumulative stock of the same par value. The company must agree to declare no dividend in any year of the common stock unless an equal amount shall be used in retiring or purchasing first preferred stock, until the stock so purchased or retired shall amount to $1,000,000.

This plan, it is believed, will make it possible for the company to resume, practically immediately, regular dividends on the first and second preferred stock. The dividends accrued on the first preferred stock to Oct. 1, 1918, amount to $1,120,000, one-half of which it is proposed to pay in cash and the other half in Liberty bonds. Dividends accrued on the second preferred to Oct. 1, 1918, amount to $1,600,000, and it is proposed to liquidate these by delivering to the stockholders voting trust certificates for the first preferred received by the committee on surrender and conversion of bonds to the amount of $1,000,000, while the balance will be liquidated by the payment of $300,000 in cash and $300,000 in Liberty bonds. The stockholders must approve the plan by Nov. 25.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 7,451 packages. Demand for high grades of fresh table butter exceeds the supply, and prices are again higher and firm. Medium qualities stiffened a little. Ladies and packing stock drag. Creamery, higher than extras, a pound, 65@65½c; extras, 92 score, 62½c; firsts, 86 to 91 score, 58½@62c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 54½@58c; lower grades, 50@53½c; unsalted, higher than extras, 65@65½c; extras, 64@64½c; firsts, 60@63c; seconds, 56@59c; State dairy tubs, finest, 61½@62c; good to prime, 57@61c; common to fair, 48@56c; renovated, extras, 51@51¼c; firsts, 48@49c; lower grades, 43@47c; imitation creamery, firsts, 44@45c; ladles, current make, firsts, 40@41c; seconds, 39c; lower grades, 37@38½c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 38@38½c; No. 2, 37@37½c; lower grades, 34@36½c.

EGGS.—4,376 packages. The supply of high-grade, fresh gathered eggs continues extremely small. Advices from the southerly sections indicate a slight increase in shipments, but from the more northerly points they are still decreasing. Demand continues good for the small quantities arriving and the market is fully sustained with a strong tone on all desirable qualities. The business reported at definite prices indicates a little change in the range of values. Storage eggs continue firm. Nearby white eggs are still in small supply, but the demand at the extreme prices recently ruling is a little more critical than the more or less defective lots, including pullets eggs, which move slower. There is still a good many California white eggs arriving from recent receipts, and another fresh car is in which is not yet on the market. Demand does not seem to be sufficient to clear these goods promptly at the prices asked. Fresh gathered extras, a dozen, 60@70c; extra firsts, 66@68c; firsts, 62@65c; seconds, 58@62c; poor to fair, 50@57c; dirties, No. 1, 47@48c; No. 2 and poorer, 42@46c; checks, good to choice, dry, 42@44c; undergrades, 36@41c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 47@48c; firsts, charges paid, 45@47c; seconds, charges paid, 42½@44½c; State, Pennsylvania, and nearby Western Dennery whites, fine to fancy, $1; ordinary to prime, 75@95c; gathered whites, ordinary to fine, 95@97c; pullets, 75@82c; Pacific Coast whites, firsts to fine, 94@95c; Western and Southern gathered whites, 70@75c; gathered brown and mixed colors, 60@70c.

Maximum Declines for One Day of 200 Points Were Recorded in All Contracts.

For the first time since the rule limiting the fluctuations in cotton prices became effective several months ago, yesterday's market witnessed this point reached under an avalanche of selling orders which caused all positions to sell down to the maximum level allowed for one day's business. The lows reached were: December, 27.90c; January, 27.25c; March, 26.60c; May, 26.52c; July, 26.35c; August, 25.50c, and September, 24.60c. October was the only exception to the general weakness, but this option sold at a heavy discount. Further declines were prevented by the rule restricting maximum fluctuations on any one day to more than 200 points. The break in prices which brought the declines down 200 points occurred just before 1 o'clock.

The market opened firm at 18 to 56 points higher than Saturday's closing, but when general trading started there was a sharp break in prices, with the result that the maximum declines for one day were reached for all contracts. The strength in first prices was attributed to the enthusiasm of the traders over the end of the war, and to some buying orders from Liverpool and the West, but as soon as these orders were executed the selling pressure became so heavy that these early gains were wiped out and prices slipped back. There were a few small recoveries, due to covering by shorts, but for the most part the market ruled weak and prices closed at the lowest levels of the day.

The weakness in yesterday's market lent support to the contention of the bears that with the cessation of hostilities there would be a halt in the buying by the mills, without discretion as to price, and to the expectation, too, that the shipping room for several months to come would be so small as to preclude the possibility of shipments sufficient to quickly replenish the scant supply of cotton abroad. The bears also made capital of rumors, which could not be verified, that representatives of the allied nations had canceled contracts previously entered by their countries.

Liverpool market was closed yesterday in celebration of the allied victory. It will reopen on Thursday.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

Evidently influenced by the return of confidence in the stability of real estate, owing to the close of the war, several offerings in the Vesey Street rooms yesterday stimulated lively bidding by outside investors and the successful purchasers made substantial cash deposits. The twelve-story loft at 12 and 14 West Twenty-first Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues, 50 by 92, offered at voluntary sale by Bryan L. Kennelly, was purchased by H. Z. Cohen for $216,000. It is covered with a $190,000 mortgage and is rented for $28,500 per year.

A number of bidders kept the sale active of eight three-family houses at 911 to 929 Whitlock Avenue, in the Hunt's Point section just east of Southern Boulevard. Each house is assessed at $10,000 and carries a $6,000 mortgage. The buyers were: 911, Louis Harris for $7,650; 915, Louis Samelson for $7,800; 917, Simon Vermont for $7,700; 919, S. J. Weinstein, a tenant, for $7,850; 921, Mrs. C. Scoging for $7,750; 925, Nathan Schwartz for $8,750; 927, Morris Robinson for $7,750, and 929, Schattner Brothers for $7,850.

The property was sold by the Jere Johnson, Jr., Company, to close the estate of Cornelius J. Ryan.

$165,000 Bronx Flats in Trade.

An investing client of J. J. Meenan, Inc., purchased from Frederick Brown, operator, the three five-story apartment houses 941, 945, and 949 Faile Street, occupying a plot 144 by 100. The property was held at $165,000, the sixty apartments in the three houses yielding about $21,000 a year in rentals. In part payment the buyer gave 35 West Eighty-eighth Street, a four-story private dwelling on a lot 21 by 100.8 feet, located near Columbus Avenue.

Private Dwelling Buyers.

Edmund W. Twining sold to Miss Margaret Hawkesworth, 54 East Fifty-second Street, a five-story American basement dwelling on a lot 17 by 100.5 feet. The property has been held at $52,000. Douglas L. Elliman & Co., negotiated the sale.

The Metropolitan Trust Company sold to William M. Hands, 544 West 140th Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 16.8 by 100 feet. Maclay & Davies negotiated the sale.

An investing client of Shaw & Co. purchased from Leon Lamalky 9 West 120th Street, a three-story dwelling on a lot 16 by 55 by 100 feet.

The Stillman and Cravath Dwellings Leased.

The residence of the late James Stillman, at 9 East Seventy-second Street, a five-story American basement structure, on a plot 60 by 100, has been leased to John Sandford of Amsterdam, N. Y., for occupancy.

Mrs. Esther J. Schultz has leased for a term of years the Paul M. Cravath residence, at 107 East Thirty-ninth Street, a six-story American basement structure, on a plot 25 by 98.9. The owner is in Europe on a diplomatic mission. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company negotiated the lease.

Queens Borough Sales.

The Minerva Theatre Company purchased from M. E. Crabbe a plot 49 by 103, on the north side of the Rockaway Beach Boulevard, west of Pleasant Avenue, Far Rockaway.

J. Ritter purchased from the Cooper Heights Building Company the improved plot, 50 by 100, on the north side of Hinman Street, south of Pulaski Street, Middle Village.

J. W. Chase sold to E. D. Robinson a plot, 88 by 100, on 109th Street, south of Lefferts Avenue, Richmond Hill.

W. E. Mundell sold for E. J. Schrank a plot, 60 by 100, on the west side of Brenton Avenue, south of Fulton Street, Jamaica.

New Jersey.

Edward P. Hamilton & Co. have sold for Frederick Brown, operator, to Frederick Pring, a stucco and tile roof residence and garage on Deal Esplanade, Deal Beach, N. J.

Fourteenth Street Business Lease.

The Brett & Goode Company has rented, in conjunction with Montgomery & Crook, the eight-floor building at 62-70 West Fourteenth Street, running through to 65-67 West Thirteenth Street, containing over 10,000 square feet, to the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation and the tenth floor in the same building to the Century Doll Company.

$203,000 Mortgage Loan.

Brooks & Momand have placed a first mortgage loan of $203,000 for the Remlik Realty Company, covering the two and three story business and apartment houses on the entire block front on the north side of Fordham Road from Jerome Avenue to Morris Avenue.

Realty Notes.

A mass meeting of property owners under the auspices of the Federation of Bronx Real Estate Owners will be held this evening at Hunt's Point Palace to discuss plans for legislative relief from excessive taxation.

There will be a meeting of the Harlem Property Owners' Association on Thursday evening at 147 East 125th Street.

A flying squadron of realty brokers has been organized to co-operate with the Real Estate Committee and its various teams in its United War Fund Campaign this week. Frederick P. Fox, Chairman of the committee, urged upon the teams the necessity of realizing the importance of raising the entire amount for the comfort of the soldiers overseas during the coming months.

created characters which are known and loved by millions wherever books are read.

Now these famous characters have been brought to life on the stage, and those who hold a place in their hearts for James Whitcomb Riley and his work may see the flesh-and-blood counterparts of those Riley immortalized in verse and prose.

They appear in all their freshness, their humor, their quaintness and their wonderful human appeal

FORREST ROBINSON

"DOC SIFERS"

SCOTT COOPER

"JIM JOHNSON"

JAMES BILLINGS
as Jim's friend,
"ECK SKINNER"

MARIE TAYLOR
as the lovable
"OLD AUNT MARY"

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY'S "HOME AGAIN" ISN'T A "BIG" PLAY. IN IT ARE NO SCENES OF WAR--NO TRIANGLE--NO MEN AND WOMEN OF UNSAVORY REPUTE. IT BOASTS NO FLIP LINES NOR SITUATIONS THAT BRING A BLUSH.

BUT IT IS AS WHOLESOME AS A DAY IN THE COUNTRY. IT WILL TAKE YOU BACK TO THE DAYS WHEN YOU WERE A KID AND IT WAS JUNE AND YOU TRUDGED BAREFOOT ALONG THE DUSTY ROAD TO "THE OLD SWIMMIN' HOLE" OR "OUT TO OLD AUNT MARY'S." IT BREATHES THE SPIRIT OF SIMPLE, HOMELY, HUMAN FOLK---OF GARDENS WHERE THE ROSES ARE PUSHING THE PANSIES OUT OF THEIR BEDS--OF THE GLORIOUS OUTDOORS AND OLD "CRICK" BOTTOMS AND SNAGS AND SYCAMORES.

"HOME AGAIN" IS A PLAY OF THE SOIL WHERE GOOD FOLK LIVE AND FLOURISH.

First Matinee To-day at 2:30

Bring the Youngsters to See Little "Orphant Annie" and "The Raggedy Man."
